Wildcats In '88

Extra! Extra!

NHS Doubled The Fun

Double work, Double plays, Double talk, Double dates . . . . all, in 88. Was the fun doubled in 1988? . . . We leave it to you to decide.

As the double doors to Northwestern High School opened on September 2, the Wildcats proved that this year the fun and excitement would be twice as good as the year before.

Not only did they double their efforts in academics and especially work on improving the functional test scores, but with the help of the new attendance program, they doubled their efforts in attendance as well. The new attendance program allowed for all the students with perfect attendance, in the time span of one month, to be eligible for a prize. The winners were drawn randomly each month and awarded gifts such as savings bonds, cases of pepsi-cola, gift certificates and yearbooks.

Not only was the achievement doubled this year but so was the excitement. Students, alumni, and parents walked through the gates to the 1987 Homecoming game. The crowd was psyched and the defense was doubled as the Wildcats won their first homecoming since 1979, 29 to 0, by defeating Parkdale.

Achievement, friendship, and excitement just never seemed to end until June 14 when the year was over, leaving the graduated class of 1988, along with the other classes with memories of a school year that had doubled the fun.

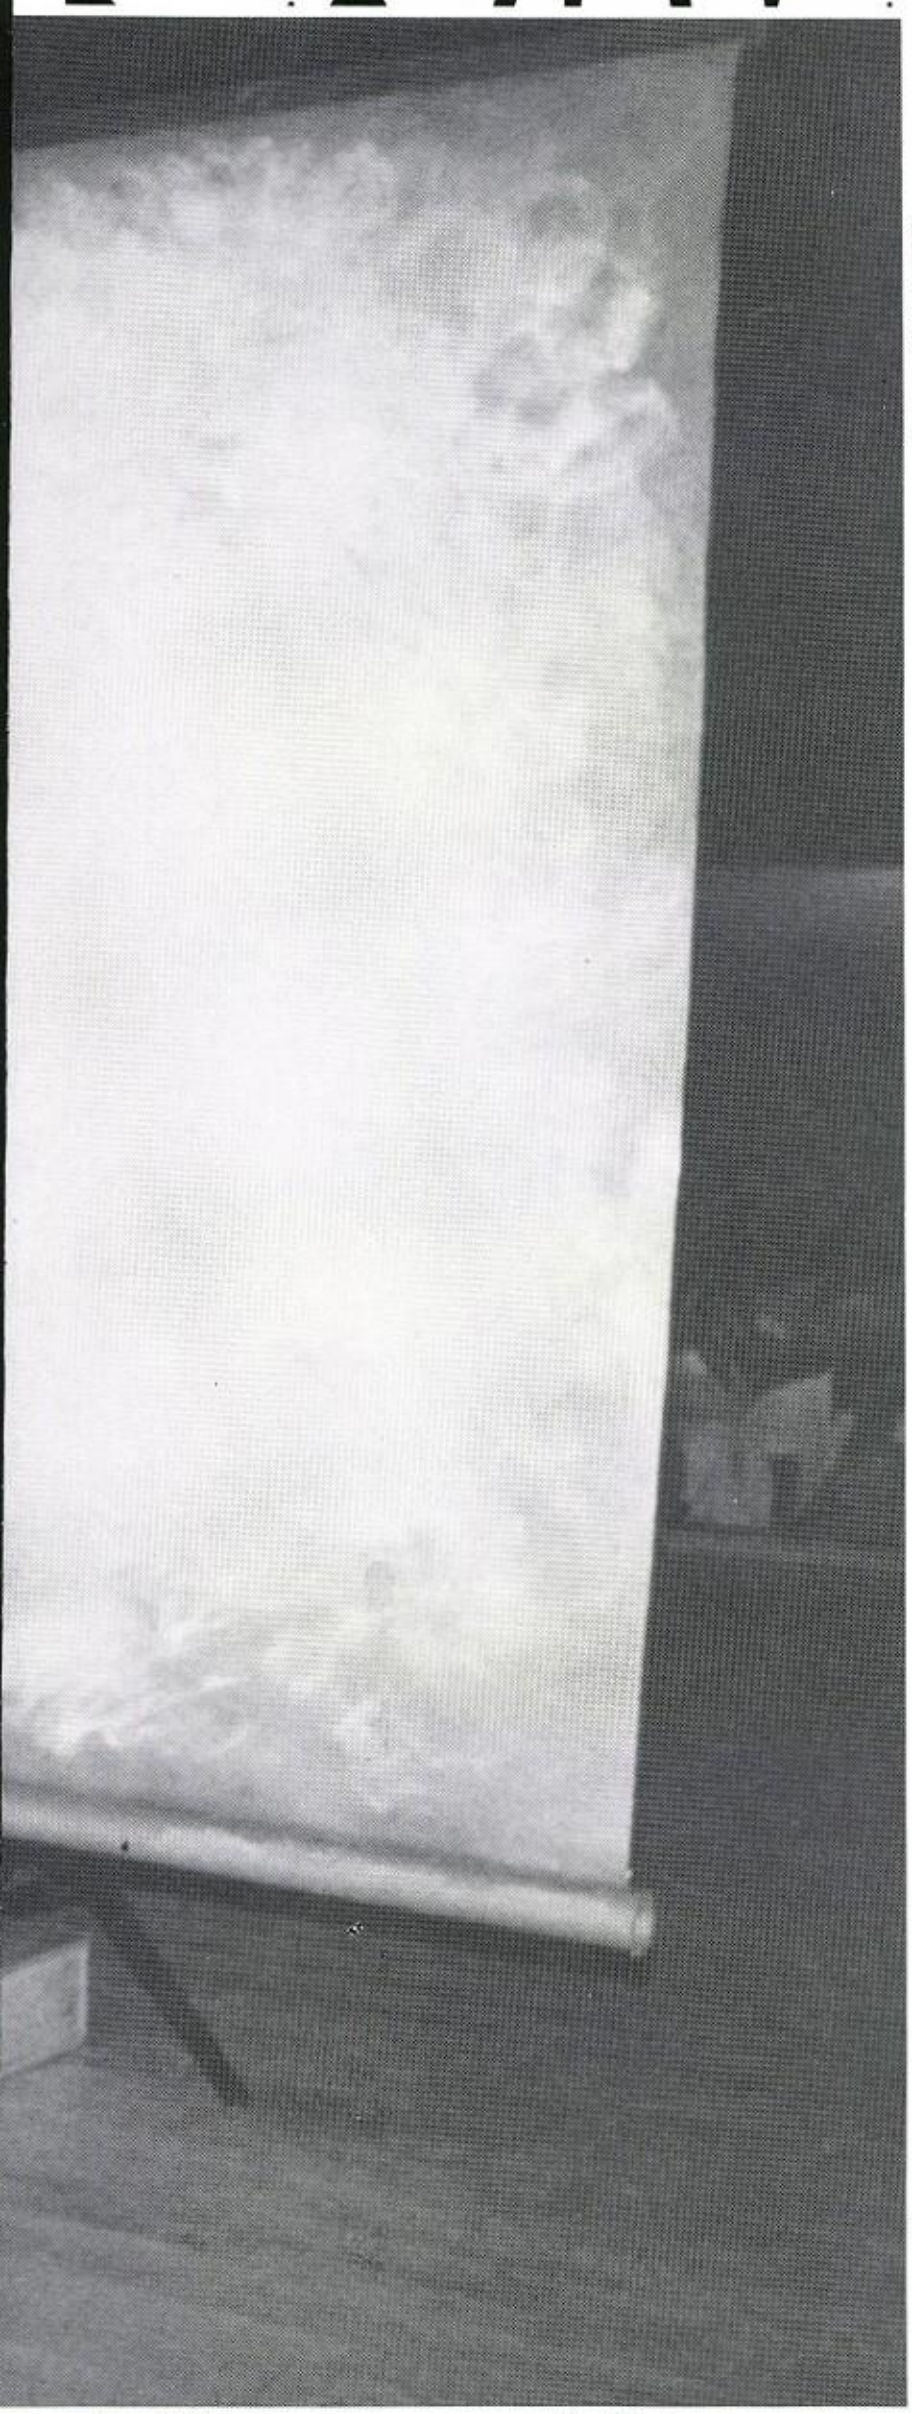
DOUBLE THE FUN IN STUDENT LIFE



"Five More Minutes And Schools Out For The Weekend. I Never Thought This Week Would End."

"Are You Going To That Party Tonight?"

"No, I'm Going To A Double Feature Tonight With My Family."

What A Vacation!

School's Out For The Summer!

It's finally here! Three months of luxurious laziness. No more worrying about homework, projects or getting caught by Mr. Curry in the hallway for "just buying a soda". Now, you can let all of your frustrations out on the waves at the beach. Or maybe your parents decided to have a few months of peace so they put you on a plane that was headed for Florida or California, and some of us were a little luckier and headed over to another country.

There are a lot of us who like to just stay close to home for those three months visiting local parks, wet and exciting water parks, or the perennial summer hangout "Ocean City". Lying under the hot sun all day, and going to clubs and parties at night with new and old friends, boy, that's the life! Other are shipped off to a home away from home you guessed it, summer camp.

You feel as if this paradise will never end, and you didn't realize that your three months of fun and relaxation has just flown by until you return to mom and dad and they tell you its time to buy your school clothes. You try to cram everything in the last week of summer as the final days seem to zoom by. The first day of school is the next day, and you dread the thought of teachers, homework and trying to find another excuse of why you're in the hall without a pass after getting caught by Mr. Curry.

"You're so cuddly", exclaims senior Dana Dickerson and graduate Elaine Sparacino, as they take a quick five minutes to converse with "Sweatheart Bear" at Disneyland, California.

Showing the Army and Airforce Cadets can act like civilians, Kau Kehleay (center) and friends take a moment from their duties at Ft. Meade.

As the bumper sticker says, "Ocean City is for lovers", Krista Story and alumni Robert Strain prove the saying correct.

king along their stuffed animals for support, Crystal Debold and Lois Provenza t ready to board the bus for Pom Pon camp.

Americanizing Germany, NHS exchange students, Ileana Figueroa, Keith Jackson, early graduate Denise Parker, Mary Logan, graduated Senior Genia Jackson, John Perry, and Sophia Edmundson take a break from the long day of shopping and fun.

"The horse is okay", says Mr. Brooks as he gives a big thumbs up for spending the day with his daughter Monica at Disneyworld.

During their honeymoon in Jamacia, Dianne Yohe and her new husband Pat Yohe relax in the cool breeze from the waterfall.

Oh! What A Class . . . . . Night!

Seniors Rule

Yes! Of course, the Seniors took it all! This was the night that the Wildcats all came together as a family, showing their spirit and their strength.

Whoaaoooo! Yeah! Let's go! Those were the sounds from the screaming fans cheering on their class in the all famous tug-a-war, while out of the participants' mouths seeped groans of agony.

Other strange games including the frog leap-cherry search and the marshmallow toss also forced the participants to make mysterious sounds.

"Tie?" Is that what the spokesperson said? Yes, by the end of the ninth game the Seniors and Juniors were tied for first. By now, the fans were hoarse, weak and full of nerves wondering just who would win. As the tenth game began, the Juniors and Seniors faces were full of curiosity and anxiety. The same thought sped through everyone's mind, "Will it be us . . . . or them?"

Finally, the Seniors took the first place position. A surprise victory, but it's not only strength that gives first place, it's also spirit. The Freshman and Sophomores gave it their all. As little as they were, they jumped and screamed as loud as they could. They gave the upperclassmen a tough fight. Seniors won by only a whopping five points, but as least it was a victory.

Showing that we know we can do it, Seniors have faith in their class.

Scrounging around for a paper clip, Sophomore Tricia Mentro, becomes uneasy as her teammates huddle around her, during the Scavenger hunt. A paper clip was one of the more ordinary items. Other stranger Scavenger items included the book Dante's Inferno and a navy blue shoe string both of which nobody had.

During the three-legged race, Juniors Natalie Paulwell and Taleesa Gabriel unknowingly burn the skin around Andrea Benfer's leg, while she screams loudly.

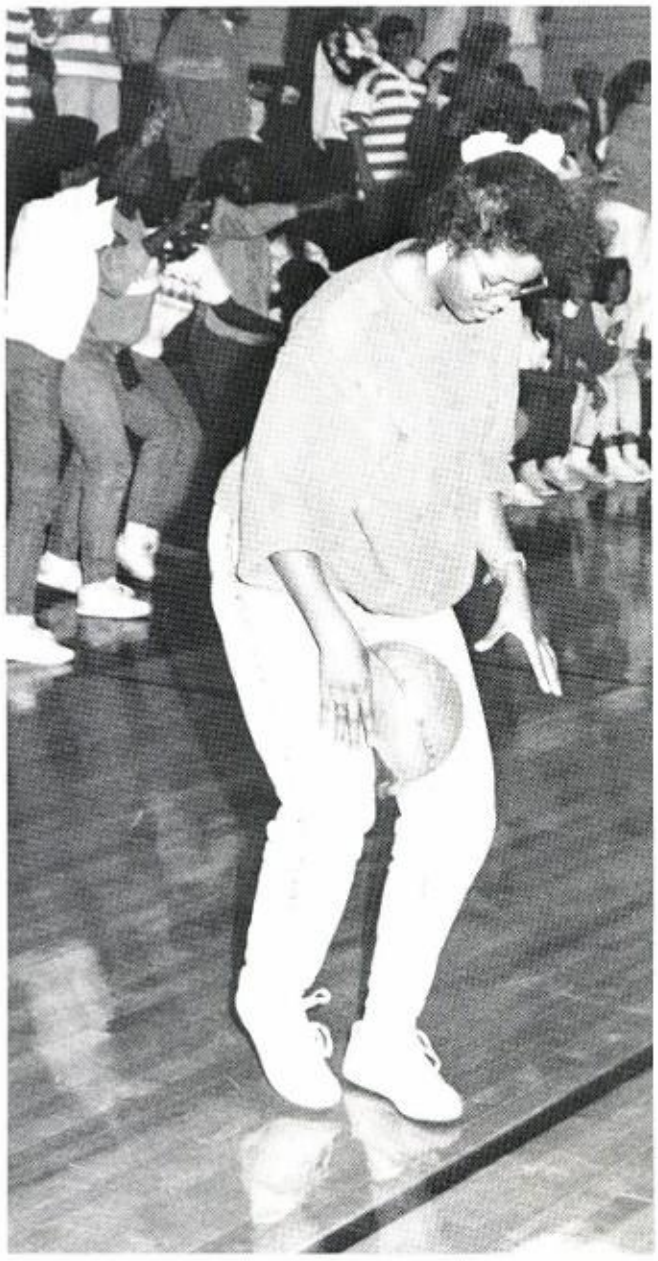
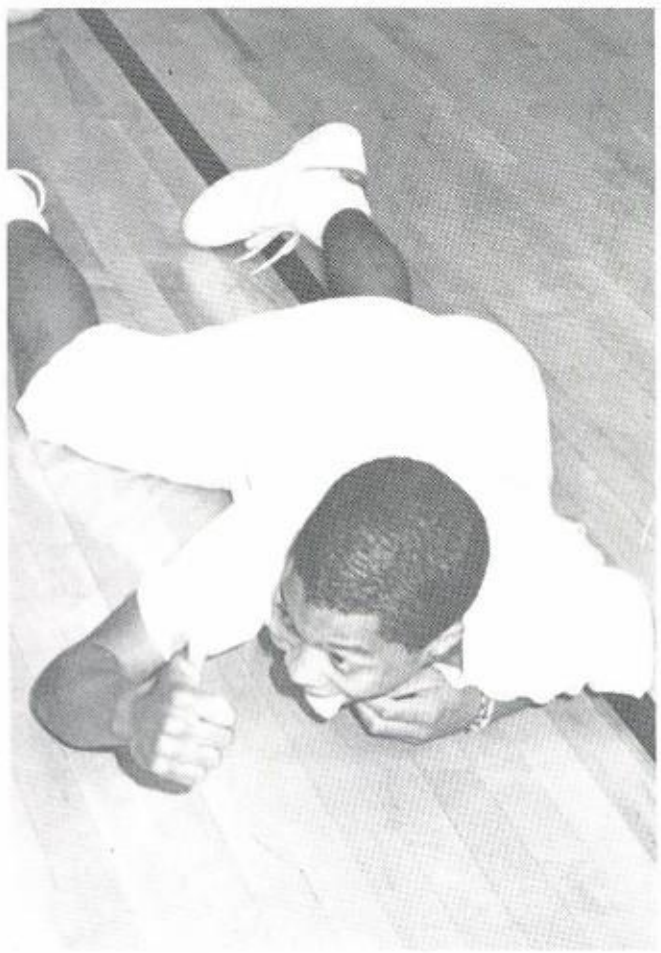
Does he look like he's having fun? With complete concentration, Freshman Randy DeHaven, counts one . . . two . . . three . . . trying to complete the jump rope portion of the obstacle course.

"How do they expect me not to touch this balloon?" This is one of the rules that Senior Deneta Howland becomes irritated by during the balloon hop.





Practicing his push-ups for the obstacle course, Shorty McCray says "Yeah buddy, you know it" as he gives a thumbs up to the Junior class.

To keep his saxophone warm Richard Budd, blows into it so that when he performs is won't squeak.

Lining up for the parade, Anne Wimbrow shows off her Wildcat spirit.

Too serious? No, not really, it's just that when you are in ROTC of the Navy in a routine you have to be serious. The hat must be placed to cover some of your vision, so that you don't become distracted by the crowd.

Hooray For Parades!

Traveling down Adelphi Rd. in the University of Maryland trolley car was a first for the Homecoming Court this year. The court consisted of: Steve Baker, Sonya Taylor, 9th grade; Andre Cameron, Sherry Allen, 10th grade; Jose Burgos, Taleesa Gabriel, 11th grade.

The Lollipop routine was used for the Homecoming parade. Looking at the Northwestern poms you can tell they got down and had fun.

Where's The Parade?

Were you home sleeping late on Saturday, October 10, when all of a sudden your radio clicked on and the familiar voice of Don and Mike known as the Morning Zoo blasted, "Don't forget to attend Northwestern High School's Homecoming Parade and Carnival starting at 10 pm. today. As you rolled over you mumbled to yourself, "I must be hearing things." Well the truth was you weren't the Student Government Association worked on getting the word out about the parade and sent announcements to all radio stations and newspapers.

The '87-'88 parade took a new route and began at P.G. Plaza. The parade traveled up Toledo Road, to Adelphi and ended at the auditorium parking lot. The parade route changed this year according to SGA president, Sophia Edmundson because, "We wanted to extend our limitation, get everyone welcomed who lived so far out, let the wildcat spirit flow in the air." Other ways the SGA extended their welcome to the community was to invite local representatives such as the Brentwood Eagle-Ettes, a majorette group, the Mayor of Hyattsville, Tom Bass, and the College Park Fire Department to participate in the parade.

Getting Psyched

Pep-Rally

Has your day just been one class after another?! If so, we have the answer.

Lets go to a Pep-rally! Get up, get dressed, and get your act together! Because every year we show our spirit for our football team by holding strange and unusual events and we need you there!

We first start out with a cheer to see who can cheer the loudest. Then all the players, coaches, and managers are introduced one by one. The cheerleaders are also on hand to assist each class with 15 seconds of continuous screaming, showing which class has the most spirit. After that one football player from each grade gets a female partner and participates in a relay event exchanging clothes.

Then to get everyone really fired up up, the band plays the fight song. This gets everyone on their feet. And to top it off we get to see the Pom-Pons perform with grace and precision. So be sure you're at school for the next PEP-RALLY!!

Is this an alien? No, it's Mark Sager showing that he has more than class spirit; he's a true wildcat fan.

Firing up the Freshman class, the cheerleaders lead them with the Cheer called "Give me a W for the Wildcats.

The Senior class and the pom pons prove that they have more spirit.

Expectation fills these poms, Dana Dickerson, Krista Odum, and Cindy Toth, as the spirit of homecoming rises.

The spirit of the Sophmores are shown in their red hot cheers.

Look! What Are Those Moving Masses?

What? You really think that's a mountain? Well, if you stayed up all night working on those floats, I'm sure you would know what they are really supposed to be.

Massive mounds of chicken wire, paper mache' with globs of paint, they sometimes turned out to be a bundle of nothing but garbage.

Fun and friends! Those were the key words. Goofing off, eating McDonald's food, and wondering, "How will this thing work?" Building the float turned out to be a "fun social event," according to Kenny Morgan, a senior who donated his house as one of the float building sites.

Who??? Each class, freshmen, sophomores, juniors and seniors, all competed to make a parade float depicting the theme, "Bring out the wildcat in you." All classes had a house, a sponsor, and a bunch of spirited students eager to win the float-building contest.

And this year's winner was the junior class! Those were huge, mangled pieces of art. Yeah! That's what they were.

Protecting their Wildcat den, these eight seniors whose faces were made up by Jackie Codi and Chris Kerdock show off their costumes made by Mrs. Zimmerman, the home economics teacher here at Northwestern. The senior's human float got a second place banner.

Hey, even though the Sophomores came in last place, they still march with their float of chicken wire and paper mache.

corated with balloons and banners, Jenell

ded by Jamie Brewster.

"Jabba the Wildcat" (nicknamed by the Juniors and Seniors for its large size) is the center of attention for the freshmen who proudly walk next to their Wildcat creation.

The dreaded morning before the parade. All our classes made slight alterations to their floats as they sat in the parking lot of Prince Georges Plaza awaiting the start of the parade. Amy Cosgrove lends a hand to the freshmen float.

"Oh no, The parade is about to start!" Don't worry I've got it covered thinks Ivett Sithithavorn, as she touches up the cheerleader jeep before the parade.

Towering over the crowd was the 12-foot tall Junior float. The Wildcat exploding out of the chest of the football player is in its 3rd year running and has proven itself a winner as the class of 89 takes first place for its 3rd straight year at Northwestern.

As the referee watches for errors, the look on his face shows that Erwin (Erke) Forbes has all the right moves.

Is the mysterious mascot Don Bruns or does he still not have a name?

As the varsity players run through the pom and cheerleader tunnel, Julian Blair breaks through the crash sign that has a secret message, "Beat the Parkdale Panthers!"

Double The Surprise

GO FIGHT WIN

Action Packed

"Watch out for that wave, ch-ch-watch out for that wave!"

'And now the NHS varsity football team." Covering the grass green field with their navy blue and white, the varsity players lined up for their final warm-up before the Homecoming kick-off.

With the temperature rising both on and off the field, many people realized it wasn't being caused by the game alone. Unlike the preceding seven years, the air was dry and it wasn't raining.

A lot of work had gone into this Homecoming and a few changes. For starters the University of MD had their radio station (WMUC) there to announce and conduct the ceremonies.

But the biggest change was the final score: 29 to zero. Northwestern had finally won their Homecoming game after a record of 7 years of losses.

Some people didn't expect us to win, but others such as Kevin Monroe "knew we would win because of Parkdale's record and that we were ready to defeat them!"

Sharon Humes and Jose Burgos said "We knew we would beat them on the field and in the drill contest before the game."

With the game ending at 4:30 there wasn't much time to go home and get ready for the Homecoming Dance of victory.

Is that a look of astonishment on Stephan Brantley's face as Tom Mooney (#7) and fellow wildcats tackle the opposing panthers in pursuit of the football in the air?

As LaJuan Huff stands at attention for the Star Spangled Banner, do thoughts of a victory cross her mind?

Double The Ambiance

Moonlighting

They came by night, some came by car, some came in duets and some came alone. But they all came to celebrate the victory of the wildcats.

Excitement filled the air as Northwestern students arrived at the dance. For the girls attending, the preparation began long in advance; the perfect dress had to be found for this evening. The latest styles were off the shoulder dresses and mini dresses; the fashionable colors were black and white.

As they danced the night away, to the latest dances the whip and the wop, or they just did their own thing. To enhance the night the High Steppers had a prepared dance routine. Also there was a dance by royalty the Homecoming King and Queen and their court.

To end the ambiance of the night, , some walked by night, some walked by day Moonlighting Strangers . . . . . .

There is no need for a partner as Andrea Davis dances alone.

This couple, Sean Vortis and Darcia Williams sure know how to boogie.

Looking at the list a group of girls pick out their favorite songs.

DOUBLE THE USE!

A Locker's Story

I was a short locker on the bottom row of the B-wing 3rd floor. In the summer of "87" I was looking forward to a new year of school. Last year I had been abandoned by a student who was withdrawn. This year I was hoping for someone to use me. I'm afraid I got more than I had bargained for!

On August 29th a student, I'll call her "Jeni" was assigned to me. For the first few weeks she was sticking her books and lunch in me and I thought it was going to be an easy year. Then she brought her friend, I'll call her "Kimi", to me who stuffed me full of books, lunches, jackets, mirrors, and poms. Boy, was I ever jampacked, from bottom to top, I could barely hear anything.

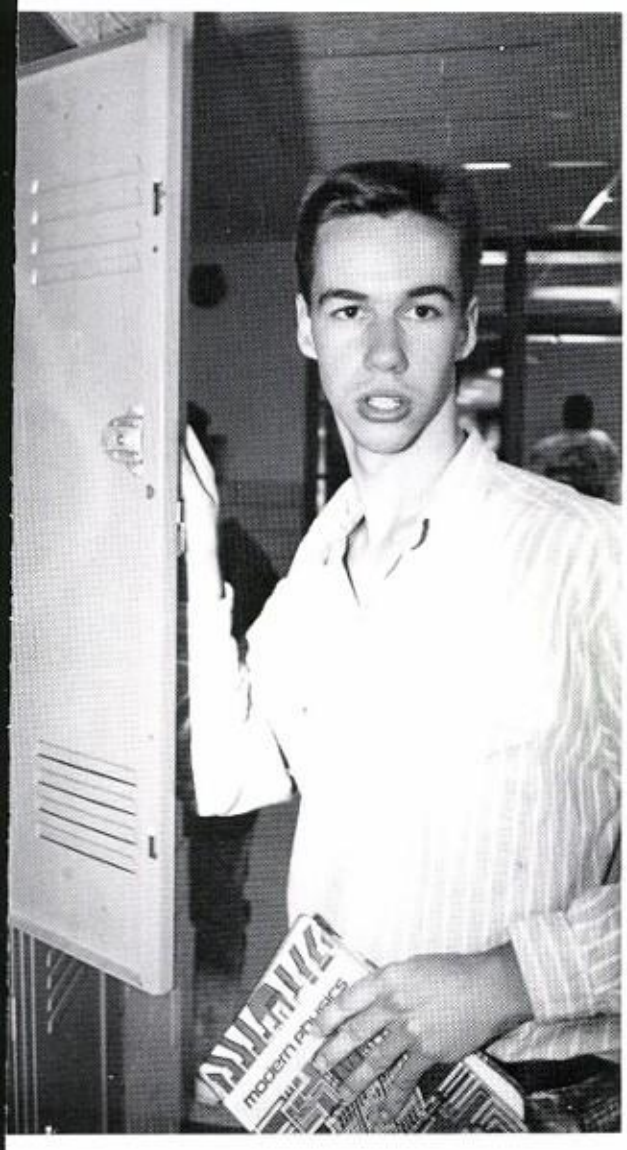
Toward the winter it got cold and this brought out the wearing of heavy coats, and you know what this meant! Those girls were using their behinds to get my doors shut. It got so bad that every time the bell rang I would hold my breath and pray for those five minutes to hurry and go by.

And now it is almost summer vacation and despite all the stuffing and slamming of the doors, I know I will really miss my new friends. But as much as I'll miss these new friends I wish I could give my spot on the crowded B-wing 3rd floor for a quiet one on the C-wing first floor.

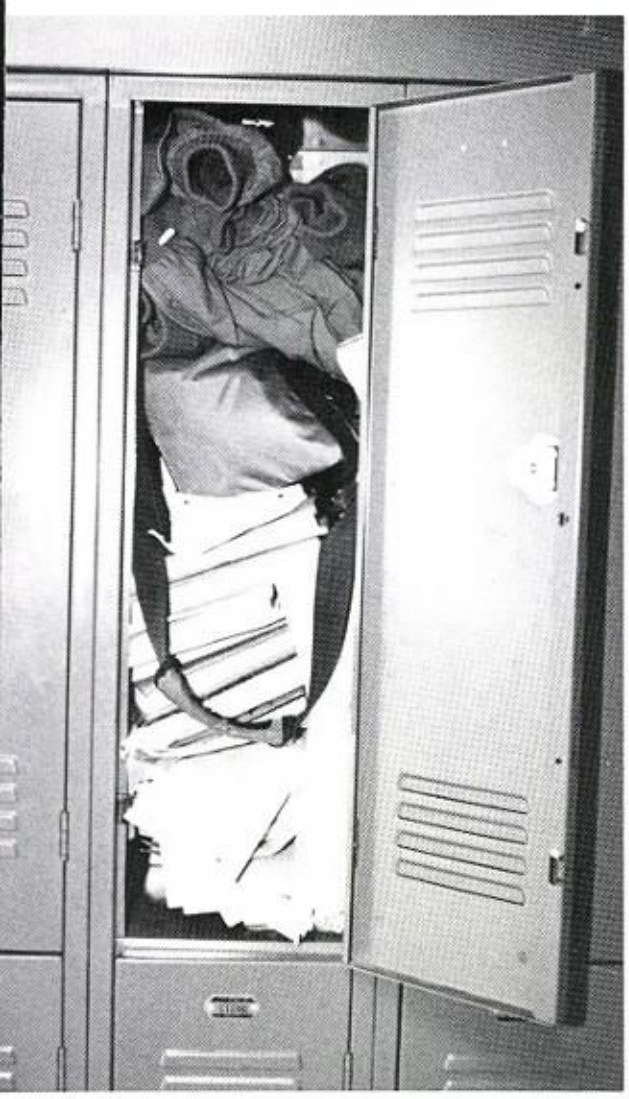
The Mighty Herculocker

Double stuffed lockers! Two students on the B-wing 3rd floor compare their lockers and see whose is the most stuffed.

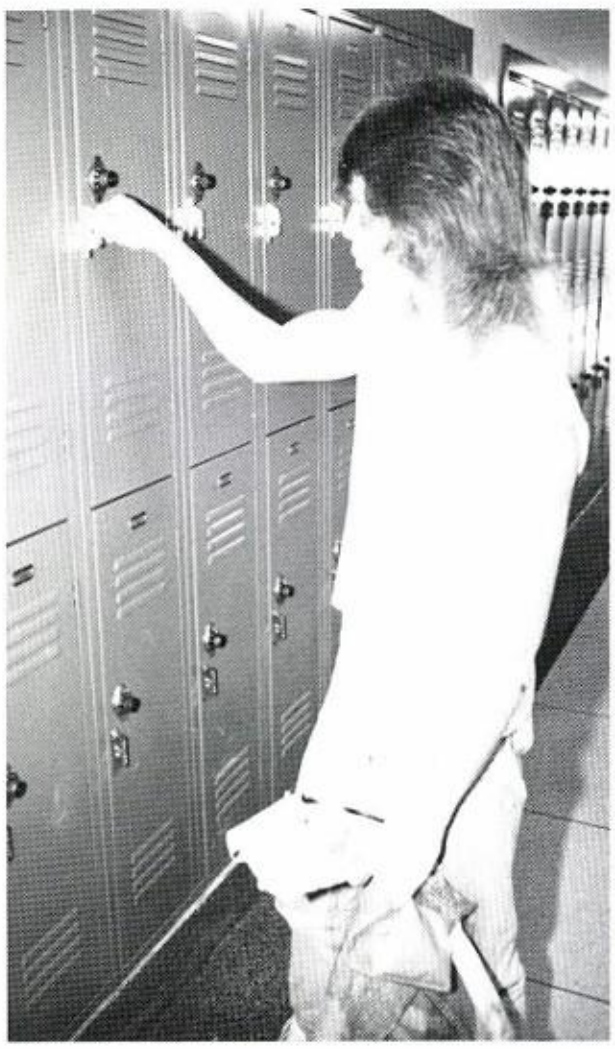
Trying to make it to 8th period on time, Chris Babbitt, snatches his physics book from his B-wing locker without pause.



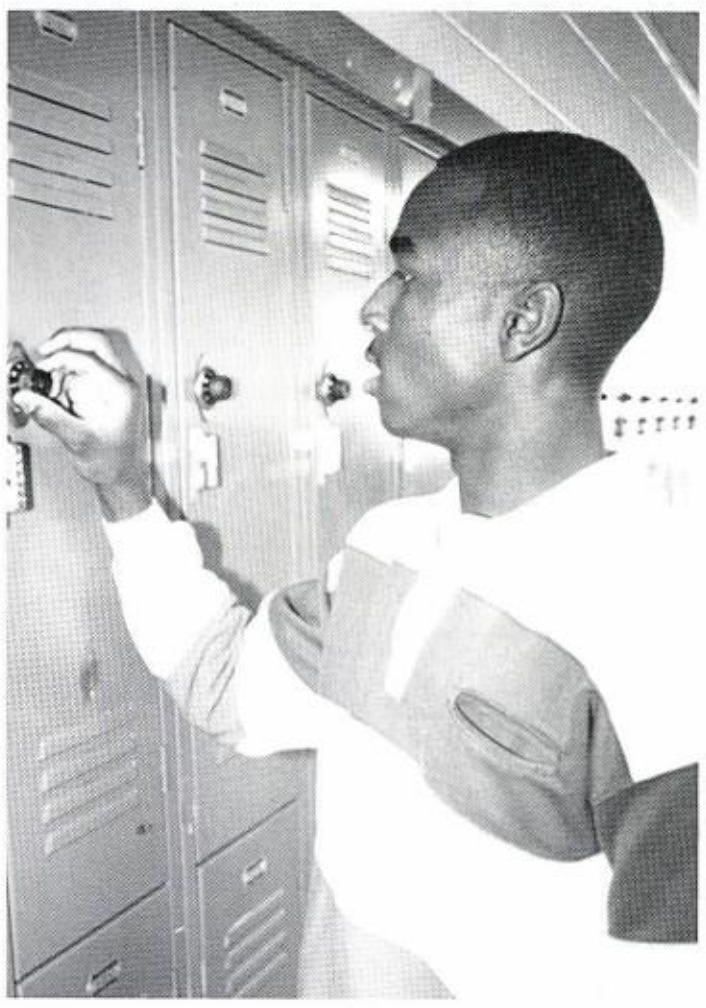
THE LOCKERLESS HALL, 5 minutes after the 3:25 bell rings, these lonely halls are usually cleared.



Puff! Puff! Bet this A-wing Locker has had a hard time breathing.



A locker is a good place to stash a jacket, and Ronnie Knight is doing just that as he visits his locker before school.



5-21-7? or is it 7-21-5? "Man these lockers are illi n'" says Mark Henry as he opens his locker on the B-wing after school.

These are some well know items that Northwestern students shop for. From this list you could pick out the various styles at Northwestern. One would be the preppy look. It consists of fitted or worn out looking jeans, sweaters with turtlenecks,, as well as sweatsuits. Another would be the business look: for the girls this means blouses with a skirt and for the boys this means a shirt with a tie and slacks. This look is often accessorized with gold jewlery.

Is it fad or fashion? Well a lot of the clothing being worn today was also worn in the early 50's and late 60's some examples include mini-skirts and petti-coats.

With the various styles you find at Northwestern, you can gladly say that Northwestern students have got the look.

Lost In Emotion

Growing Pains

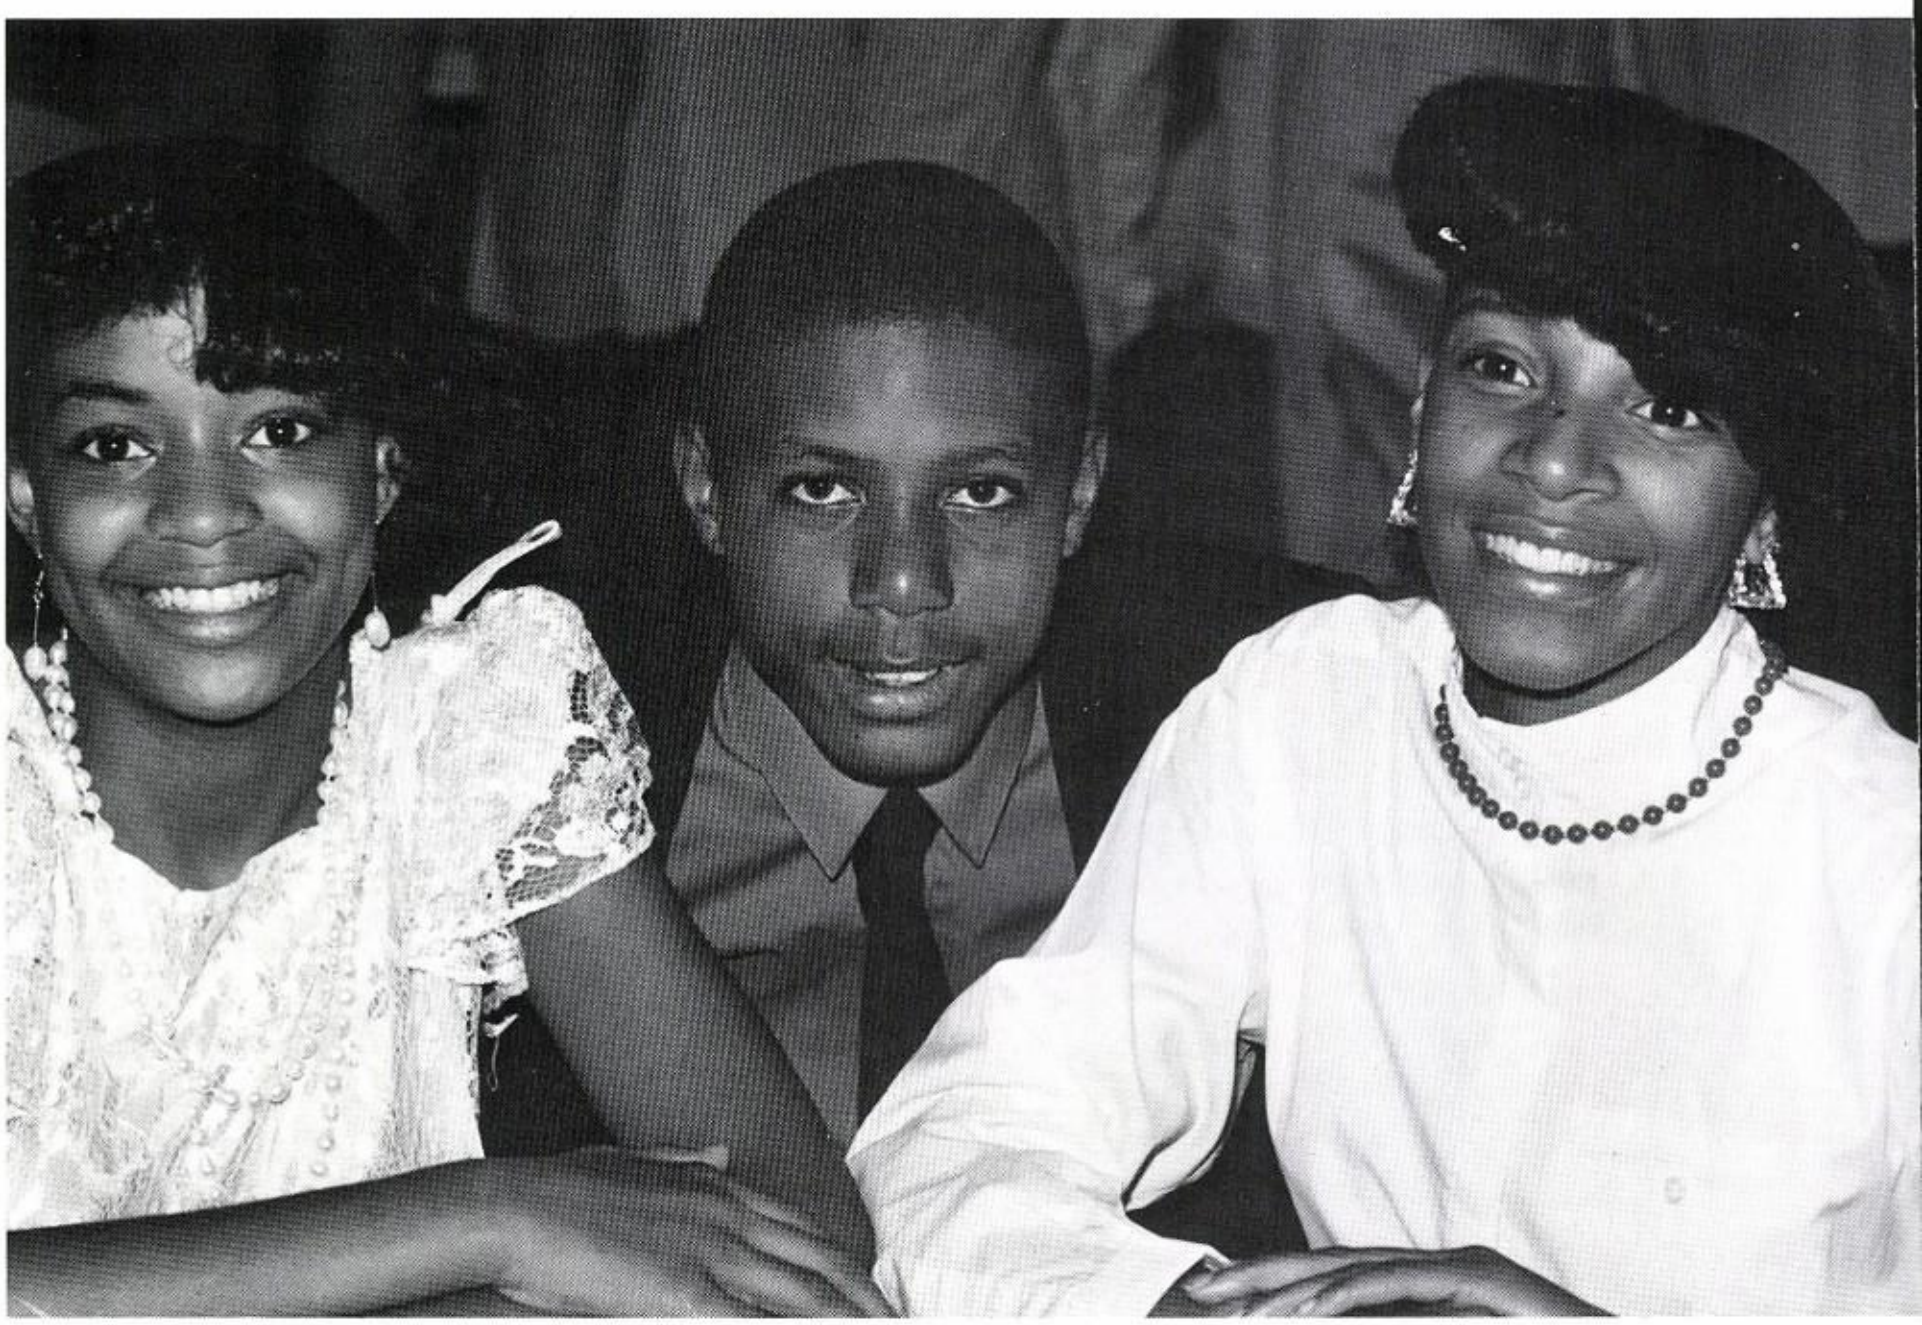
How do you feel when you hear those famous lines:
1. I don't have any gas money.
2. I have to watch my little sister.
3. I have to work.
4. The car is in the shop.
5. I have to go out with the family.

How do you feel when you are turned down for a date? Face it, not one of these excuses work anymore. Deep down inside you are hurt. That date you were turned down for might have been the most important date of your life.

Instead of telling girls the truth about why they can't go out on a date most boys make up an excuse. Most boys also, according to girls, are afraid to tell girls what's really on their minds. They will act like they don't care what a girl thinks about them. When boys get around their friends they will "Play it off". If a boy never tells a girl how he feels, how will she know that he is interested in her? How can she react to his actions?

Besides girls turning them down at the last minute boys often complain that most girls are afraid to tell boys that they are interested in them. They will also "Play it off". Girls will say anything to make it seem like they are the ones making an effort in the relationship. The Guys are not mind readers. They can't tell what's on a girl's mind.

By reading the remarks on the next page, you will be able to see what Girls think about guys and Guys think about girls.



"Lucky me", says William as he holds on to Donna and Ranetta.

Lisa Wayne and Christy Bosworth show the boys what they are missing.

Boys Say Girls Are . . .

1. only after boys for their money.
2. after boys who drive a "bumpin" car.
3. too materialistic.
4. afraid to ask a boy out on a date.
5. always eager to go out, but having no where to go.
6. always wanting someone to call them when they don't make an effort to call that person.
7. getting too serious now a days.
8. always wanting their way.
9. always standing boys up for a date.
10. always pretending to be someone they're not.

Girls Say Boys . . .

1. acting like someone they're not.
2. wanting girls just to say that they have one.
3. only looking at the way a girl looks on the outside.
4. are too much into going to the Go-Go.
5. don't showing their real feelings.
6. really hurt when a girl turns them down for a date.
7. are too much into making money.
8. only thinking about getting their own ride. (car)
9. always say that the girl in the car is their cousin.
10. are after girls with money.

This is my man", says Jackie Love as she clings to Jesse Neil.

As Brent Davis and Leonard Burton try out their new rap on Tracy Williams they politely get turned down.

Getting to school early, many students have time to converse in front of the building.

Getting A Head Start

Early Birds

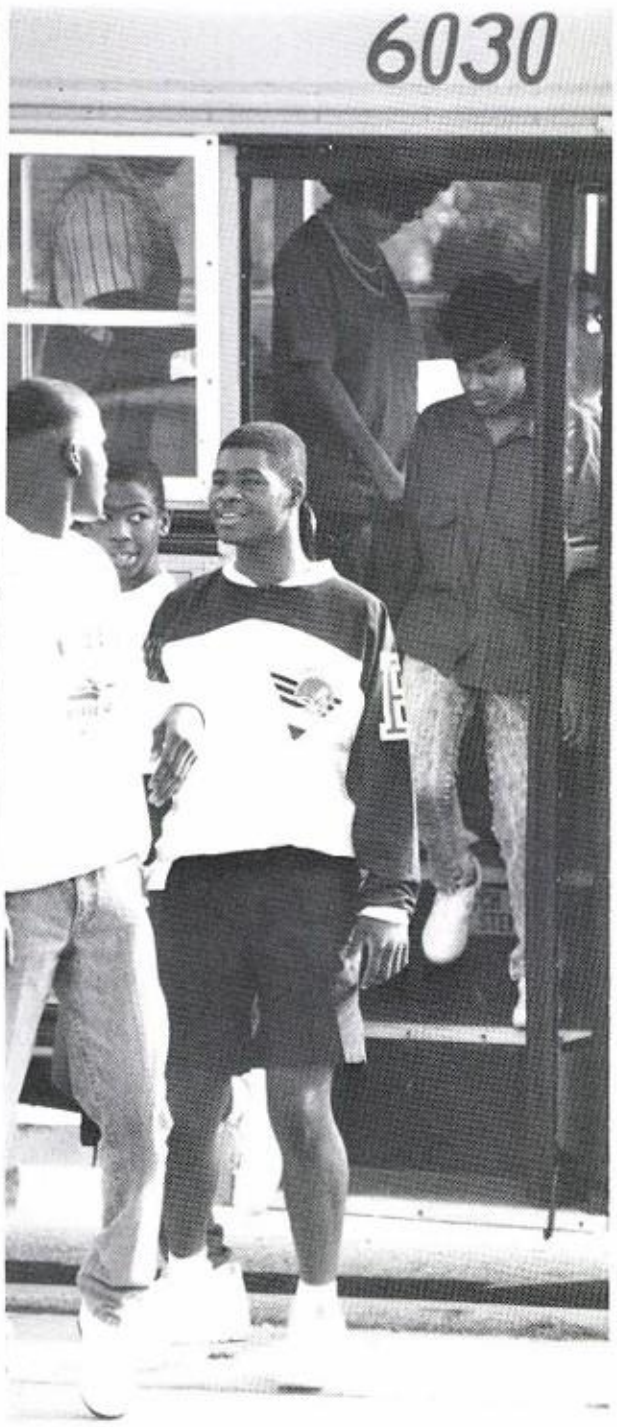
If school starts at 8:55, why were so many people here almost an hour early? Was it because they really loved school so much, that they wanted to spend every spare moment of their life here? Probably not. More than likely, the reason was to get things done.

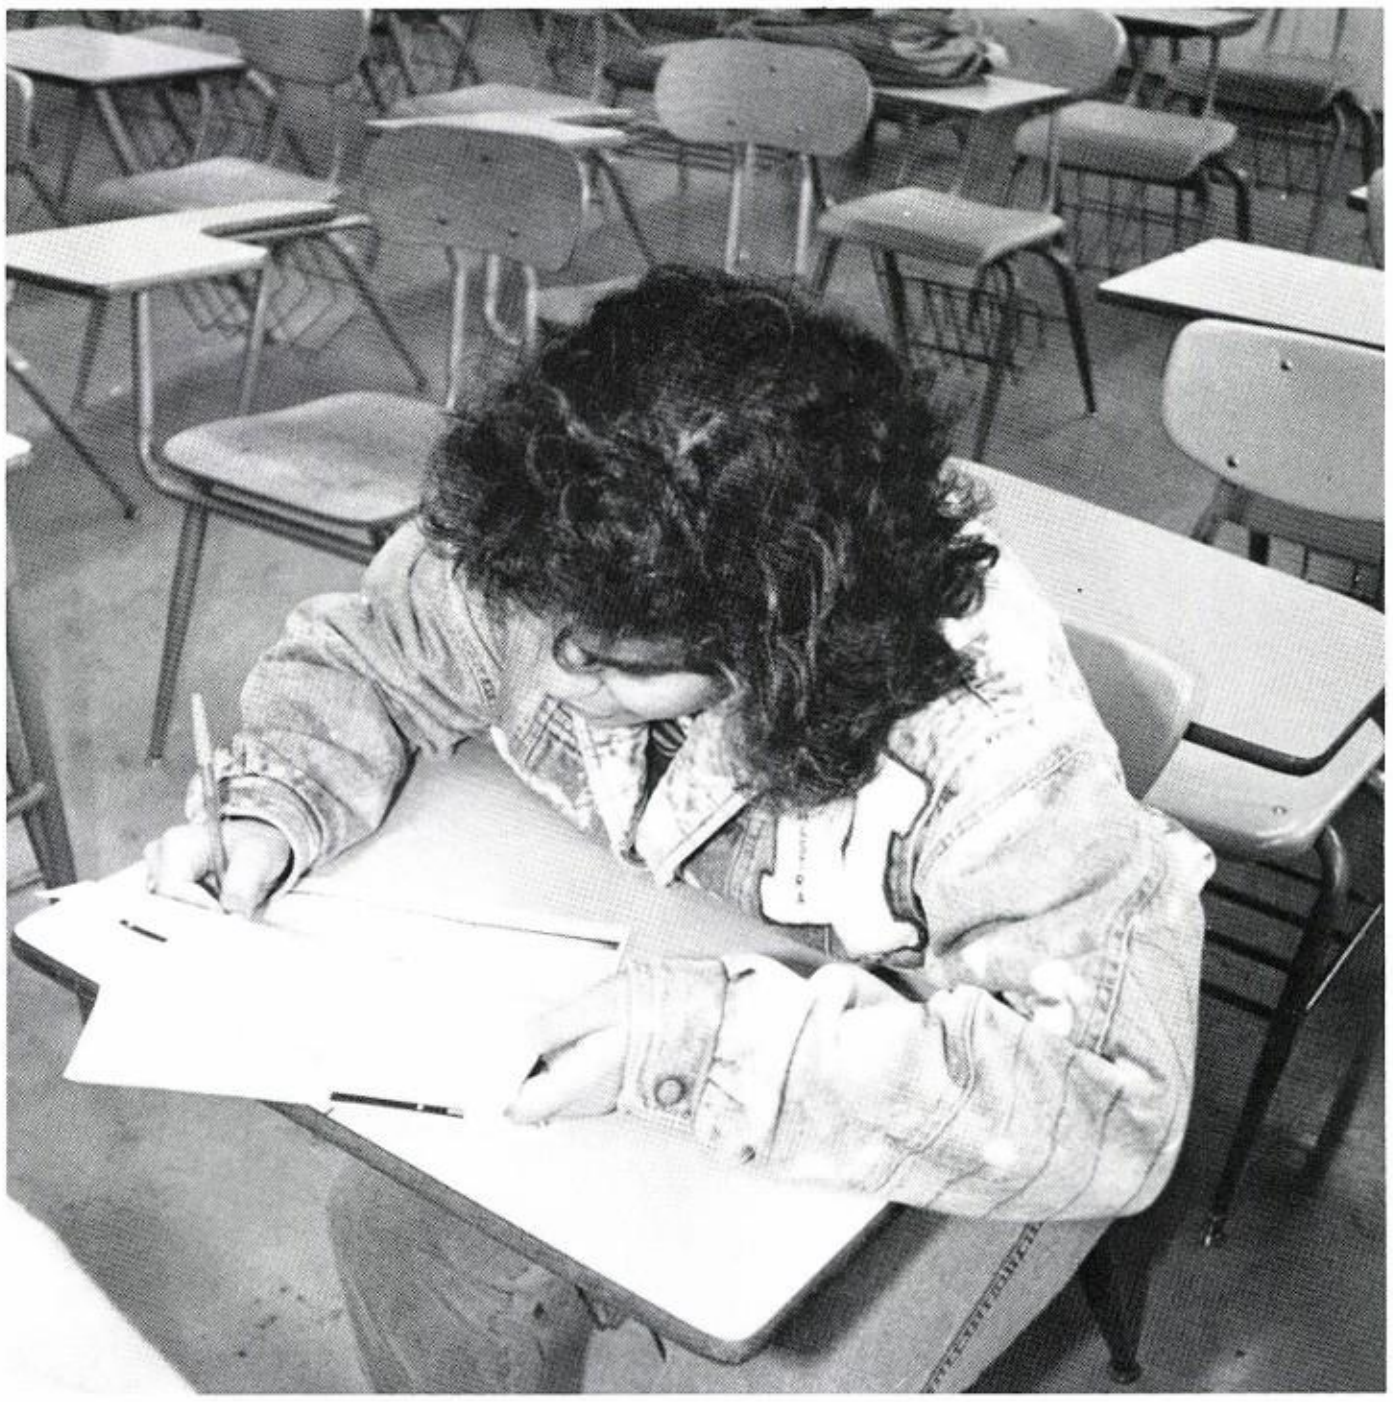
That may have meant finishing up last night's homwork, studying for a test in first period, making up that quiz you missed last week from being ill, or going to the library to start your next big report. For some people, arriving early could have been because they didn't want to ride the school bus and their only ride was from their parents who left for work at 7 am. Or maybe students came early just to socialize with their friends or to catch up on the latest gossip.

Whatever the reason was, by 8:15 many students could be found in the hallways, getting ready for the day ahead of them.

Many students arrive at school almost an hour before first period actually starts.

Coming off of bus number 6030, marks only the beginning of the day for some students.





Waiting for some friends to get off their bus, these students have plenty of time before their first class.

Making up an English test before school, Ingrid Valladares shows why she's an Early Bird.

Cafeteria Duty

. . . The Dirty Work!

A half-eaten banana and a peanut butter sandwich lying in a puddle of diet Pepsi. Who would want to touch it? You!? Of course not! Some students don't have a choice. Why? It was because they were too lazy to dump their trash.

Laziness has no satisfaction. It would be so much easier for one to take his tray and trash to the trash cans than for him to clean up after the people who also were too lazy to take their tray back. These people were sneaky and escaped without being noticed . . . or they probably pushed all of their trash over to where someone else was sitting.

Mr. Curry assigns cafeteria duty to many students daily. These people sweep, pick up trash, and end up being late to their next class.

The school put the trash cans in the lunchroom for a reason . . . to put trash in.

Sweeping the halls is a part of Tim Fulp's cafeteria duty.

Mr. Curry assigns cafeteria duty to about 15 students a d w many of these students can you count who are escaping cafeteria duty?

Cafeteria duty isn't too bad for Laura Ager who seems to be enjoying herself.

Keeping an eye out for flying paper, Patrick Llerena watches as his friends get caught.

Have You Ever Been Frustrated

School Hassles

Have you ever walked down the hall and see to your surprise a person pounding on a soda machine? Most likely that same student was yelling and screaming because he wanted his stolen money back.

Have you ever been at lunch and tried to finish a term paper that's due the next period?

Have you ever missed the bus and ran as fast as you could to school but you arrived at the door of your class just as the late bell rang?

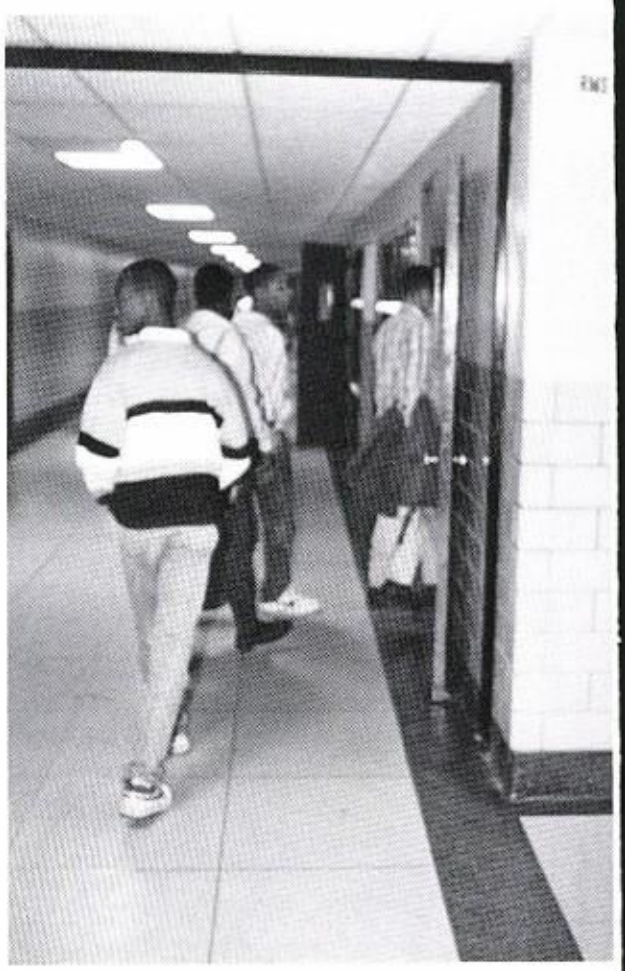
Have you ever ran to class to study for a test five minutes before it is given?

Have you ever spent hours preparing for a test only to go to class to find out it was cancelled?

If you answered, "yes" to any one of these questions, you've suffered from school frustrations.

Here are a few ways to lessen the strain.

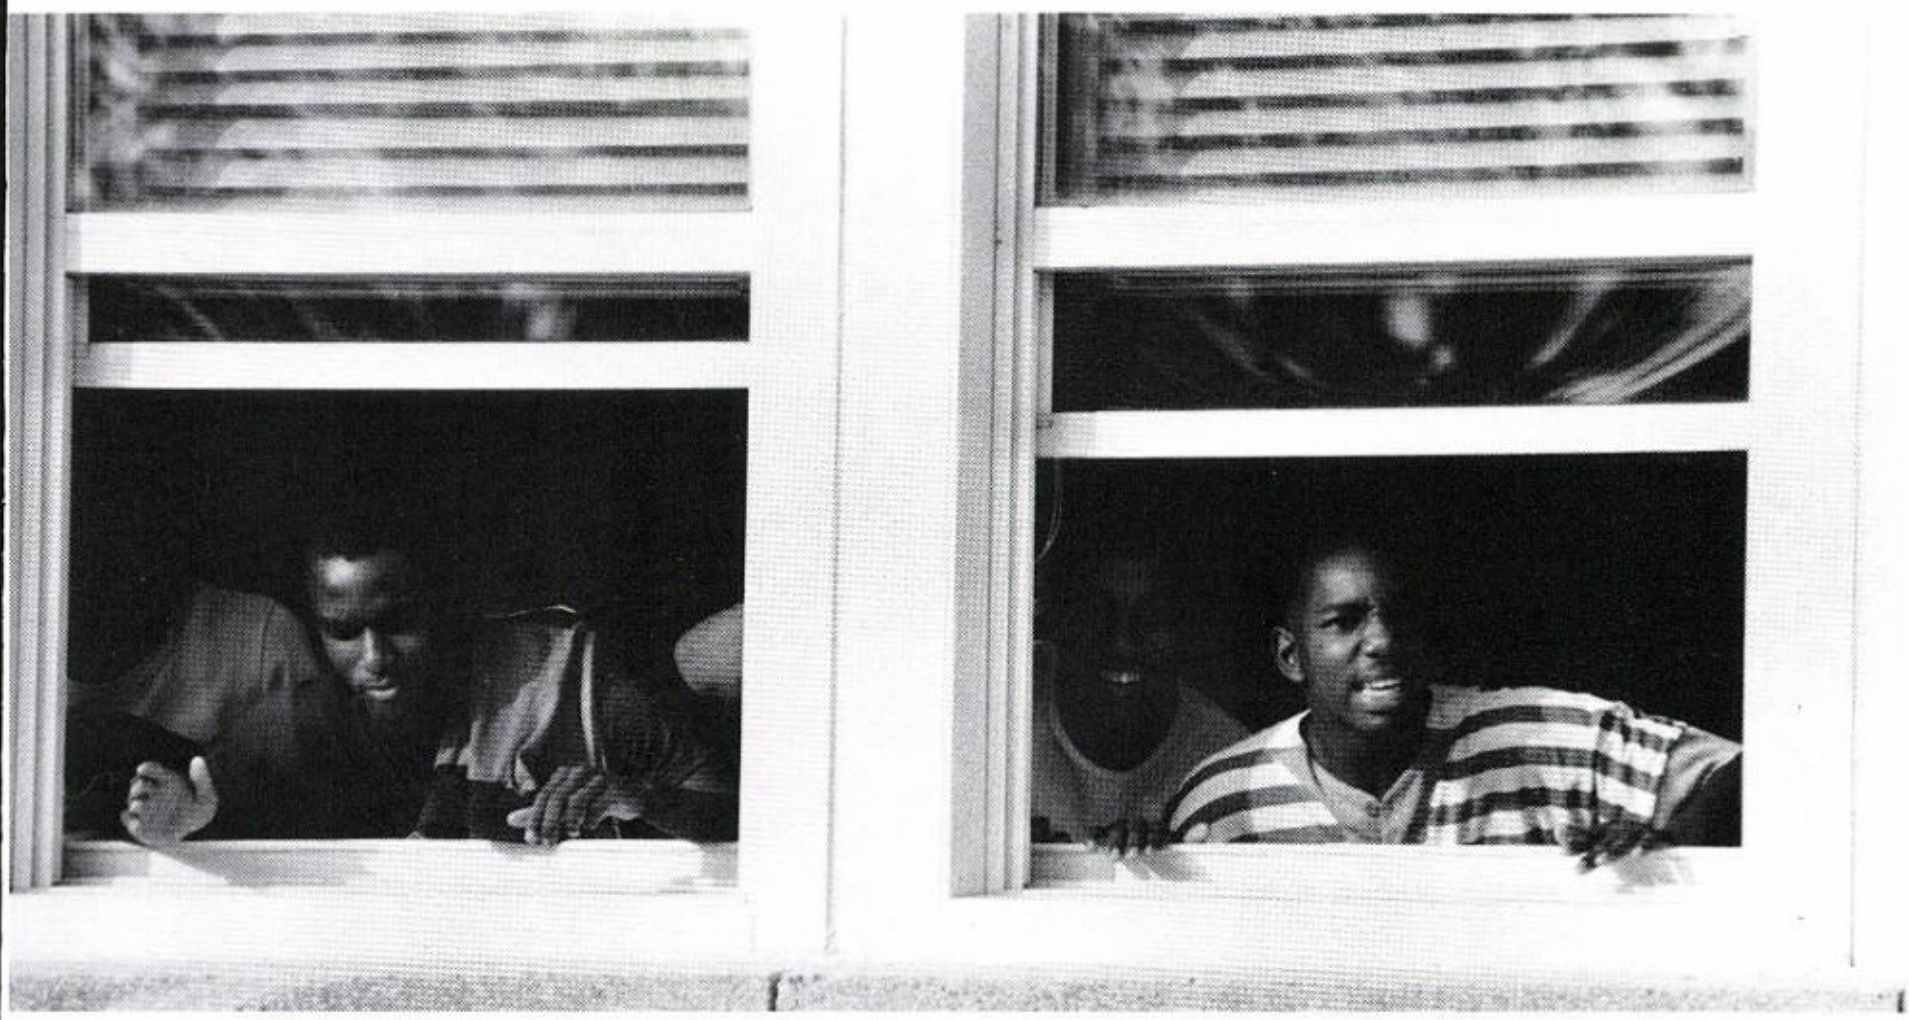
1- Never be the first person to use a soda machine.
2- Do your term paper the night before.
3- Get up at 5:30 am. instead of ten minutes before the bus leaves.
4- Study for the test the night before and if it is cancelled just think at least you are prepared for when it is given.

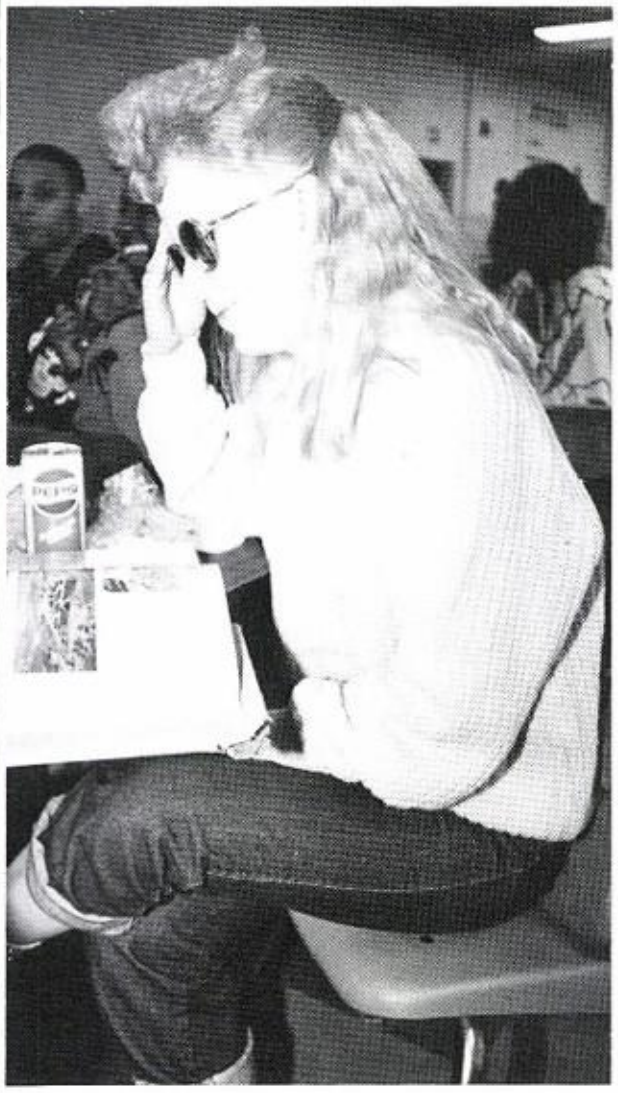


Quickly running, these students are trying to get to class before the bell rings.

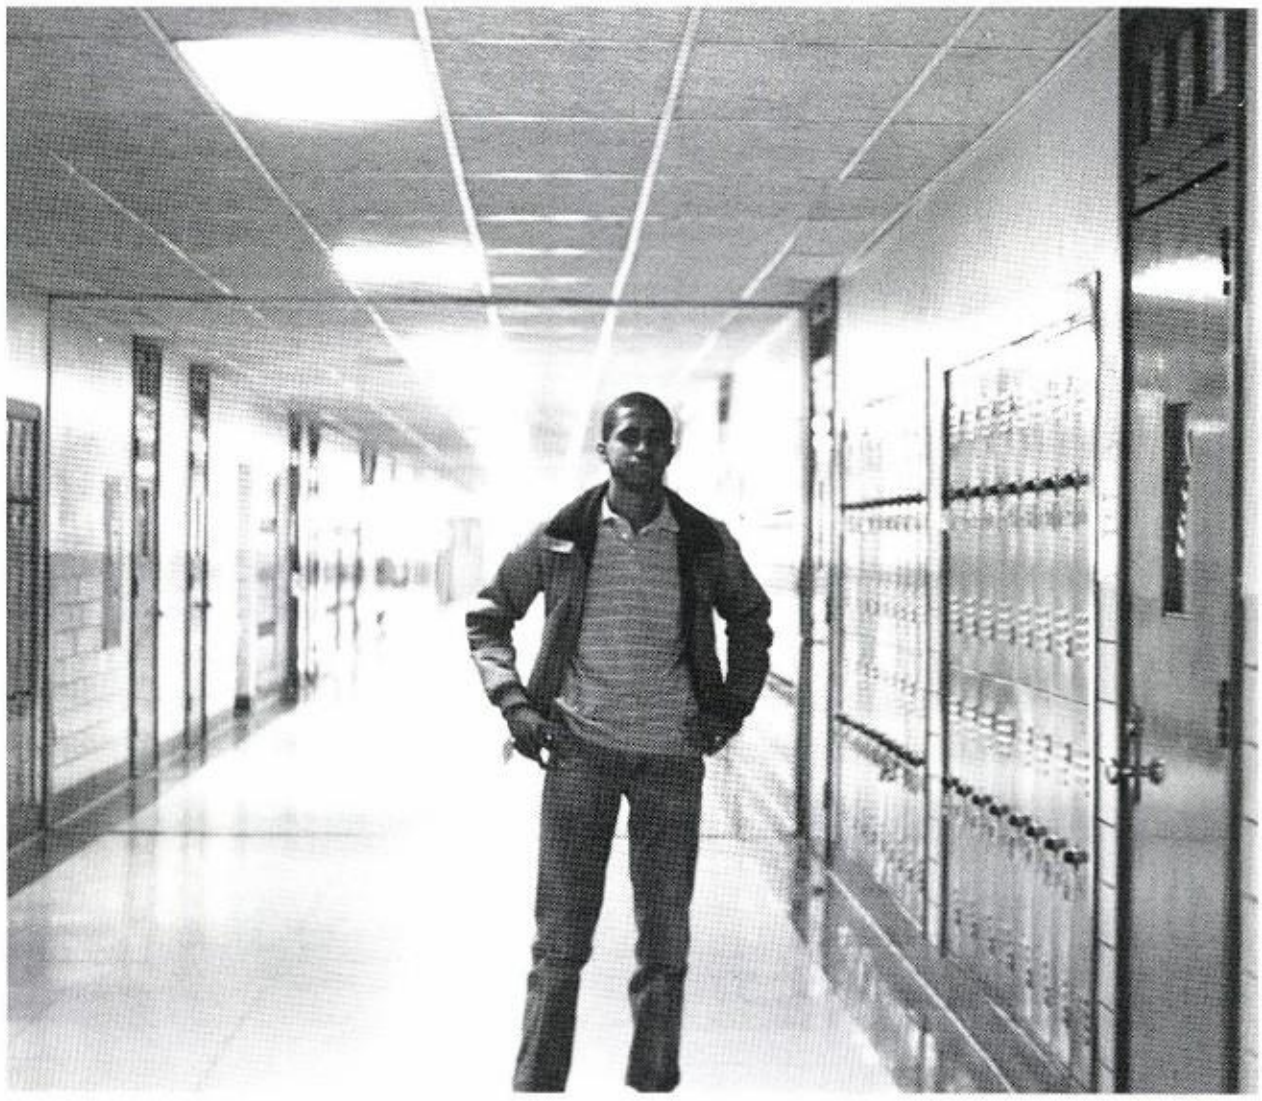
Frustrated, Chris Kerdock and John Feeney get out of class to paint.

Wishing it was 3:25 so they could run to their bus are Mark Henry, and Nigel Pinnock





During lunch, Sophomore Meredith Lattin quickly studies for a test.



Already late for class, Jhamaul Hanner takes his time to get there.

Def Jam '88

Showtime

You just had to be there—for the greatest show on earth, Talent show '88. Under the direction of Coach John Brooks and his wonderful stage crew, the students of Northwestern put on dance groups, Go-Go bands, and many individual singers.

The highlight of the show was the performance by the "Untouchables". Using modern day dancing, Nikki Sales, Lajuan Huff, Keisha White, Erica Washington, and Sandy Daily shocked the whole student body, as they danced to "More Base".

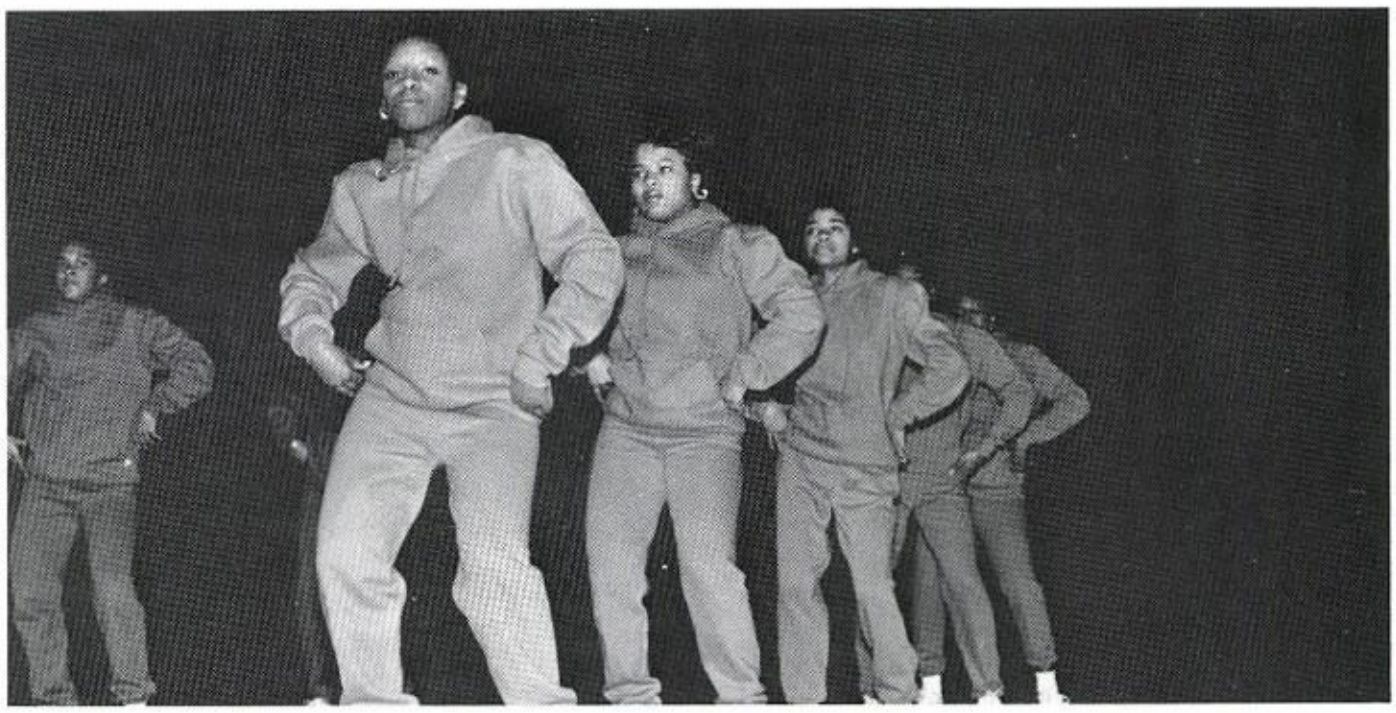
The talent show was held on December 23. The first show sold about 200 tickets. The second show sold about 500 or more tickets. This just goes to show you how much talent Northwestern really has.

Singing "We've Only Just Begun" from the heart is Kevin Monroe.

Being a member of the D.C Youth Ensemble gives Jocelyn McKenzie her stage presence as she fills the room with magic when she sings "Imagination."

The leader of the pack, Our master of Ceremonies, Coach John Brooks, leads the acts into a great performance.

"I Feel Good All Over" sings Pam Johnson as she shows off her talent.



Spicing up the talent show with a soulful rendition of "Everything Must Change" is Mark Dorsey.

Jo Jo leads the Highsteppers through some moves as they danced to "Cat In the Hat".

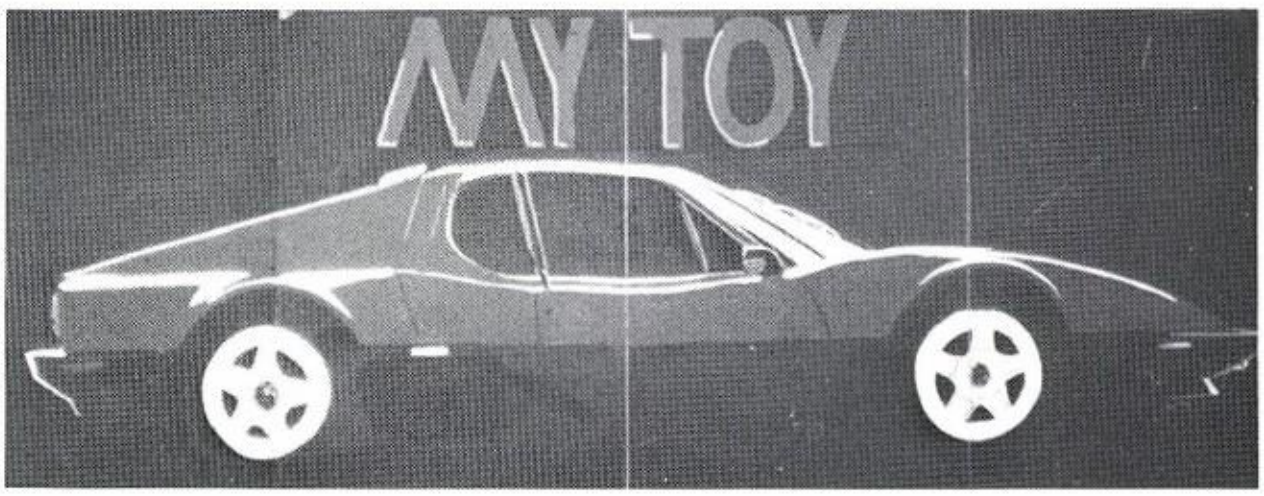
Grooving to the beat of his own drums is Sharmba Mitchell, a member of the Go-Go band, "Paradise".

Art . . It's Here . . . . . .

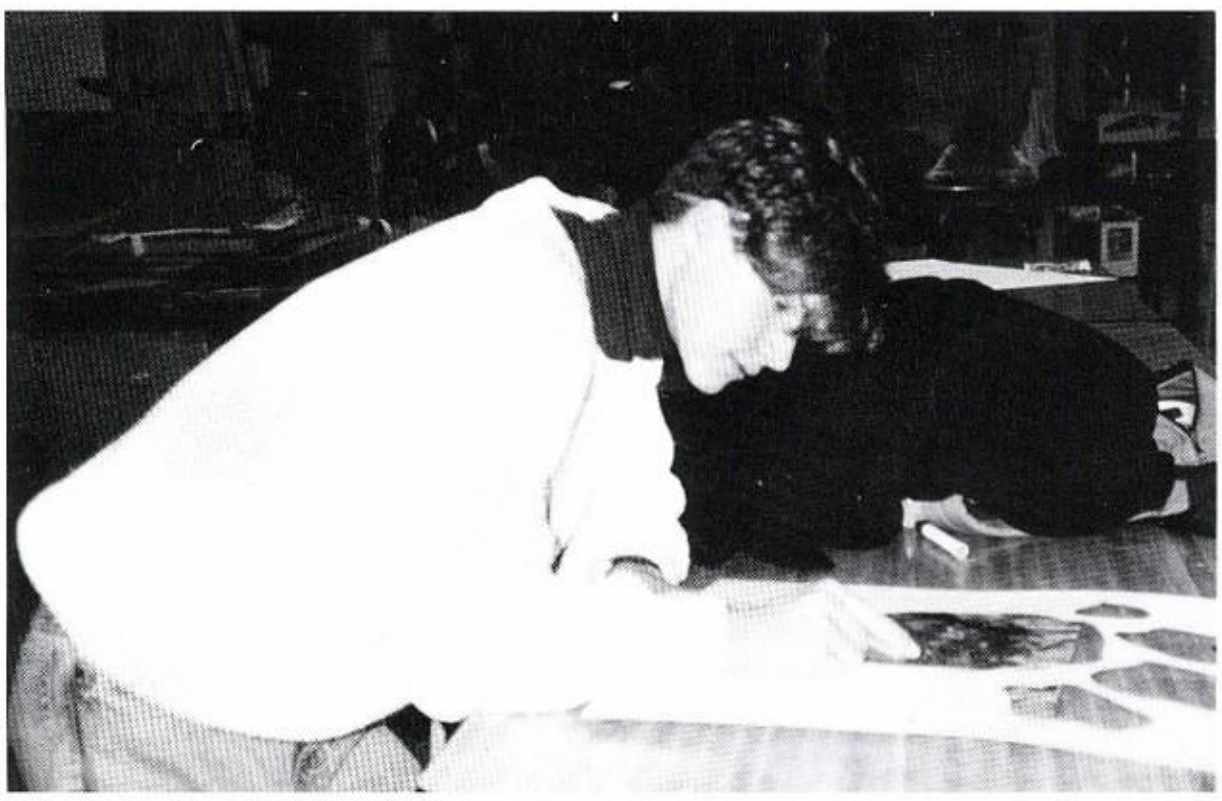
Here lie the neccessities for a true artist, making a creation of themselves!

The Student's Imagination

From painting Piccasso's "Guernica" to sculpting the arches of the church of St. Foy to the graffitti on the bathroom stalls, Art is Art and it's everywhere; Mr. Brook's place, Mr. Girardi's place or Ms. Runion's place. Whether it's ART 1 & 2, Drawing and Painting, Graphics, Drafting or Honors Art Studio 1 & 2, Art courses are being taken advantage of by students. coming more recognized in grades 9-12. Corporations are becoming more aware of what they can do to help young aspiring artists. How, you ask! Well, believe it or not our own fine artists have their own masterpieces hanging on Citizen Bank's very own walls. Who are these artists? Well you can't miss them, Alexis Expression, Abbitha Abstract, Fantasia Fantasy or just simply you.



How would you interpret this drawing? A runner after a hard run, or maybe the way you felt after you got your report card!?



"It seems as if 'MY TOY' is what everybody wants," quoted Melvin Murray, "fast, bright and flaming!"

Working for school spirit, Chris Kerdock creates stencils of the Wildcat Paw.

Double The Outside Activities

Musical Interests

Darlene Turner- is a singer and model in her free time. She sings with her church, Community Temple Bible Way. She also sings with her family in a group called the Simmon Singers.

In addition to singing, Darlene also models as a studio and runway model. She has done some of her runway modeling at Sheraton Club Distinction, and the Ibex.

Andre Smalls- senior, has been playing in go-go since seventh grade. His first band was "Paradise" that broke up last year. Later on, he met a keyboard player named Eric Harris, (he also attends Northwestern) who urged him to play with his band "High Integrity". Andre has five years of playing experience with the go-go bands. Incidentally, he plays the congos in a new band called "Raw Deal" with Eric Harris.

Sharmba Mitchell- senior, has been playing in a go-go band called "Paradise" for three years. He is a self taught musician and has been playing for 11 years. "Paradise" played at many activities including recreation centers, Takoma Park Jr. High, Classics II and other local clubs.

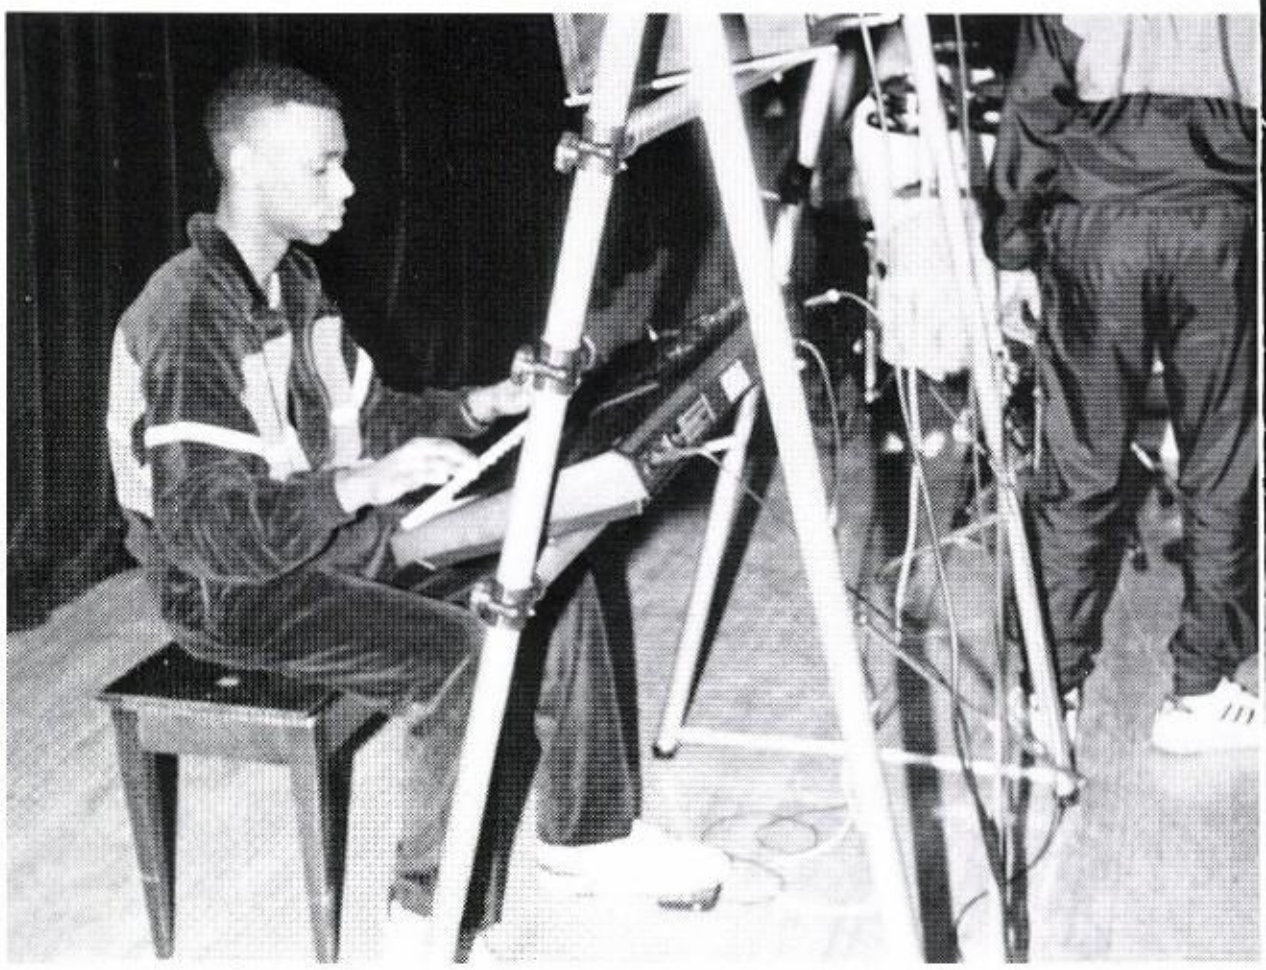
Another activity Sharmba pursues is boxing. He has been boxing for eight years with trainer Adrian Davis.

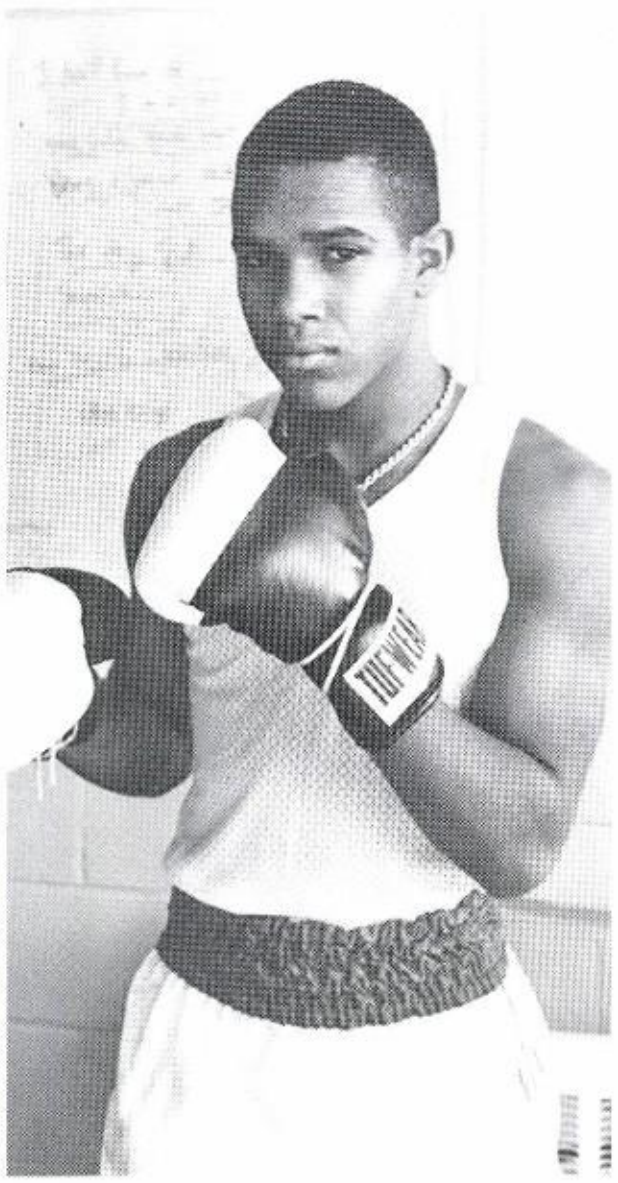
Some of the competitions he was successful at were Lake Placid, New York, Eastern Qualification tournament, tryouts for the Olympic Fest. He went to the Olympic Festival and received Third Place. Sharmba has been The Golden Glove Champion for the past six years. In addition, he was picked for the U.S.A. All-American Boxing Team for 1988. He ranked number two in the whole country for the U. S. Boxing Team.

Sharmba says, "Even though I enjoy the traveling and meeting people, I get homesick."

We may even see him in the Olympics this year!!

Masters at their work, Eric Harris on keyboard and Andre Smalls on Congos perform at the Talent Show.





Northwestern's hopeful for the '88 Olympics, Sharmba Mitchell, shows he isn't any joke.

When singing "No one in the world," Darlene Turner knows that no one can sing as well as she.

"Oh how sweet it is," that is how Lily Giannini feels when she clutches her trophy from the Ms. Capital fitness body building competition.

Physical Interests

Craig Mood- Plays for the P. G. County lacrosse team in his spare time. He was introduced to lacrosse in the seventh grade by his friends Chris and Lou Kerdock. Overwhelmed by the sport, in the spring of 83 he took up playing.

This year will be Craig's sixth year playing lacrosse. He has played the position of left attack for the past 3 years. He is hoping to continue playing and get a scholarship for lacrosse. Playing lacrosse for his junior high and high school years he has grown to love it and he says he wishes that he started earlier.

Lily Giannini-Is a body builder in her free time. In addition she holds the Ms. Capitol Fitness title in the Tall division. Her first competition was in the fall of 87, and she won her first title. She was the youngest to compete and was the first competitor of that age to win the competition. Before her competition she had only trained for about a month to prepare. She plans to participate in many other competitions in the future.

Maryland all-star Lacrosse team members including Craig Mood practice on the astro-turf during the night for a big game against Virginia.

Music Makes The World Feel Good.

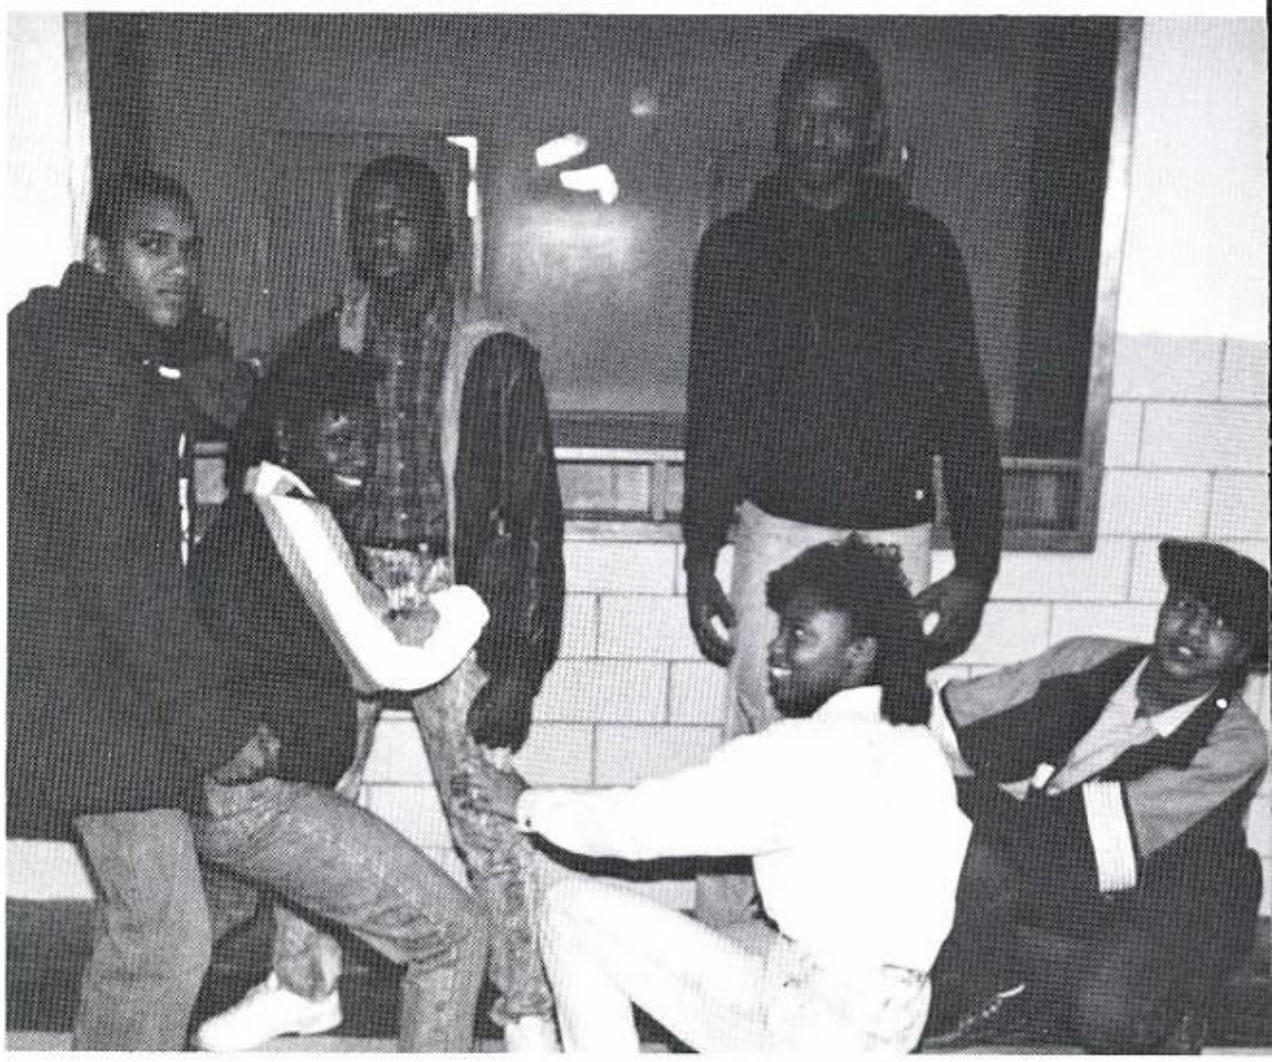
Touch Of Music

I feel good . . . Most people have a favorite song so this is a dedication to the songs that make Northwestern students feel good. Songs bring out the joy, happiness, sadness, and love in us. They touch a special part of our heart and soul.

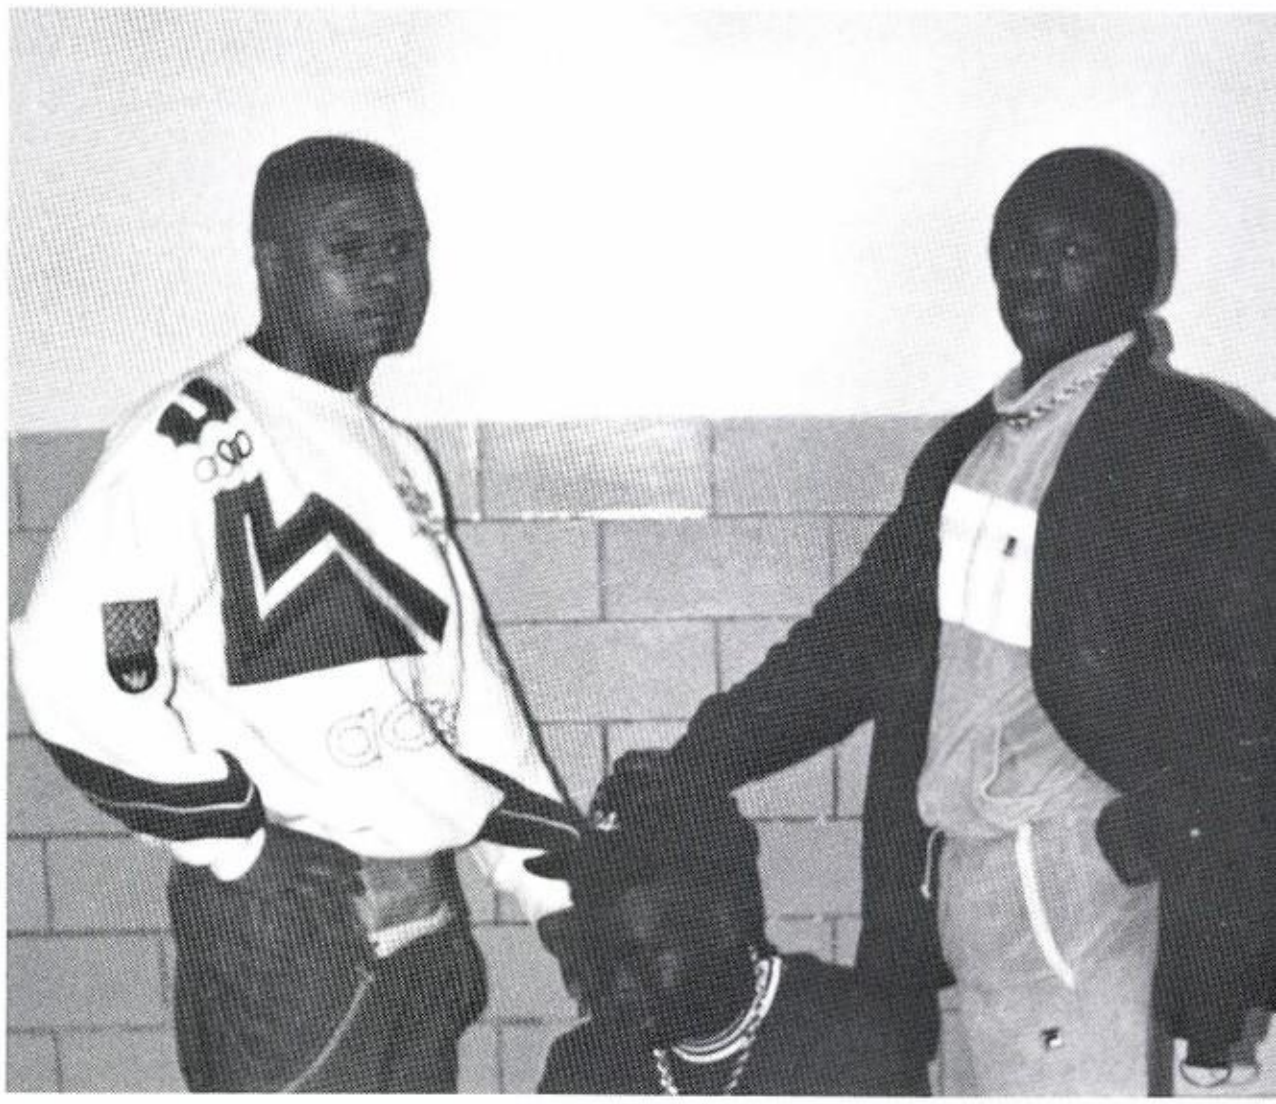
Most musicians just have a special talent for music that's why they work so hard to produce songs that we want to hear, and songs with messages that we as human beings can comprehend. There are also different types of songs for different moods. Love songs are one type and some examples are "Two Occasions", "My Forever Love", "I Want to Be Your Man", and "Baby Be Mine".

Then there are songs that you just want to dance to like Go-Go Music, some of these songs include "Whip It", "Cat In The Hat", "Go Ju Ju", and "Do You Know What Time It Is?". Also there's Club Music that you dance to when you go out on dates, some songs you would hear at a club are "Pump Up The Volume", "I Want Her", "Love Is For Suckers", "Casanova", "Some Kind of Lover", and "Girlfriend". Also there's music for any occasion like "Love Changes" "How You Like Me Now?", "Lovey Dovey" "Push It", and many others. These are just a few examples of songs that make the world feel good. (Thanks to Natalie Williams for idea for this spread and for several pictures.)

"Can I Whip It On You"? is the question as the girls Joanne Ngaine, Carol Floyd and Stacey Spurrell proceed to whip it on the guys.

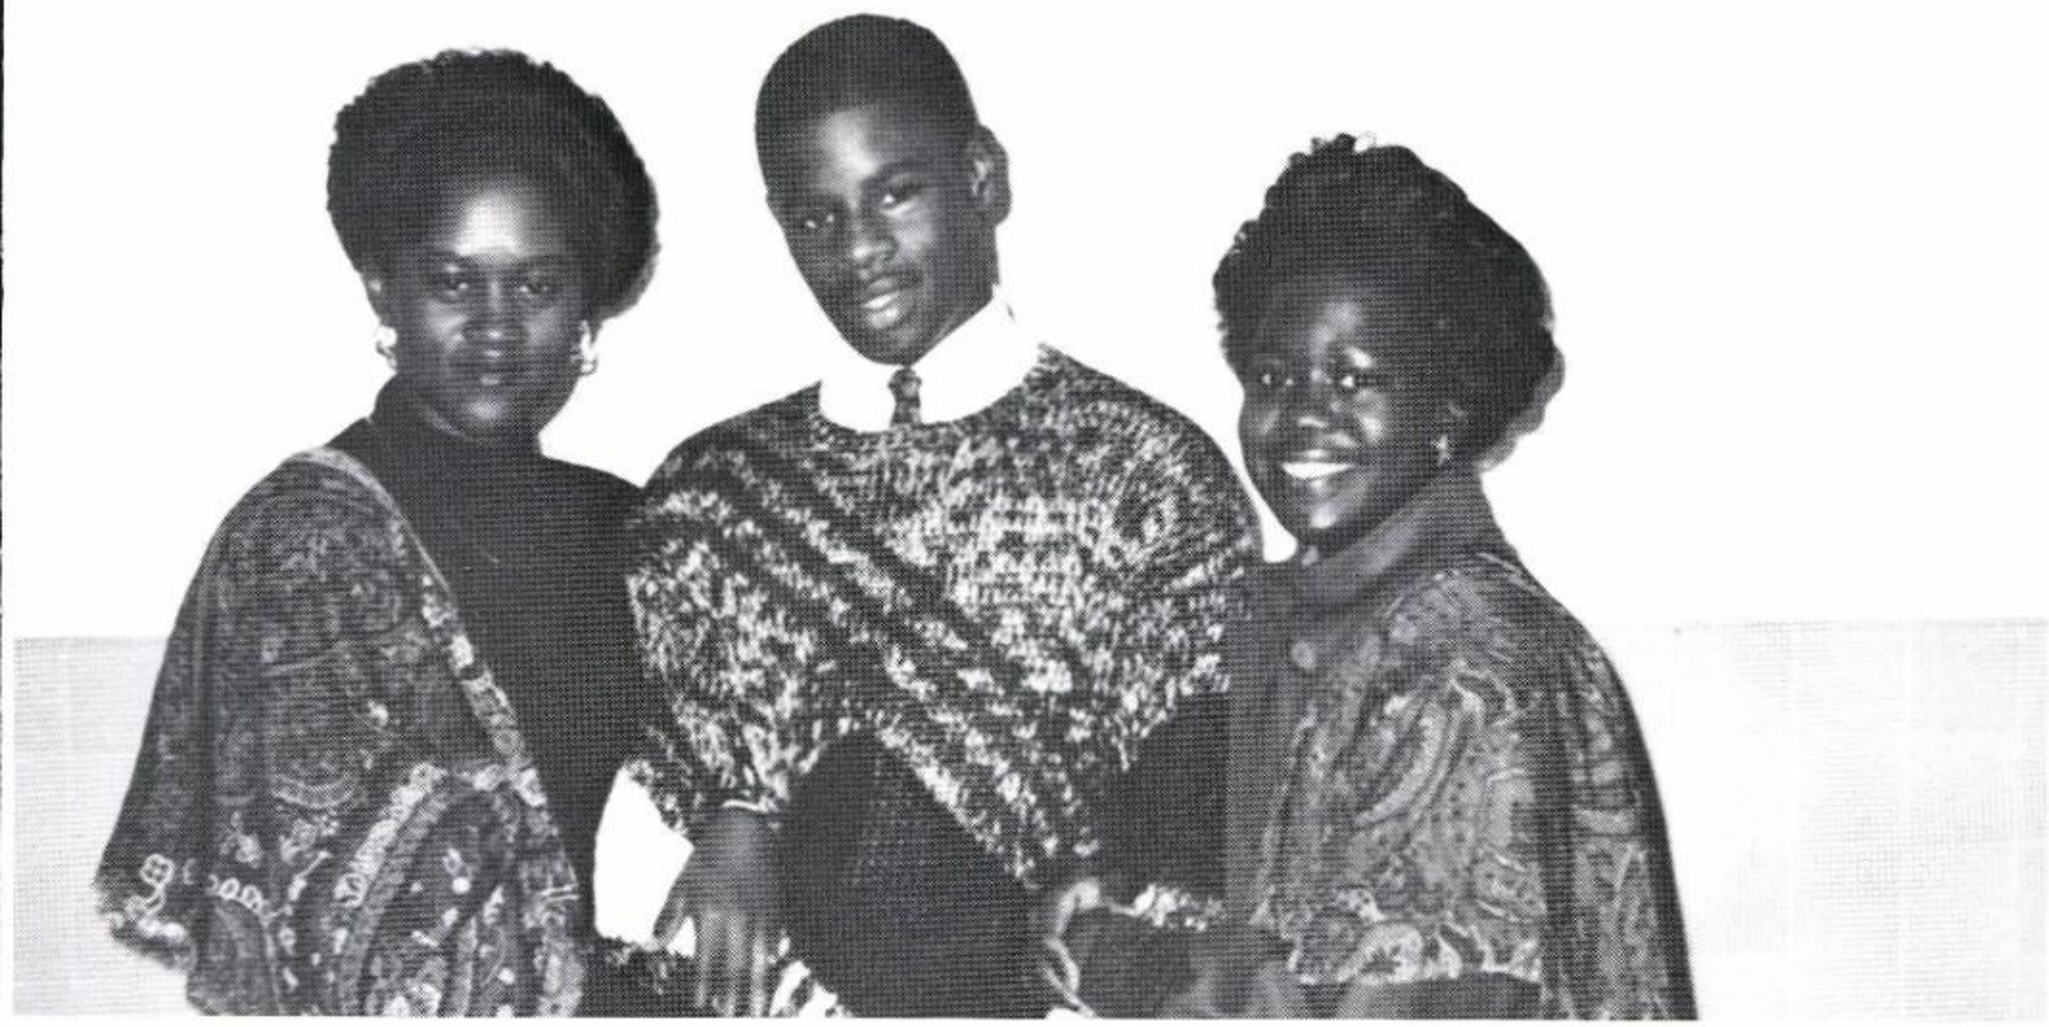


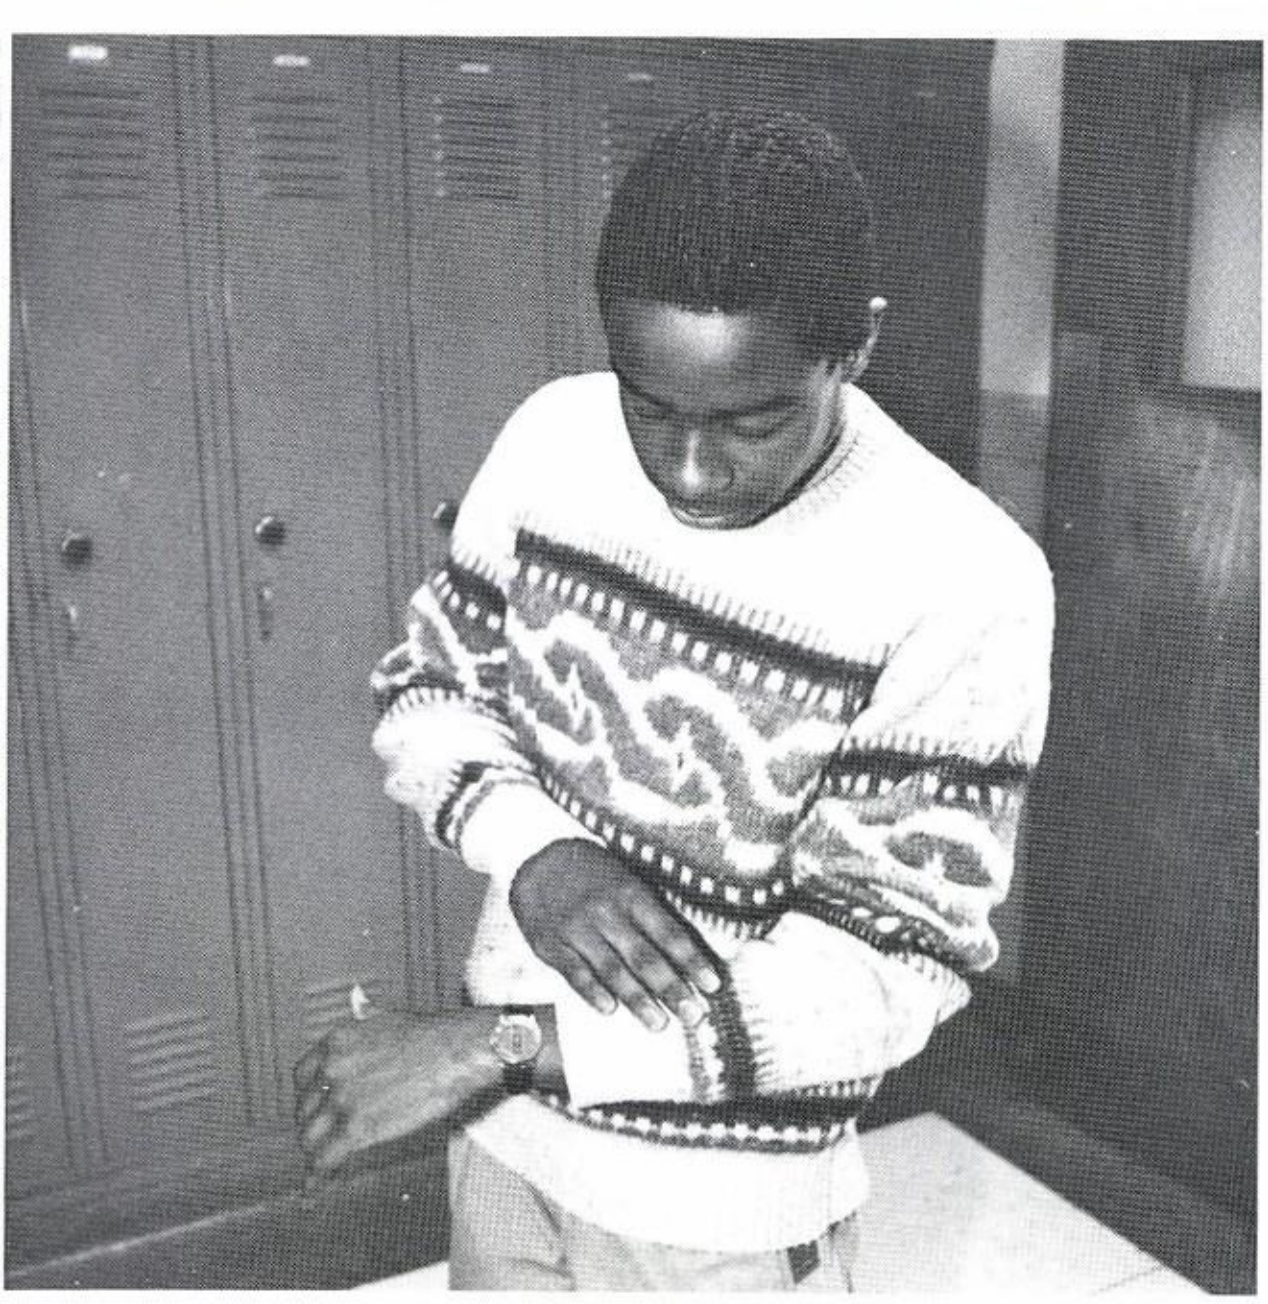
"She's Fly" is the expression that Kaybria Dent shows while flaunting her outfit.



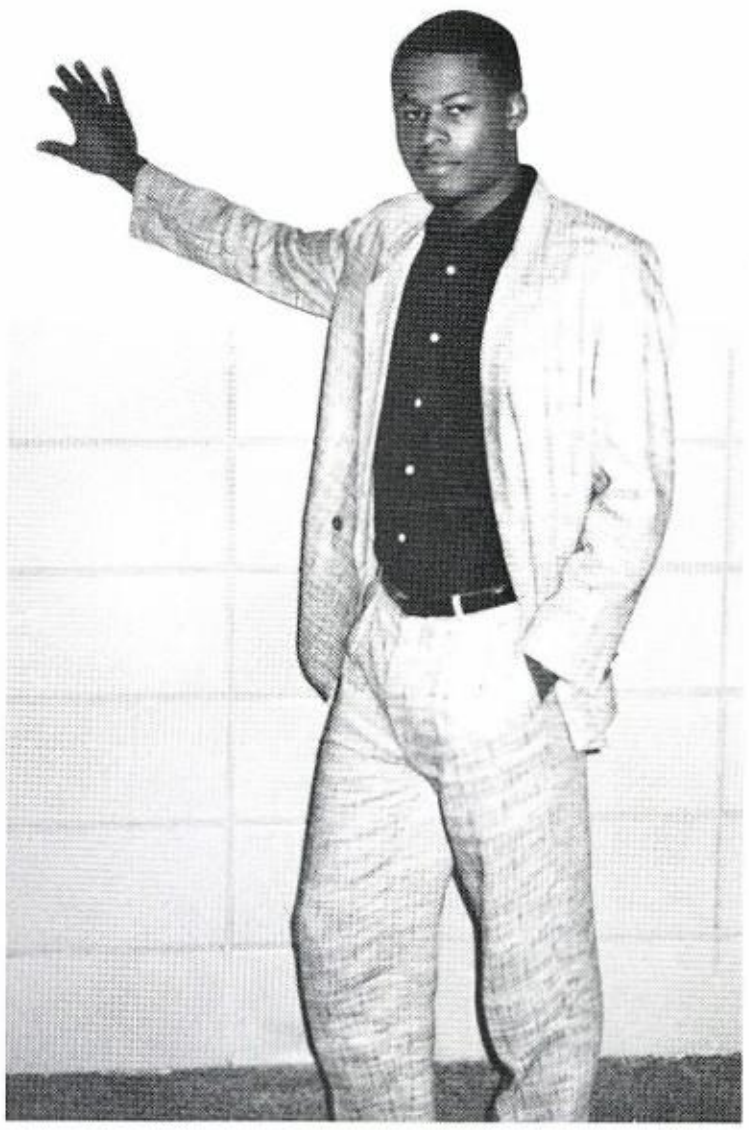
"Love is for Suckers" like Kevin Qualls, Curtis King, and Robert Vinson.

Every man deserves a good woman but Leon Robinson has two, Michelle Lathon and Sheila Griffith.





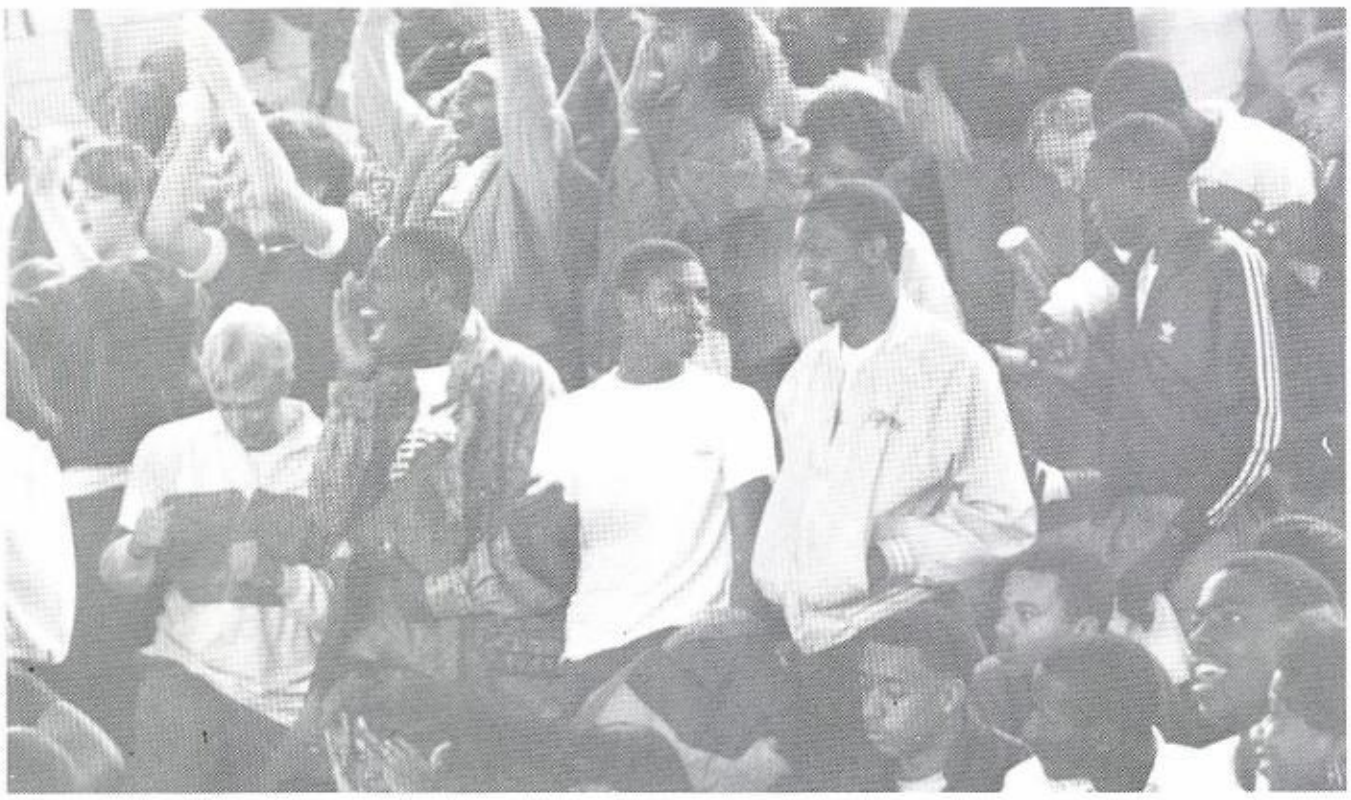
"Do You Know What Time "It Is?" asks Don DeRocha as he shows his Gucci watch.



Time will make you understand that Howard Smith "Wants To Be Your Man".

Juniors rock the house during the pep rally as they show that they are their own biggest fans.

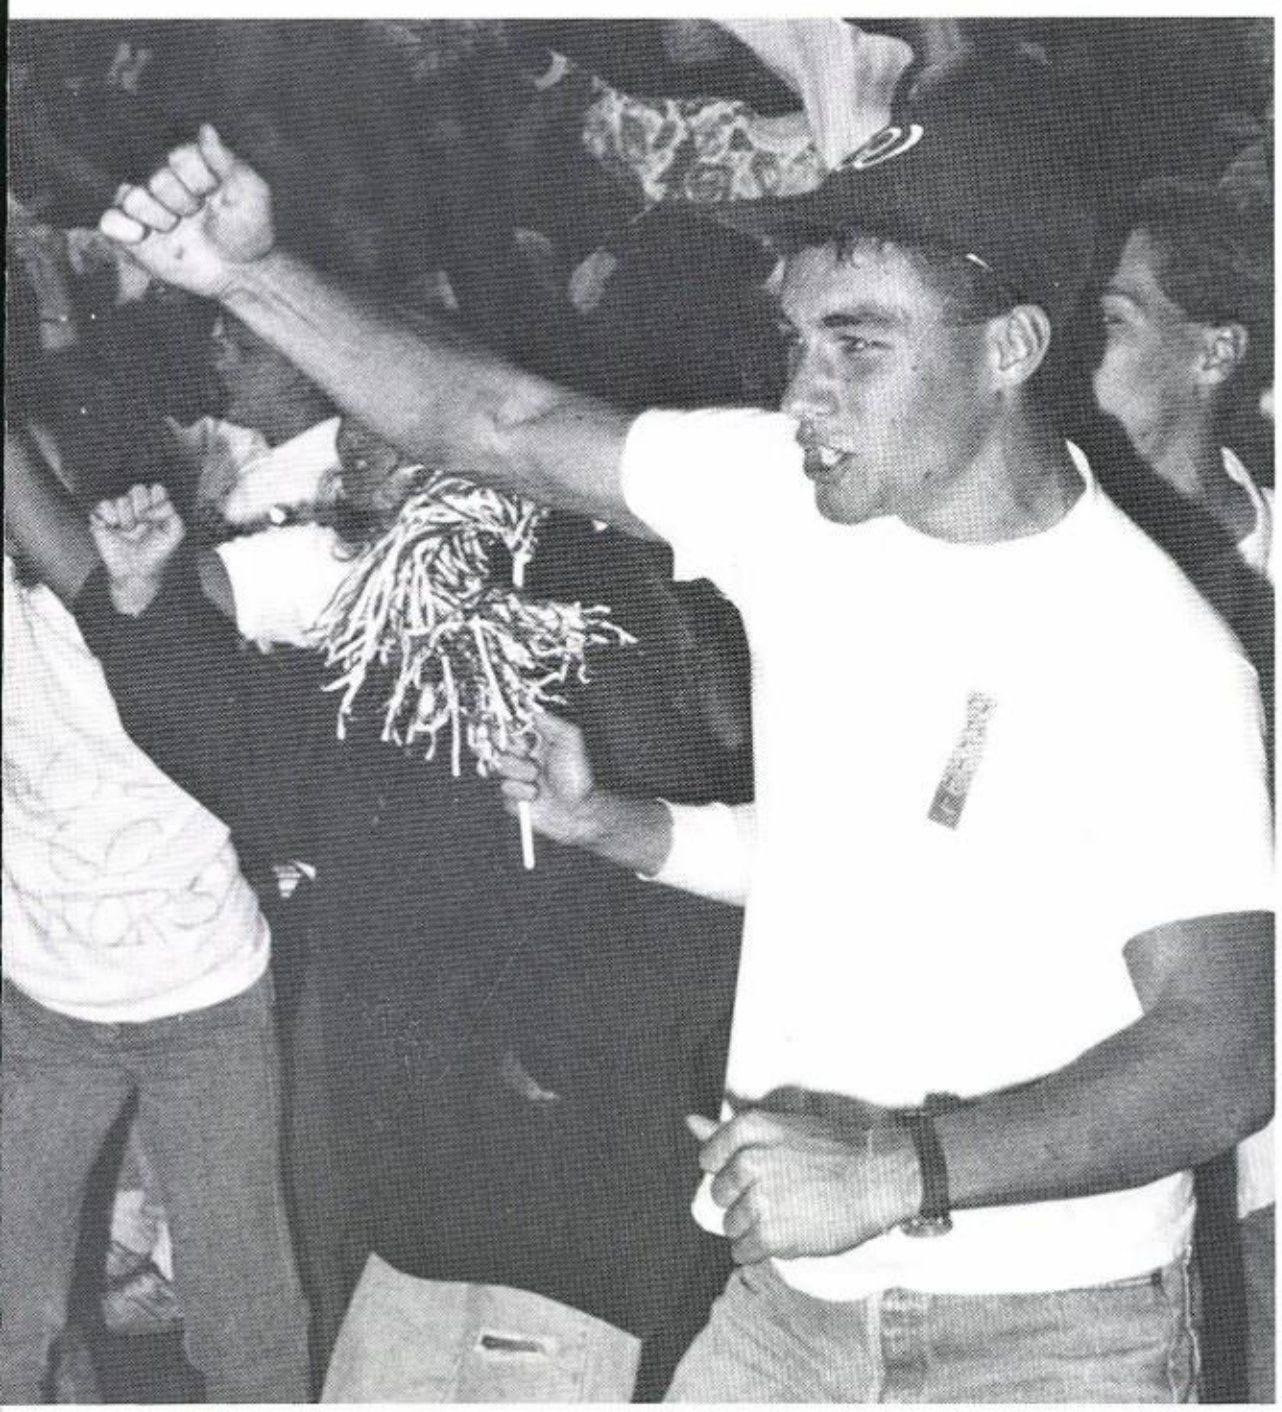
Double The Noise!!



As the seniors scream, Tyrone Moody and Earnest Payne take time out to bet on the Homecoming game the following day.

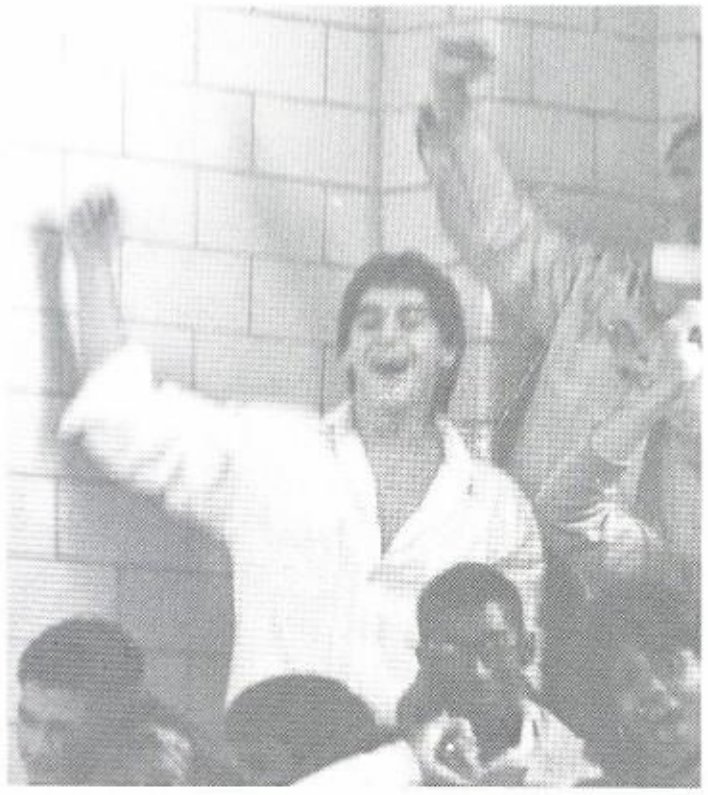
Listening for the loudest class, Alumni, Scott Moore says, "Pump up the Volume Wildcats!"

Are they praying, or are Janice Steinbach, Monica Munoz, and Nuria Cruz clapping with synchronicity at the Northwestern Homecoming Game.



Cheering with all of his might, Jeff "Cooter" Stout, chants, SENIORS!!!, at class night.

AAAAAAHHH!!! Tony Garrett leads the roaring as the fans scream with mass intensity at a volleyball game bell.



Fans

BOOM! BOOM! BOOM! AIRBALL! AIRBALL! The fans at a Northwestern Basketball game go wild every game, home or away, jumping up at intense moments, roaring out Wildcat cheers, yelling out team numbers and names, showing fear as the scores draw close, and never giving up on our Wildcat team. It seems that fans want to make as much noise as possible to get psyched up and to psyche out the other team.

The fans consist of students, friends, parents, brothers and sisters, and also sports lovers who just want to see a good game. "I have seen at least twenty home games at Northwestern, basketball and football even though I know no one here. I do, although, know the names of the players, and I watch with about as much enthusiasm as the student body here at Northwestern," says Mr. Borchart, a resident of University Park, who comes to the games strictly as a leisure time activity.

If the fans love of Northwestern stays constant, the teams have nothing to worry about in the cheering and noise department, So keep up the good work and don't forget the RAH! RAH! RAH!

Bloops, Bleeps And Blunders

Never A Perfect Day

OH NO! NOT ME! NOT TODAY!

The most embarassing thing in your life just took place, and it either happened in front of your friends, total strangers or worse, the person you're secretly in love with! So what do you do when this takes place? You either run, play it off, or wish you would shrivel up and die.

But how can this happen? To you of all people, and today of all days? No one will ever know. But you'll always remember the feeling of you getting smaller and smaller and your face turning shades of red you never knew existed! But don't worry. This happens to all kinds of people in this school! You're not alone, but then again you don't want everyone to know how you embarassed yourself to death. But you'll still have to bear with people laughing at what you did two weeks ago. I think after you read some of these stories you'll feel a little better. But, there are some people who still feel embarassed at their event, so they'll play it safe and stay anonymous. ENJOY!!!!!

One day, I was walking down the hallway with two of my friends and I saw this guy that I liked coming towards me. He was right on schedule like every other day, and like usual, I began to watch him. But today my friends tried to be funny and started yelling "There he is, don't touch what doesn't belong to you." I wanted to kill them right there and then. Then they started yelling out, "The guy in the red jacket? Are you talking about the guy in the red jacket? Do you mean that guy?" It's bad enough that they had to point at the guy but did they have to go into a description? After I beat them up I still felt that this was my humiliation of the year.

One morning, Mr. Anderson rushed into the main office and yelled he needed help. So I ran out of the front doors to the main lobby and took one step and tripped up. I fell down the steps and slid about 10 feet in the mud. I felt like dirt. It was so funny, that I even laughed.

My most embarassing moment was at a church seminar. There was a big dance going on and the people in charge of the dance closed off most of the church grounds to keep people from wandering. Unfortunately the part that they closed off included the girls bathroom. I had to go really bad and I had no place to go so I thought I could get away with using the men's bathroom. I had to wait close to an hour before I could make sure that the bathroom was empty. I walked in (So far so good) and everything was clear. I have to admit that the mens bathroom does look a lot different from the women's bathroom. I finished with what I had to do and as I was walking out a whole group of guys were standing in front of the door, getting ready to walk in. I then just walked out and played it off saying, "I wonder where my little brother Johnny could be?" I've never had so many people stare at me in one night before in my life.

My wife has a cousin who in her youth, was World Champion baton twirler. For the life of me I cannot recall her name, which, under the circumstances, may be for the best.

We had spent the better part of three weeks touring the St. Laurence River Valley of Canada and were returning home through mid-state New York. About an hour's drive south of the Canadian border, my wife suddenly remembered that her cousin, the World Champion cousin, lived just outside Binghamton, a city the Interstate would take us by. Stopping at a rest stop, my wife decided to call her cousin and invite herself, and her family of course, to spend several days. We arrived at dinner time, and, after introductions, sat down to a hastily prepared meal one would expect to be served to a relative not seen in some time. Mind you, I had never met my wife's cousin, and thus made no connection whatever with her youthful successes. During the course of dinner conversation, the question of our daughter's interest or involvement in baton twirling came up. Having always felt that such activities were a waste of time and "hokie" at best, I voiced my opinion accordingly. My wife only wiped her mouth in a lady like manner.

Having finished dessert and a third cup of coffee, I pushed myself away from the table and offered to help with the dishes. My offer was politely declined, and I was invited to go downstairs to the family room to watch the news on T.V. while my wife and her World Champion cousin cleared the table and did the dishes. Never one to turn down an offer to take it easy, I headed down to the family room.

Turning the corner at the foot of the stairs, I jumped to avoid running into a large cabinet filled with trophies, baton twirling trophies. And there on top was the World Champion cousins huge, almost life-size, World Championship Baton Twirling Trophy. I still see the teeth marks every time I take off my socks.

R. Anderson

One cold icy morning as I was coming out of my house, I noticed all of my neighbors were coming out at the same time to go on their way to work. I was running a little late so I just grabbed what belonged to me and ran out the house. It was an icy morning and I didn't notice the icy front steps and I slipped and fell down my front steps and all of my papers went flying all over the place and my skirt and pantyhose ripped to shreds. It wouldn't have been so bad if all of my neighbors weren't out there, but unfortunately they were. Sharon Jeanes

My most embarassing moment was when the cheerleaders did a one day camp demonstration and it was our time to go out to do "Spirit", and I fell flat on my back and all the children, including the cheerleaders and Miss. Burr, started laughing at me. Darcia Williams.

My most embarassing moment was when I was in eighth grade and I forgot to put on my gym shorts and I only had on my underwear and gym shirt. Taleesa Gabriel.

Getting ready for the freshmen orientation, I was very excited to hear that his guy was "In love" with was was going to be there to see me perform with our new flags team. I found out as we walked in for our formation, that I would be standing in front of him. As our music started and I began to stare at him, I found myself dropping my flag at his feet and me dying of embarassment. But now since I look at it, I can laugh the whole thing off.

My most embarassing moment was when two of my friends and I were going to a summer seminar at the University of Maryland for school. We were so excited about being part of "college life" and we were teasing each other about "picking up" a couple of "college men"! We were doing this on our way to the eatery for lunch.

While standing in the world's longest line and getting out food, we finally reached the cashier. She stared at us for a very long time without accepting our money. We thought something was wrong, like standing in the wrong line. But she soon enough cleared our minds by saying very loudly "You're not college students are you? You guys just look too young!" We wanted to die.

The most embarassing thing for me took place with my best friend. In her neighborhood live the "men of our dreams." Fortunate for us they were neighbors and best friends too. Well, her and I decided to go for a walk down their street. As we were passing "my man's" house, my best friend decided to start doing jumping jacks in front of his house and yelling his name and saying hi. I wanted to die right there on the spot and kill her at the same time. After I finally got her to stop we were passing "her man's" house and I started yelling her name and his at the top of my lungs. I guess at the moment she wanted to die and kill me too. Unfortunately we're not friends anymore. But I hope she keeps these memories close as I did. Don't get me wrong, I can't tell anyone who I am. Because to this day I still get emabarassed at the crazy things we did that day.

My most embarassing moment was when my cousin told the guy I liked, that I liked him. It was embarassing because the same day she told him, I had told him that I didn't want to talk to him anymore. But it isn't embarassing anymore because now, we're talking.

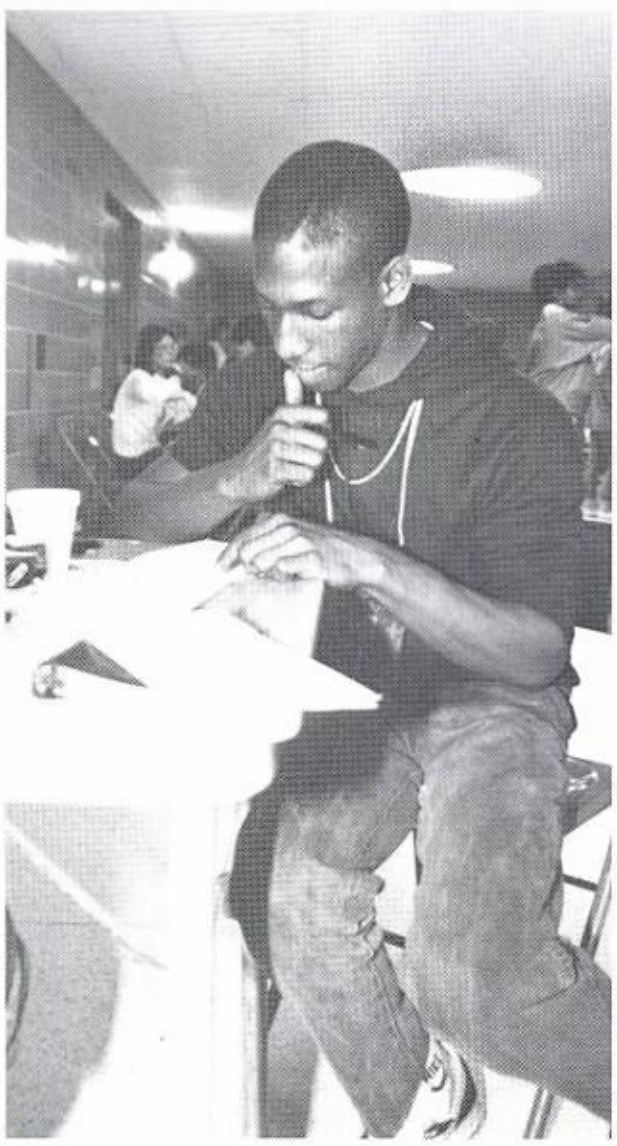
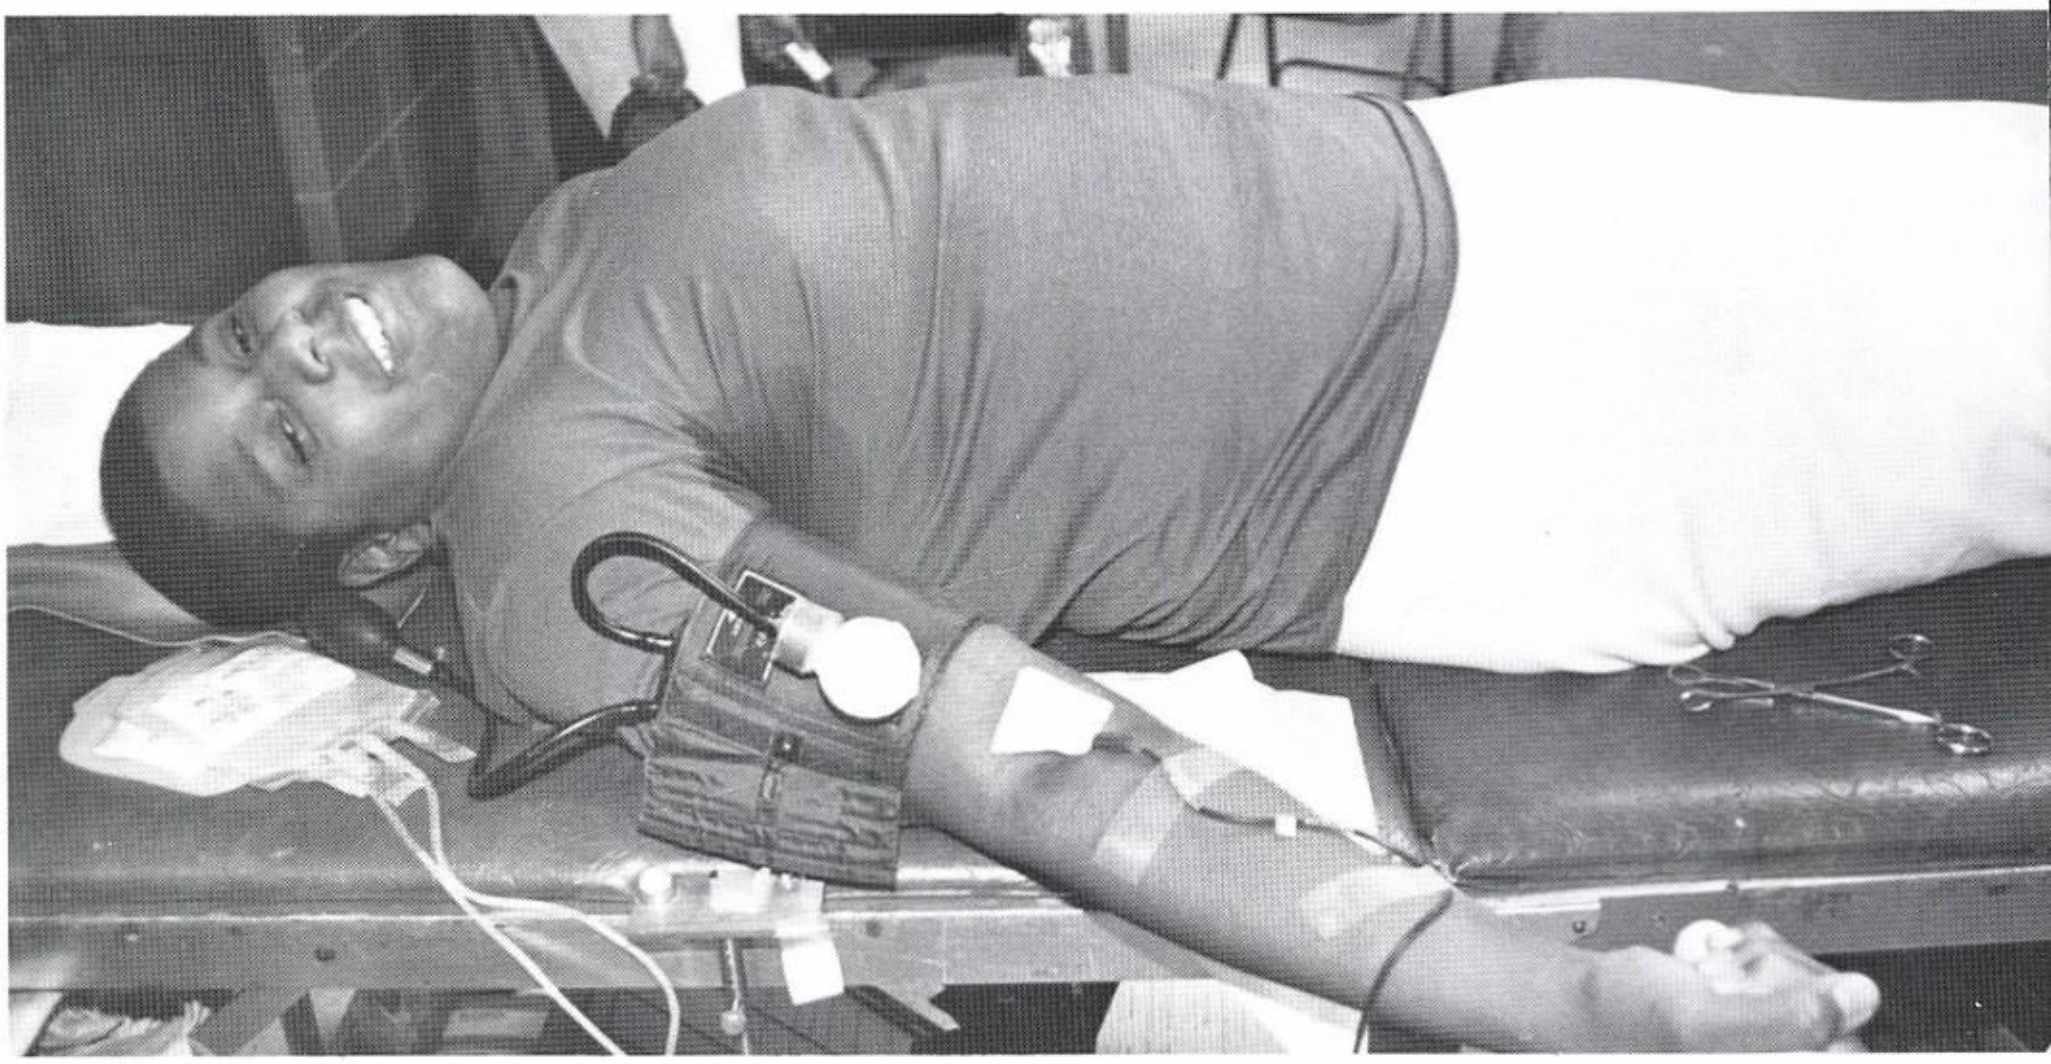
We're Out For Blood:





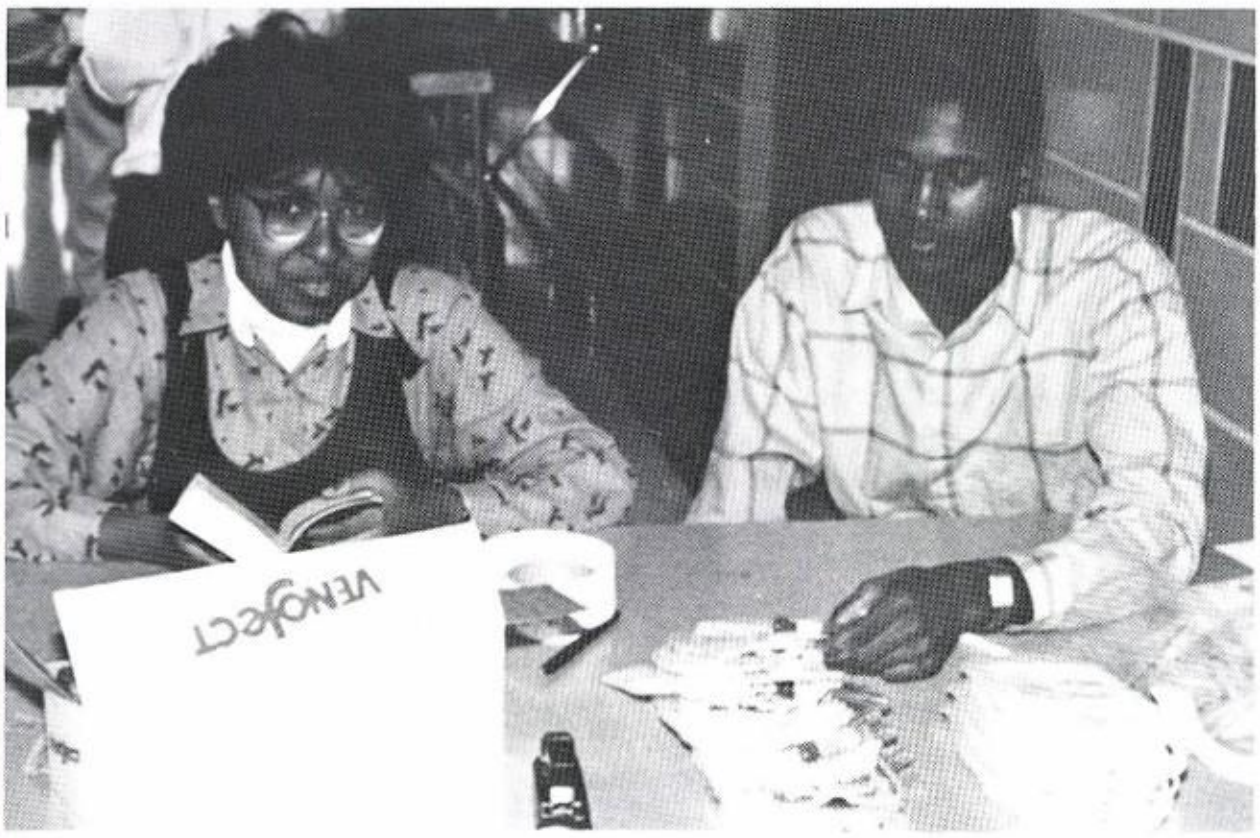
Following the health proceedures one of the Blood Mobile's nurses sets up Stefan Sallet to give blood as flawlessly as possible.

Making sure he doesn't miss a question Lee Cloud reads the form for volunteering his blood.

A pint of blood may save the life of one in need, and its a warm feeling to give.

"No Problem" says Pierre Hill as they take his blood!

Give



Bloodbank

Most people, as I have found, wouldn't mind giving blood, except the thought of "THE NEEDLE'."

Interviews after the blood was taken brought about quite different answers from participants.

Brian Beahn said, "It just felt like a prick of the skin, the part that is the worst is standing up!"

Mr. Roe said, "The first time (this was his sixth time in the last 18 months!) it hurt, but now I only get slightly dizzy and hungry!"

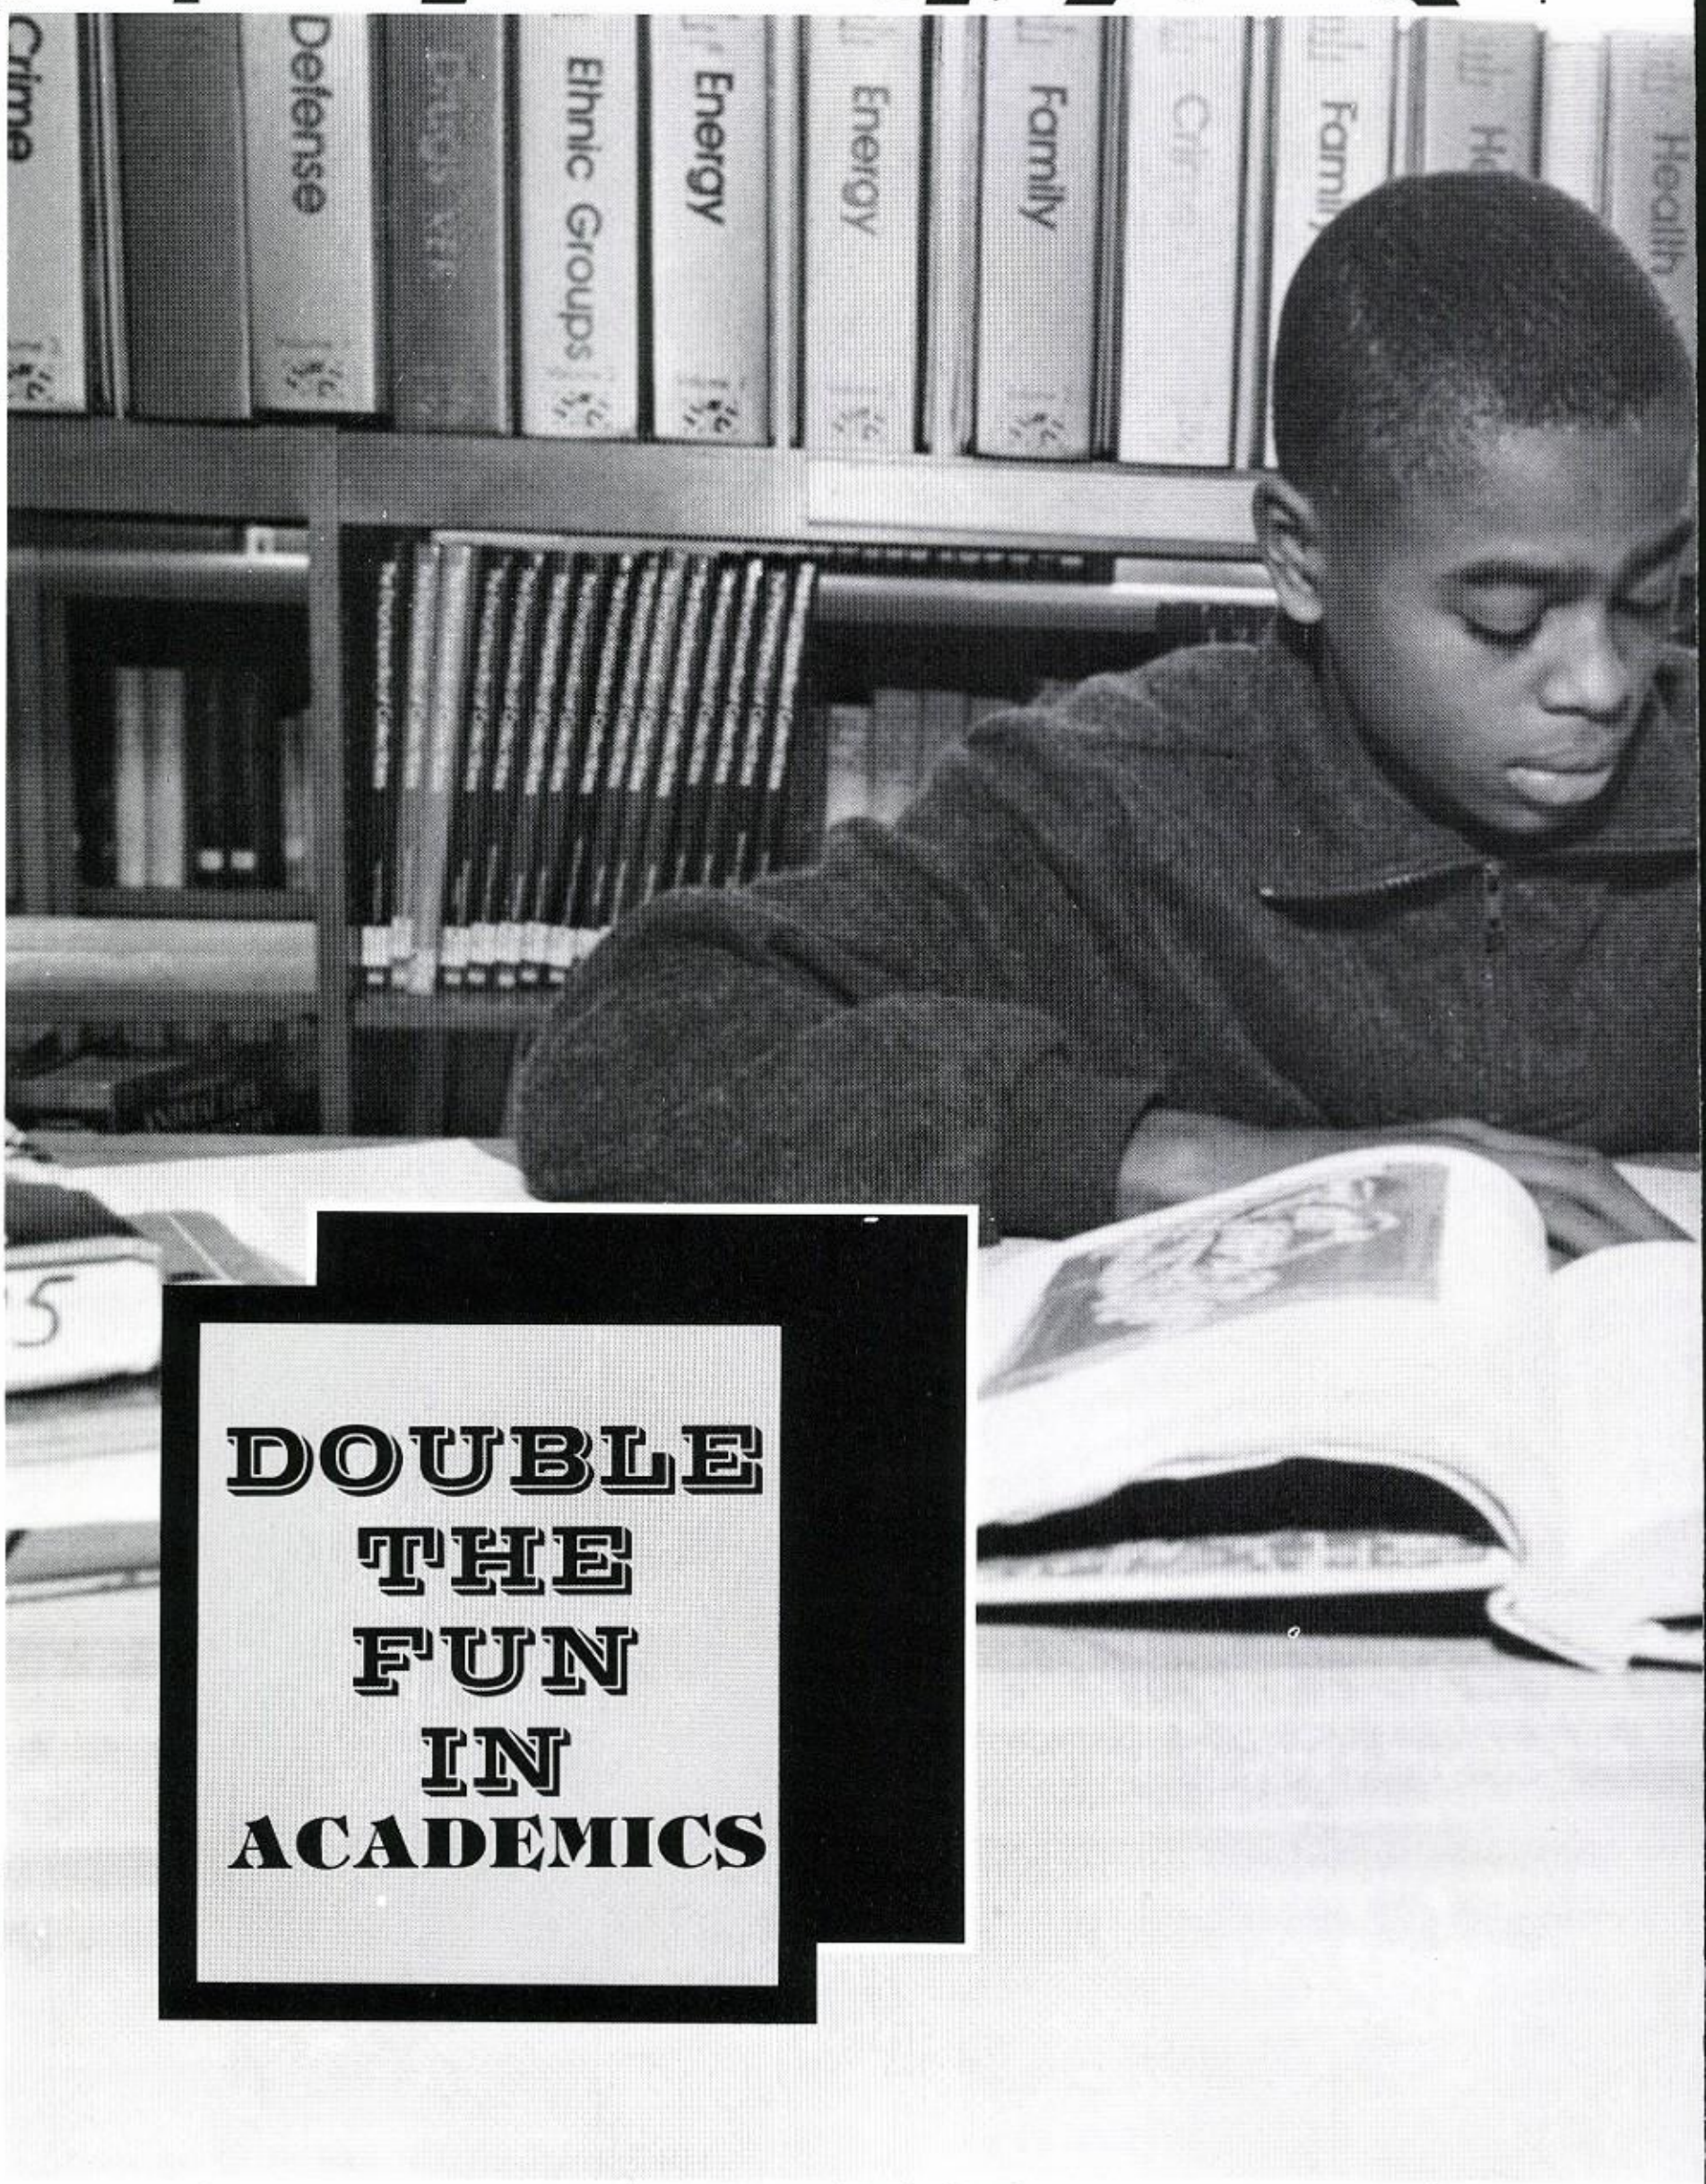
There are restrictions on who can give blood. If you have a cold that day, you cannot give, and if your iron is low then you have to try another time. Some things like Hepatitus and mono are different. With mono you have to wait five months after the sickness is gone before you can give blood. But with hepatitus you can never give since the disease never leaves your blood system.

There was a big turn out on January 24, 1988 and 28 pints of blood were collected. But the more the better, as they say. Hopefully this article will convince you that a little pain is better than a child or adult dying without blood to replenish that that was lost!

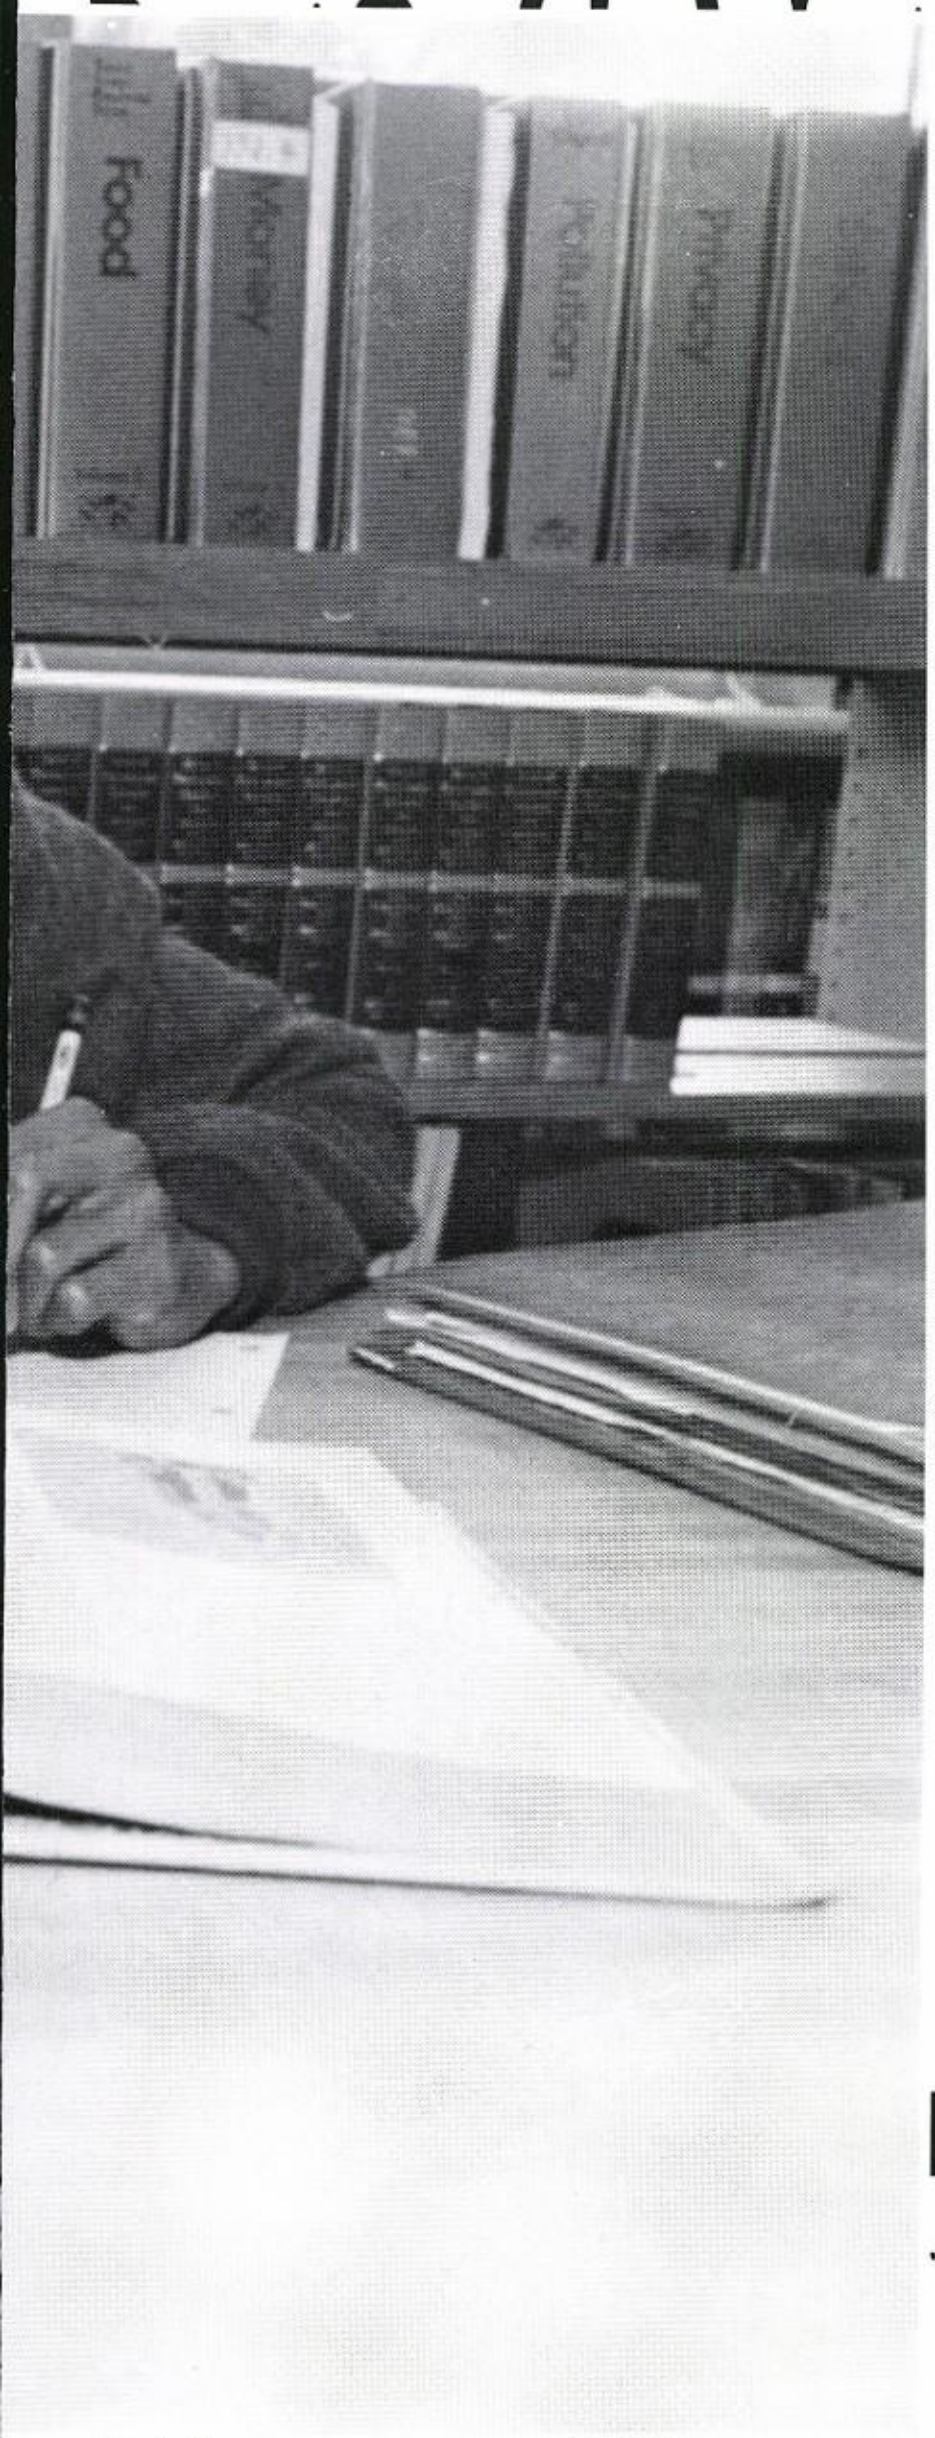
These four SGA taste testers, Stephanie Bennett, Nana Kwatemaa, Yolene Opont, and Natalie Paulwell serve pizza to the bloodmobile volunteers.

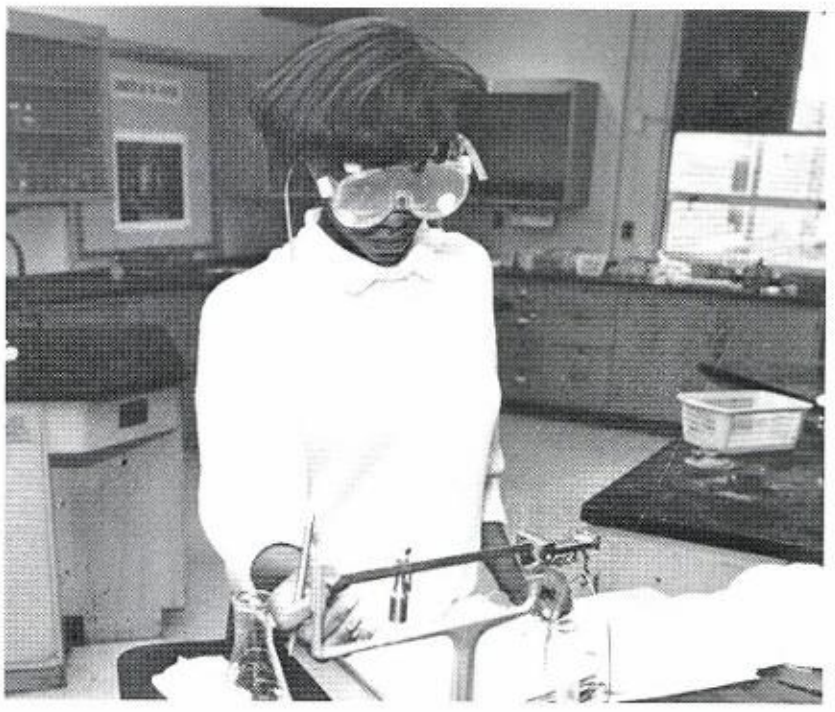
"Just wait for the beep," says Uzma Sher to Deneta Howland while taking her temperature to assure no risk of a cold during the blood drive "88".

Do these people look inviting? Well they are Simone Walton and Eddie Langston two of the people who helped the blood drive go smoothly.



DOUBLE THE FUN IN ACADEMICS





"Have You Gotten Your List Of School Supplies?"

"No, Did You?"

"Yeah Man, I Have To Get 3 Spiral Notebooks, A Pack Of Dividers And A Composition Book. This Is Going To Cost Me Double What I Spent Last Year.

Welcome To The U.S.A.!!!

Making New Friends

"Willkommen Nach der USA" was the sign that greeted our exchange students who arrived from Germany on that Sunday afternoon of September 28 at Dullas Airport.

Northwestern students and parents anxiously waited to see who they would host for their three week stay. Wanting to make the Germans stay filled with activities and enjoyment, sponsors took them to places such as Rehoboth Beach, Pennsylvania Dutch Country, Baltimore Harbor, and of course the White House. The German students were lucky to share our Homecoming Week with us and even attended our Homecoming Dance. Christine Davies agreed that, "Hosting a German student was hard work, but it was worth it because we all had fun communicating with each other." Some students hosted more than one German student. Communication wasn't a big problem because they taught each other new words and used a lot of sign language.

The dreaded day of October 18 finally came and the Germans had to depart. Tears were shed, hugs and addresses were exchanged, and promises of letters being sent were made. But the students didn't despair for long because our Northwestern students went to Germany in the third week of June and as the Germans did, they returned telling tales of their trip to a foreign land.

Have a party, invite a German. Showing how much of a good time they can have together, our Northwestern students and our German students became good friends.

Teaching her how to be a real spirited Wildcat, host Jackie Codi and her German sister Anne Kruger prepare each others war paint for their big evening at Classnight.

All dressed up and ready to go, Christine Davies and her date, along with German exchange students Claus Wolf-Menzler and Eva Pohl get ready to go to the Homecoming dance.

Bienvenue A La Belgique!!!

Out Of This World

Have you ever wondered what it would be like to walk down the streets of Paris? Or say a quick prayer in one of their beautiful cathedrals? Or maybe you're looking for a good time in one of their clubs where the legal age is 16. If you have done all of these things you would know how much fun the Northwestern students had on their trip to Europe. If you don't know what it's like, then prepare to use your imagination.

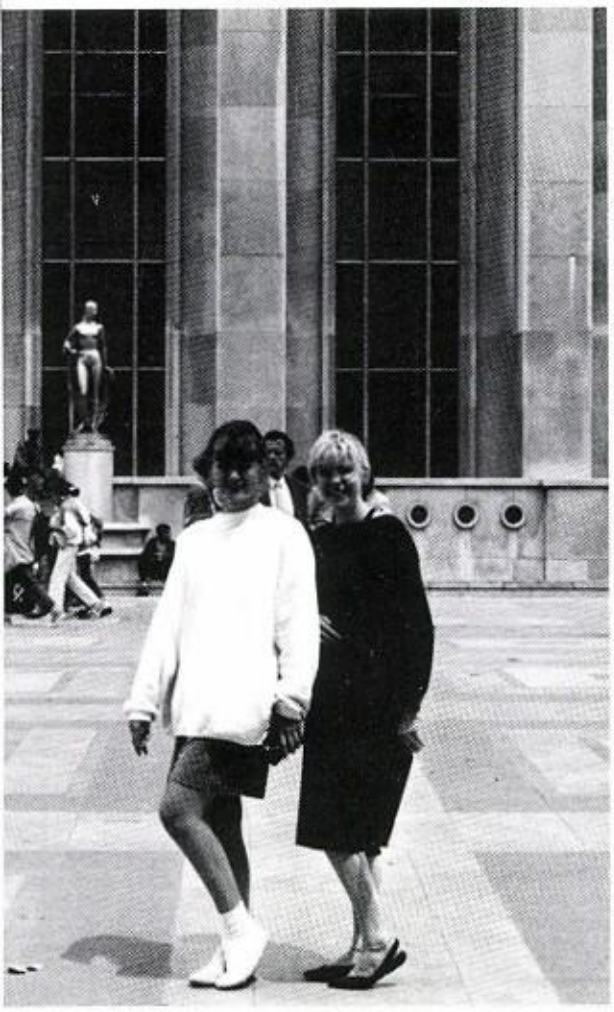
Leaving on the evening of June 24 from Dullus Airport, our Northwestern students were dreaming of Belgium without the guidance of their parents. Boarding the plane and preparing themselves for the 16 hour long plane flight with one stop to New York, they imagined what their three weeks in a foreign country would be like.

Finally landing, they toured Paris for four days and then they moved on to Belgium to meet their host families with whom they would live for the next three weeks. Three weeks passed by quickly with small feelings of homesickness passing through the group, but the feelings were quickly disbanned when they visited Holland, Germany and Knoxx Beach as some of their many day trips.

July 14 rolled around, and our Northwestern students packed their suitcases for the second time around and they sadly left their host families which they had become very attached to, but they all cheered up realizing that they were coming home and they had gained a European family.

Maybe in the future years you will become part of our European exchange. But for now, we'll just wait for July when the Belgians return their visit.

No, it's not an upside down pencil! It's the Eiffel Tower! Doesn't the sight just take your breath away?



We can't believe we're in Paris says Mary Logan and Becky Wilkinson as they get ready to finish their tour.

Happy to spend a day in Bruges, graduated senior Kathy O'Neill, John Perry and Doctor Fretz take a picture and relax.

As she finally solves the Geometry problem, Senior Deayne Johnson, captain of the Math Team, smiles as other members Ngoc Chu, Hoan Bui, and Laron Broadnax keep trying.

Double Your Time In School

Order! Order!?

What you are witnessing is an actual case. The people you see are not actors . . They're the members of the Forensics Team. Well, it may not be the real thing but the cases presented are cases that have actually been presented in real courts. What is the Forensics Team, anyway?

It's a group of students who perform mock trials to a "judge". To be an active member required more than just intelligence; it required a lot of time! Members had to maintain a 3.0 average. The team also had a dress code that each member had to follow in order to present themselves well.

The team tried very hard for a successful year!!

Just A Game?

It's Academic is not just a game; it's an adventure! Travelling through questions, you guard yourself against fierce opponents on your way to victory.

In the past there hasn't been an abundance of interested students. Why? Who knows.? Juniors and Seniors are basically those chosen to go on the air. The captain is usually a Senior.

Like Forensics, members had to be willing to give their time and maintaining a 2.0 average wasn't difficult for these folks. This year, our team was televised on the "It's Academic" television show in February.

Early To Rise

Now why would anyone rather get up early just to come to school earlier? Well, maybe they're a member of the Math Team. The team met on Tuesday mornings before school and sometimes during first lunch on Tuesdays.

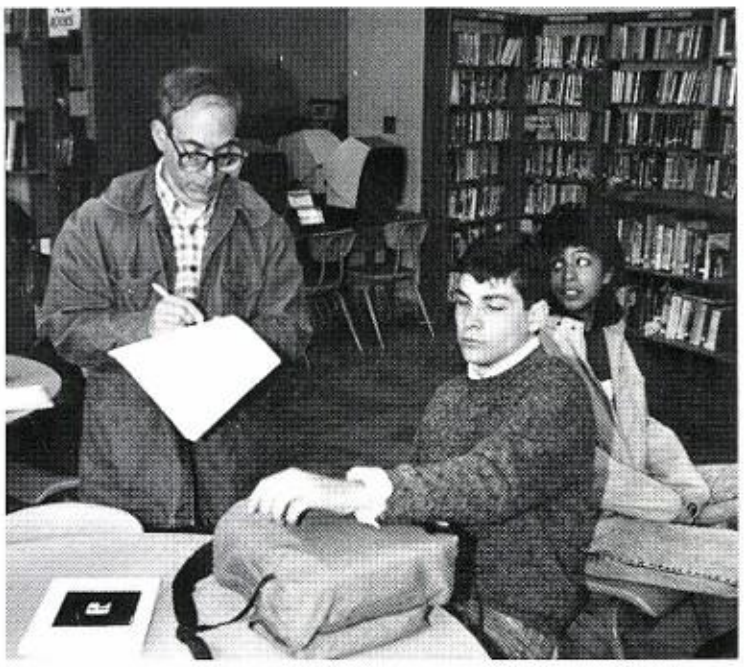
To be a member required skill and concentration. Members also had to have had previous enrollment in Geometry 9 and/or Algebra 2. They also had to maintain at least a 2.0 average.

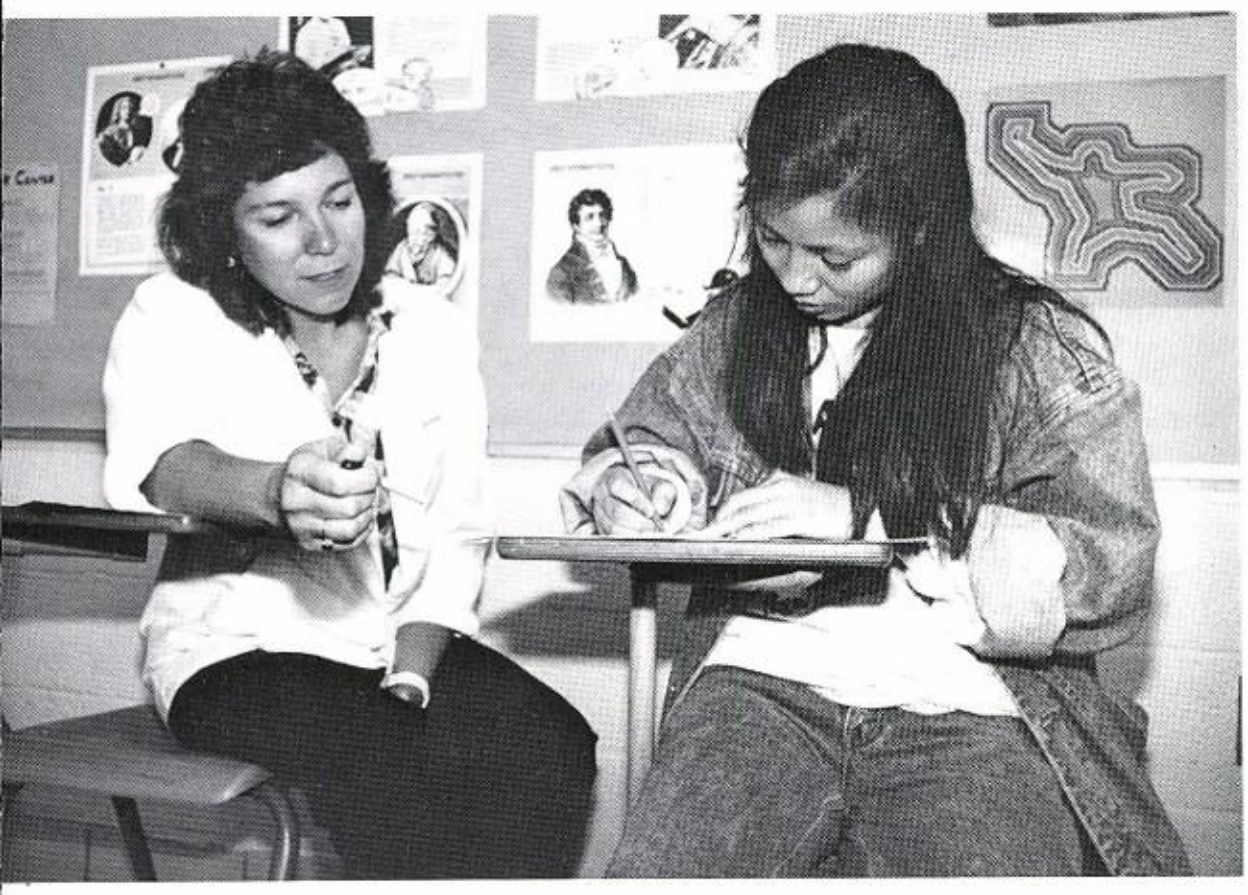
The Math Team met at Eleanor Roosevelt against other teams in their league -the second league-every other Thursday beginning on October 22 for a total of 10 meets. They then met for a final meet against all leagues.

ing up her lunch period, Deayne Johnson, ctices with the Math Team every Tuesday in s. Lynch's room.

Working on her case, Junior Forensics member Amy Headley becomes annoyed with the constant chatter around her.

Explaining the correct procedures, Forensics sponsor Mr. Hechinger talks to members Greg Beach and Lily Giannini about the next meet.





Thoughts of history and the date on which the Paris Treaty was signed are running through Senior Joe Gillete's mind as he contemplates possible questions.

Fat Freddie loses a pound each time he runs a mile; but he gains . . . How many miles did Fat Freddie run? "Who is Fat Freddie and who cares how many miles he runs!!", is the thought running through Math Team member Ngoc Chu's mind as sponsor Mrs. Lynch explains the problem to her.

Wow, No Books!!

Light Weight

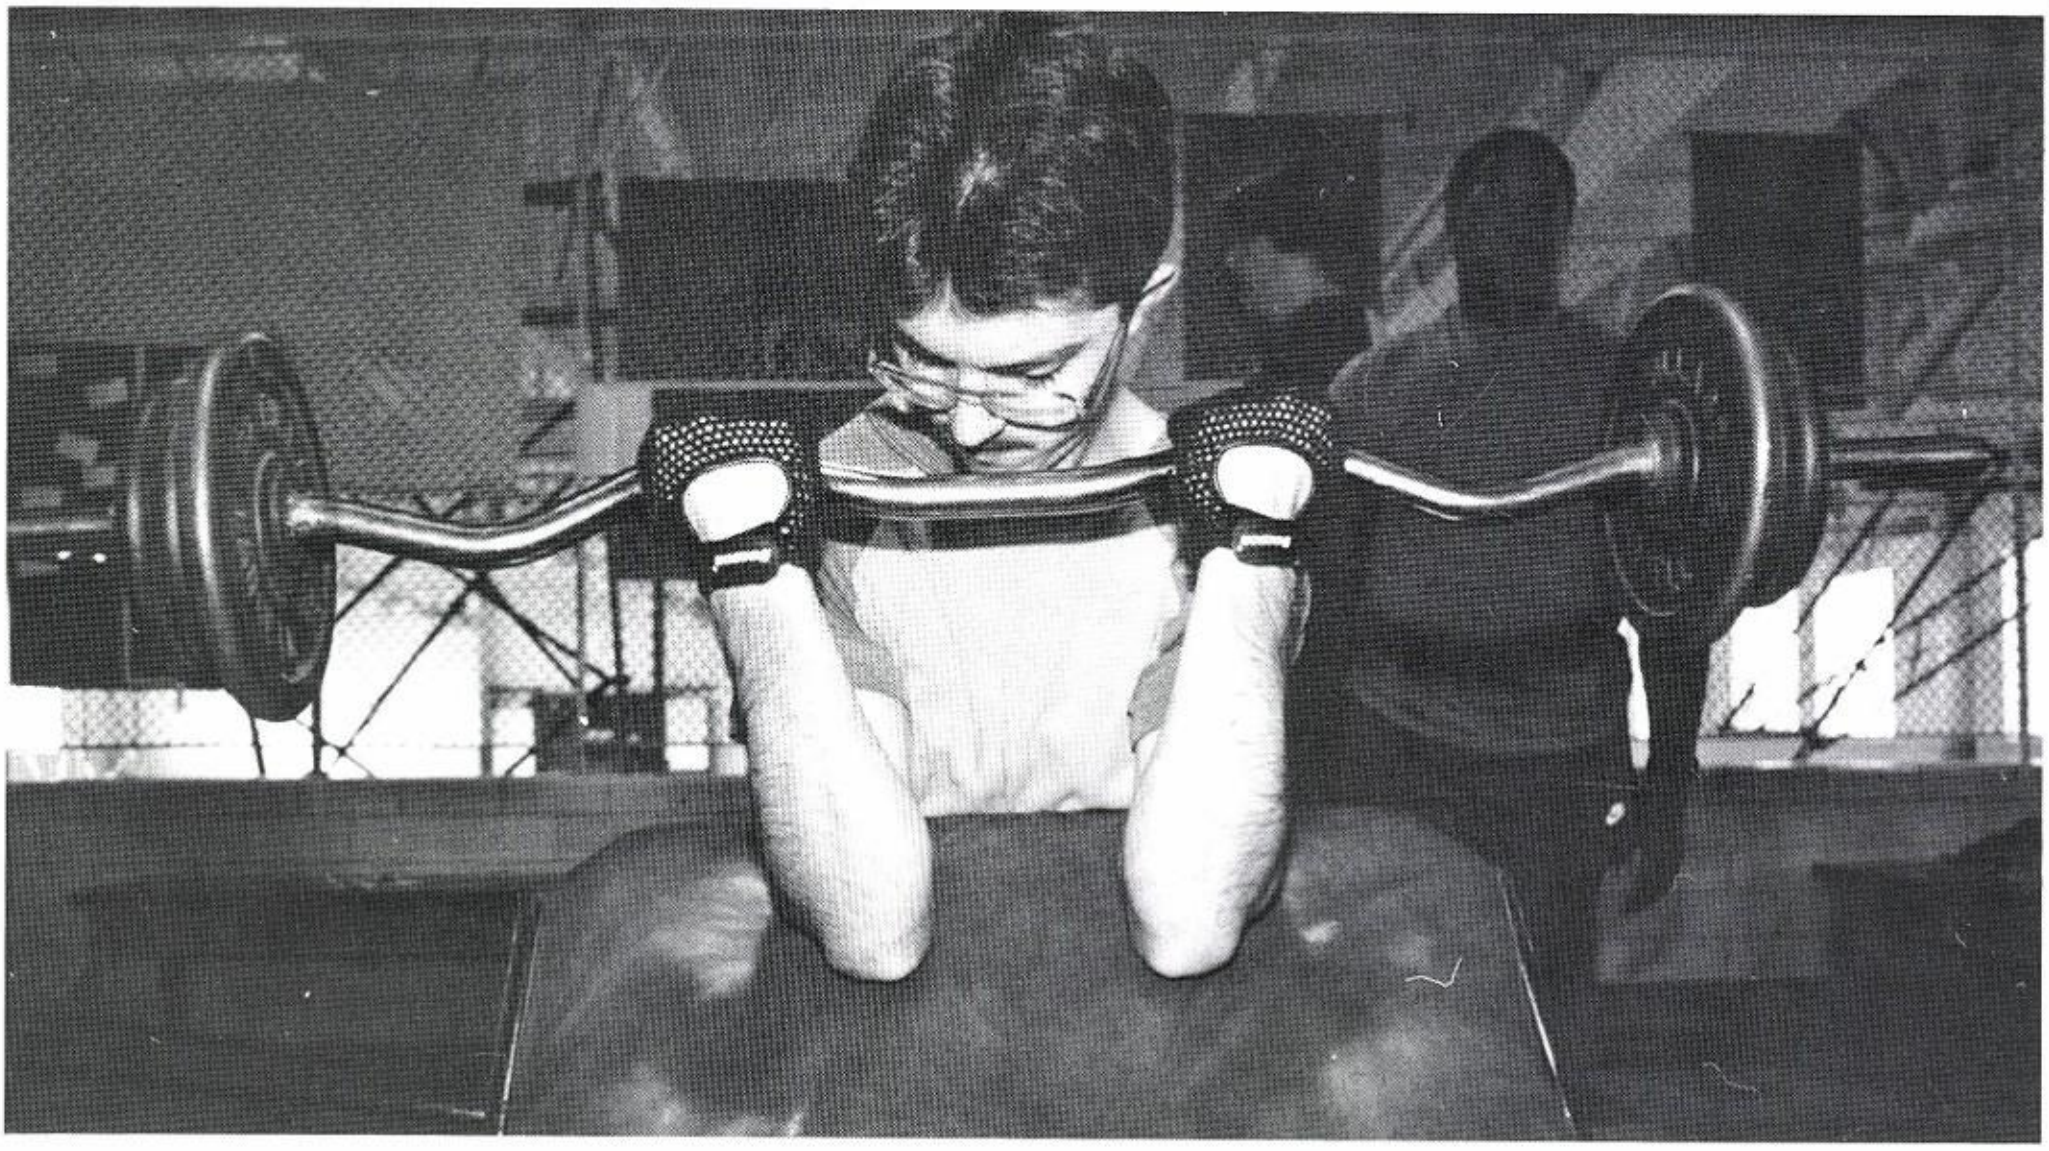
Are you tired of those everyday back pains and sore eyes you get from scrunching over text books? If so then take a look at what we've found.

"Kick 2-3-4, Stretch 2-3-4 and rest." Heard this before? If not, take a look at Ms. Crane's Dance classes. She's got the moves and the motions to get you in shape. Students start out with a warm-up dance to a popular song like "Head to Toe," then move onto making up their own routines and learning some of Ms. Crane's. After sweating off some of those extra calories, it's time to stretch and cool down before the end of class. Or maybe a student would rather focus on building up those muscles. If so, then into your gym suit and up to the weight room for a real workout.

For those of you not into working out, we've found something less strenuous. All you need to do is go to "C" wing second floor, and get cooking. You'll start your first course making your own menu. Then onto the nutrition research where you find out how to prepare a balanced meal. Finally for your dessert you'll enjoy preparing your own food, and serving it to invited guests and teachers.

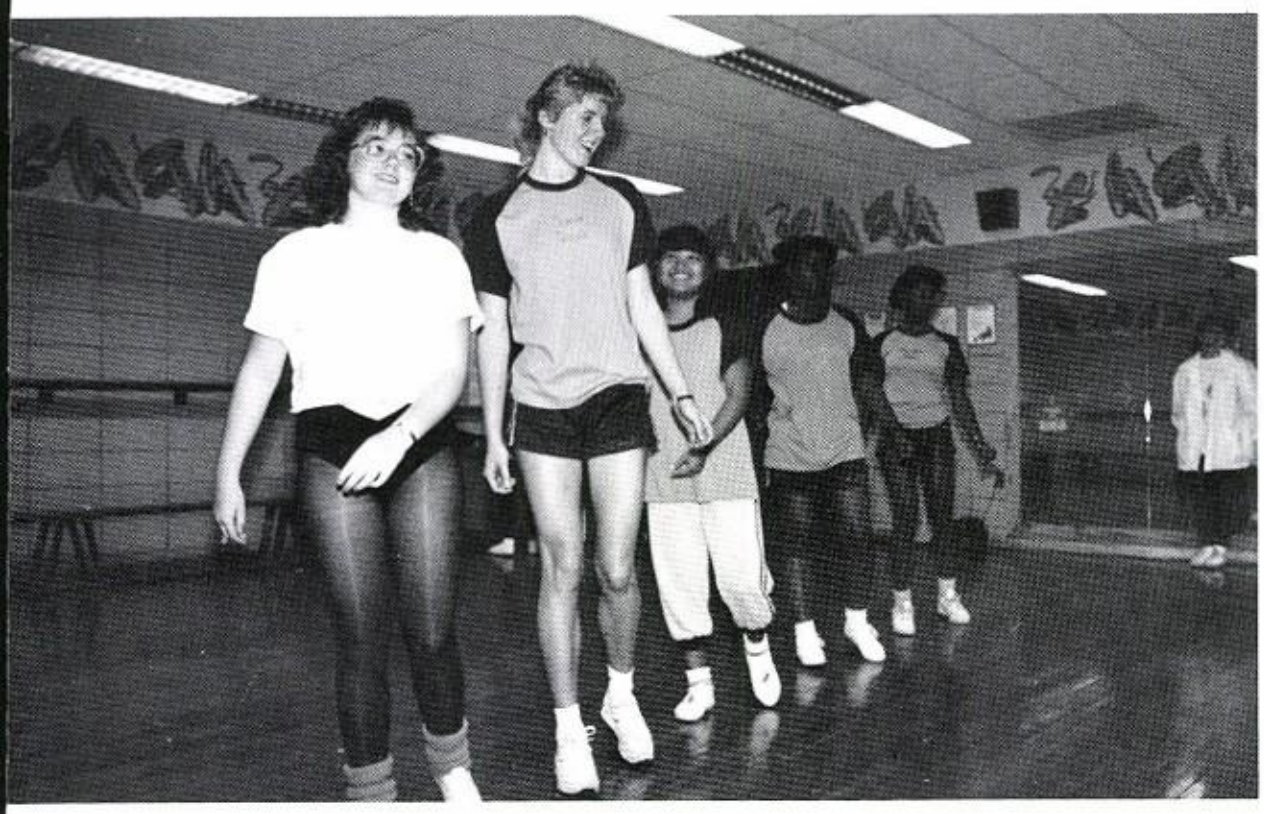
Maybe you'd like to portray another character, and take yourself into a world of fantasy. Join Ms. Pinkney as she takes you through the basics of Drama class. For openers you'll do mouth exercises. Creating abnormal noises, such as amebas, which will carry through the halls of the third floor. These mouth creations and warm-ups will lead you to the exciting acting adventures ahead.

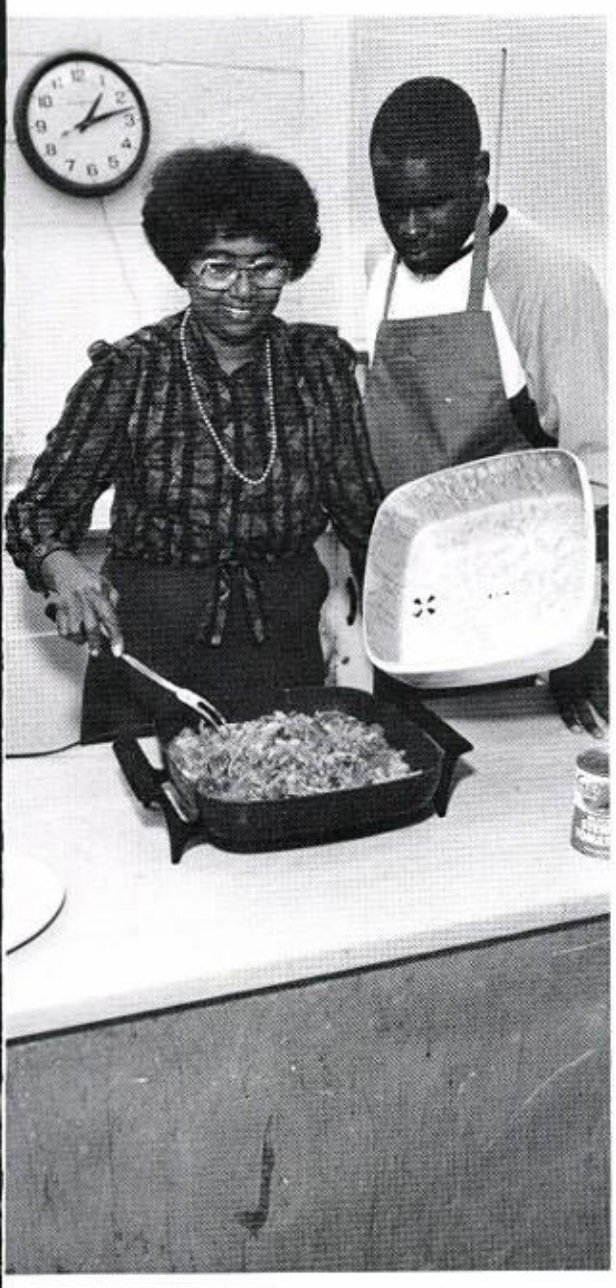
Just imagine all the fun you'll have, so get involved in a class without books!



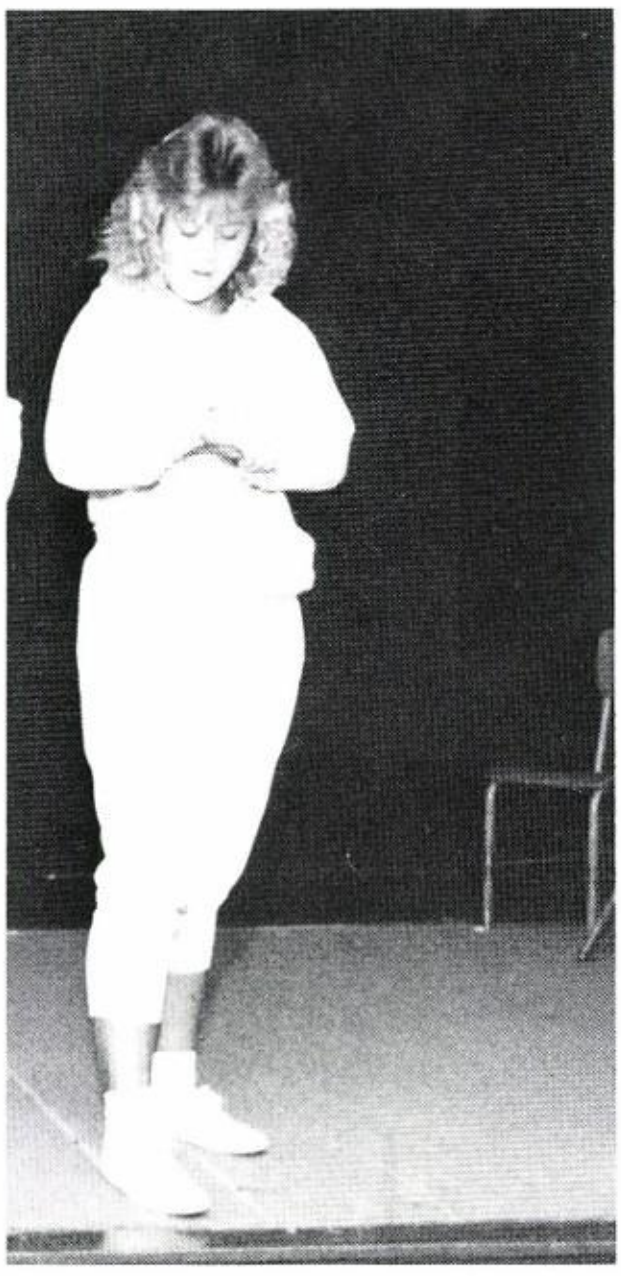
"So that's what the biceps look like," thinks Paul Herbert after spending the first few physical training classes learning how to build up his muscles.

Learning new moves in Ms. Crane's Dance 1 class, Virginia Moore, Sonya Taylor, Gemma Wells, Miriam Alami, and Melanie Jones prep to the music of "Heard it through the Grapevine."

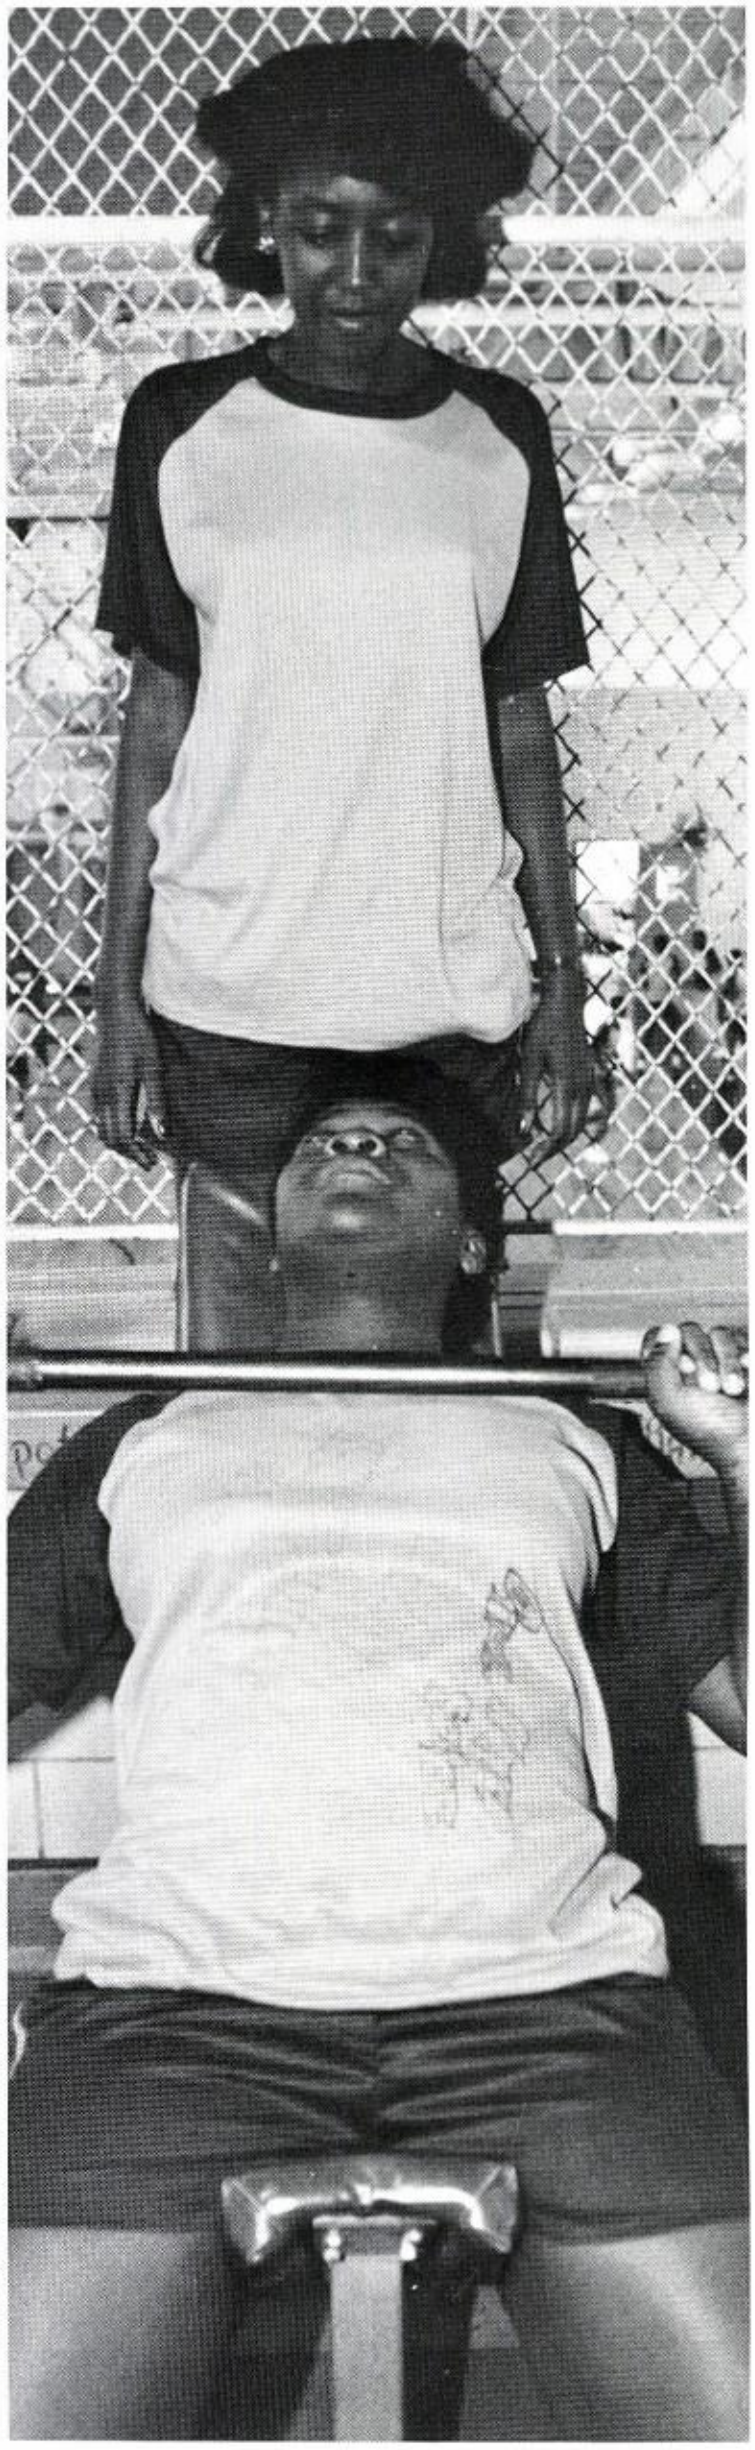




With looks of hunger, Derrick Curry leans over Mrs. Johnson's shoulder to get a wiff of the sweet and sour beef he and Michael Short prepared.



"Where's the train? I'm already late," thinks Robin Hyatt as she acts out a role in Ms. Pinkney's Drama class.



While Sharon Humes works on the incline bench, Kim Stokes spots her in case she needs help in placing the bar on the stand.

BEHIND THE SCENES

Newspaper

"To be or not to be," was the question asked by Mr. Klein (Nor'Wester sponsor), when one student showed at the first meeting held after school.

Nor'wester has had some ups and downs in the past years. Mr. Klein has been with the Nor'Wester for the past two years and is trying to get it back on track. "It's not organized or settled," explained Mr. Klein. There were many events to be covered by the students that have gotten interested in keeping the newspaper.

One of the first steps taken by these students was the gathering of information. They interviewed people involved in the events like coaches, players, and the student body. Other information gathered was a record of the teams' wins and losses. The second step necessary for these students was selling advertisements in order to finance the paper. They went and asked local businesses to take out ads in the Nor'Wester.

"To be or not to be," was the question—the answer is . . . it will be with little or no staff. Mr. Klein looked forward to Nor'Wester's future which included putting out a computerized issue.

SGA

"Can you imagine the United States being run by a female president? Maybe not, but this year the S.G.A. was not only headed by a female president but all of the officers and members were young ladies.

This past year Mrs. Ruley took charge of the student government. Some of the students in the S.G.A. felt that with her leadership many more things were accomplished such as: four dances, a food drive for the homeless, a Ms. and Mr. Northwestern contest, and a leadership conference.

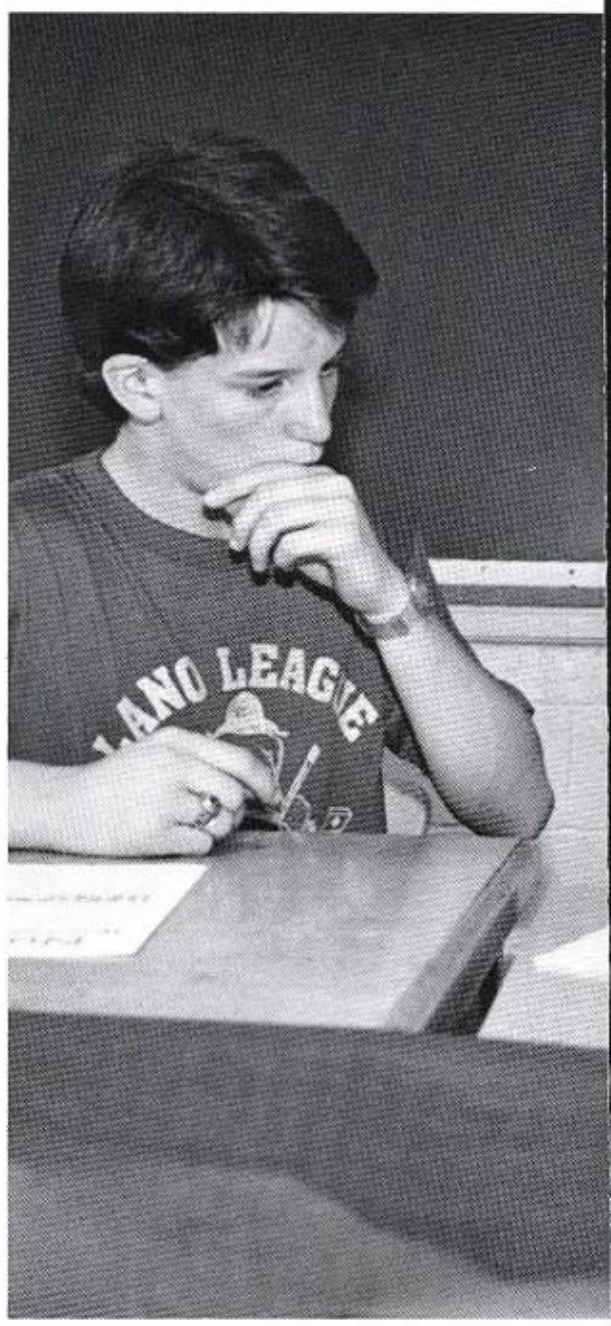
S.G.A livened up homecoming with a carnival that was run by various groups who sold items from cotton candy to polaroid pictures. This had never been done before. Overall, the S.G.A made enough by the selling of lynx, dance tickets and Class night tickets to fund other events throughout the year.

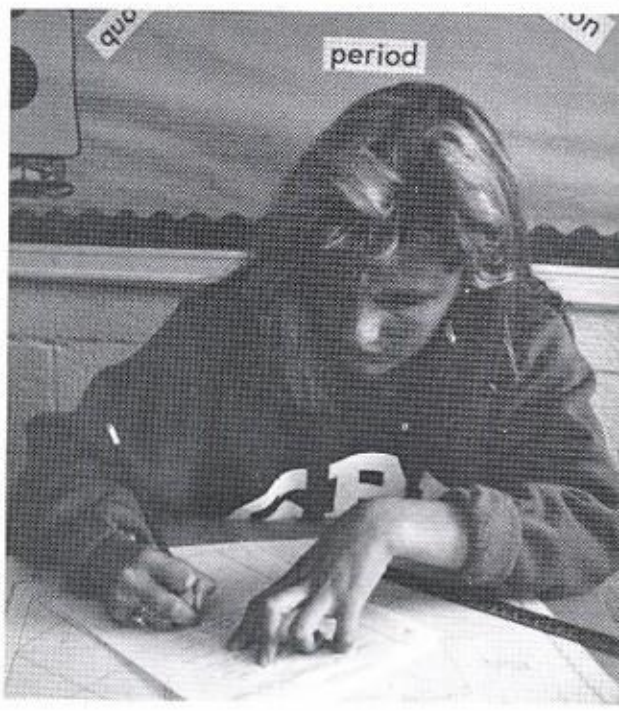
Yearbook

Does making a yearbook sound like a hard job to you? Probably not, because you figure all you have to do is pick out pictures to include in the book. But, boy are you wrong!

Being on the staff included a great deal of work which sometimes caused major headaches. Some causes of the "major headaches" were meeting deadlines, getting interviews, finding the perfect picture and figuring out the right words to describe it. These may sound like easy task to accomplish but they actually required a lot of time and effort.

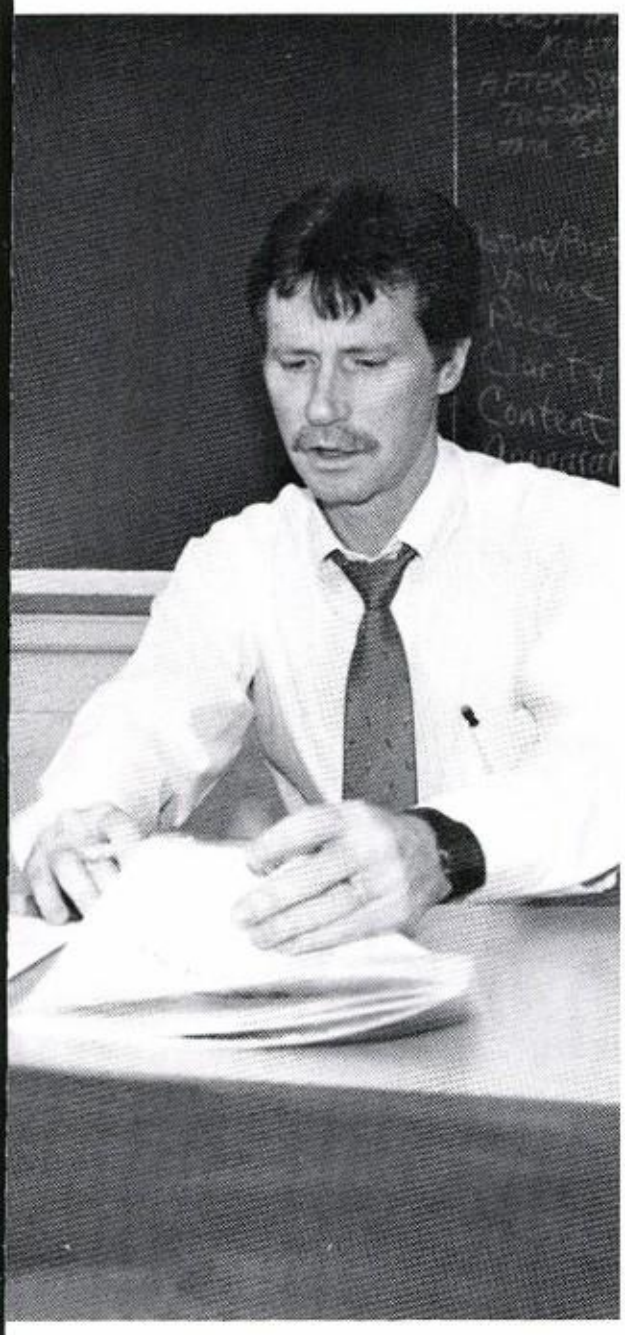
There are also many things expected of a yearbook student that you wouldn't find in any other class such as: selling ads, patrons, yearbooks and other fundraiser items. A feeling of double pleasure was felt by members of the staff when the successful book came out.

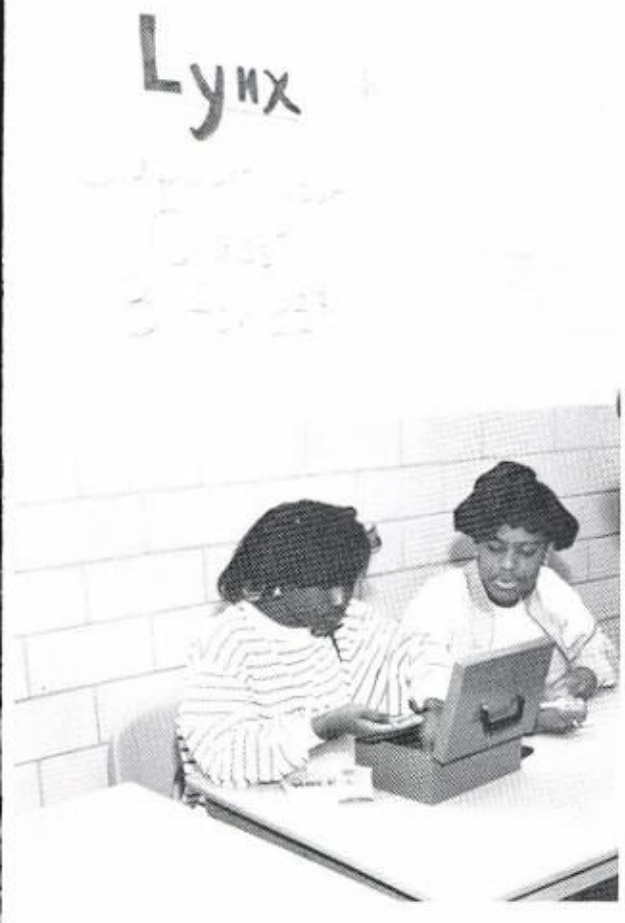




Looking through a issue of the Nor'Wester from last year, Mr. Klein discusses with Dan Ronayne ideas to better Nor'Wester this year.

Completing her academic layout Jackie Codi busily writes down her ideas for her body copy.





"Please buy Lynx!" Taking dollars from those hoping to win, Nana Kwatema and Valerie Moore collect money for the Lynx competition among the classes.

Anxiously trying to meet a deadline Tasha Minor of the Compass staff tries to draw a straight line.

"Come all come one come to vote," —Simone Walton, Catherine Johnson, Darcia Williams and Valerie Moore of the SGA wait for students to make their election for Homecoming court.

Double The Arts

Take The Test

It's new and improved and everyone in the class of 89 and after must have it. What is it you ask? It's a fine and practical arts credit!

Here's a quick quiz to tell you more about it.

1. One needs these credits to:
   a. get a Pepsi
   b. stay home from school
   c. graduate

2. What classes are fine arts?
   a. Art and Biology
   b. Civics and Geometry
   c. Chorus and Drama

3. What classes are practical arts?
   a. Yearbook and Spanish
   b. Typing and Construction
   c. Music and Piano

If you wanted to make a quick check, the answers are: 1. C 2. C 3. B

For more information here are some brief descriptions of fine and practical arts.

Let's start with some questions that are commonly asked.

1. What are fine arts?

Some fine arts courses are those that improve and define skills that are more artistic. Some are Chorus, Art, Drama and Band.

2. What are practical arts?

These classes give you a headstart in training for the future in the job market. Some are Home Economics, Typing, Notehand, ROTC, and other Business courses.

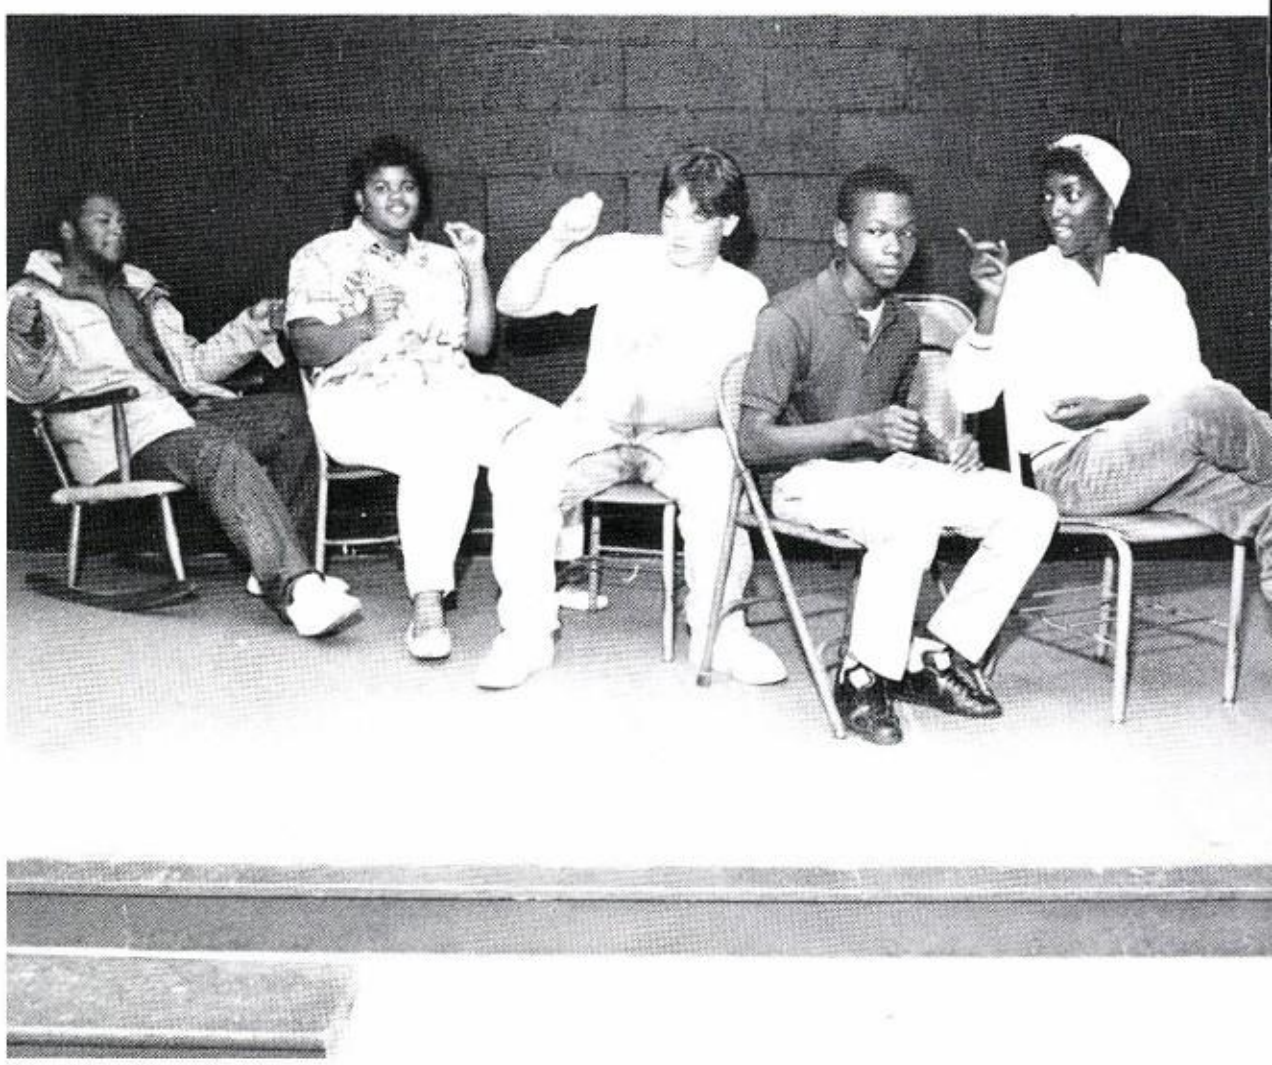
3. Why do I need these?

Well, it was decided by the Board of Education that these courses would help students to get ahead so they are now graduation requirements.

4. How many fine and practical art credits are required to graduate?

For the class of 89 and after each student must have 1 fine arts credit and 1 practical arts credit to graduate.

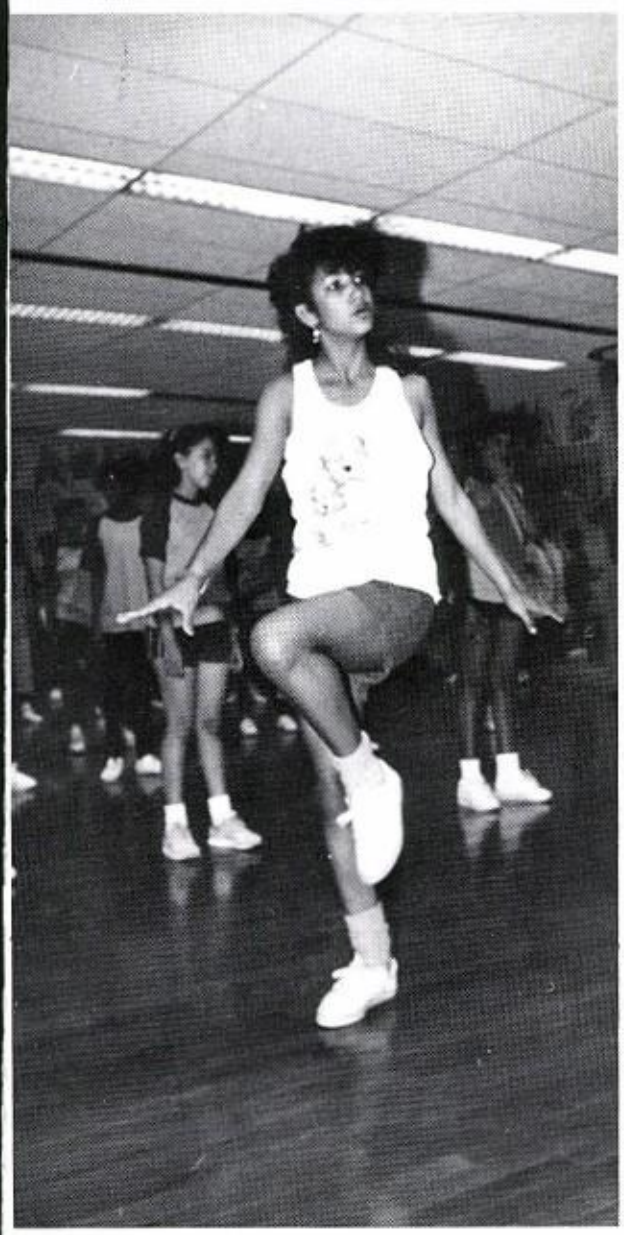
Hopefully this has helped in the search for understanding of fine and practical arts. If you still need help in understanding these courses check with your counselor.



While using the Bandsaw, Charles Hanslor uses safety glasses to protect his eyes as he cuts the plexiglass.

In Drama, these students show extreme concentration in a skit portraying people in a train.

When Mrs. Crane puts on the aerobic music, Vanessa Gonzalez demonstrates she knows how to get in the groove.



During 3rd period, the Concert Chorus enthusiastically practices music for Back-to-School night.

While in art class LaJuan Huff and Dion Gray masterfully study their creation as Leslie Price curiously looks on.

During this five-minute timed writing, the teacher shouts, "Keep your eyes on the copy, please" and as you can see, this class must have been listening.

During 4th period cooking class, Mrs. Johnson intructs Mike Short and Derrick Curry to add tomatoes after letting the stir fry cook for ten minutes.

B-o-r-i-n-g?

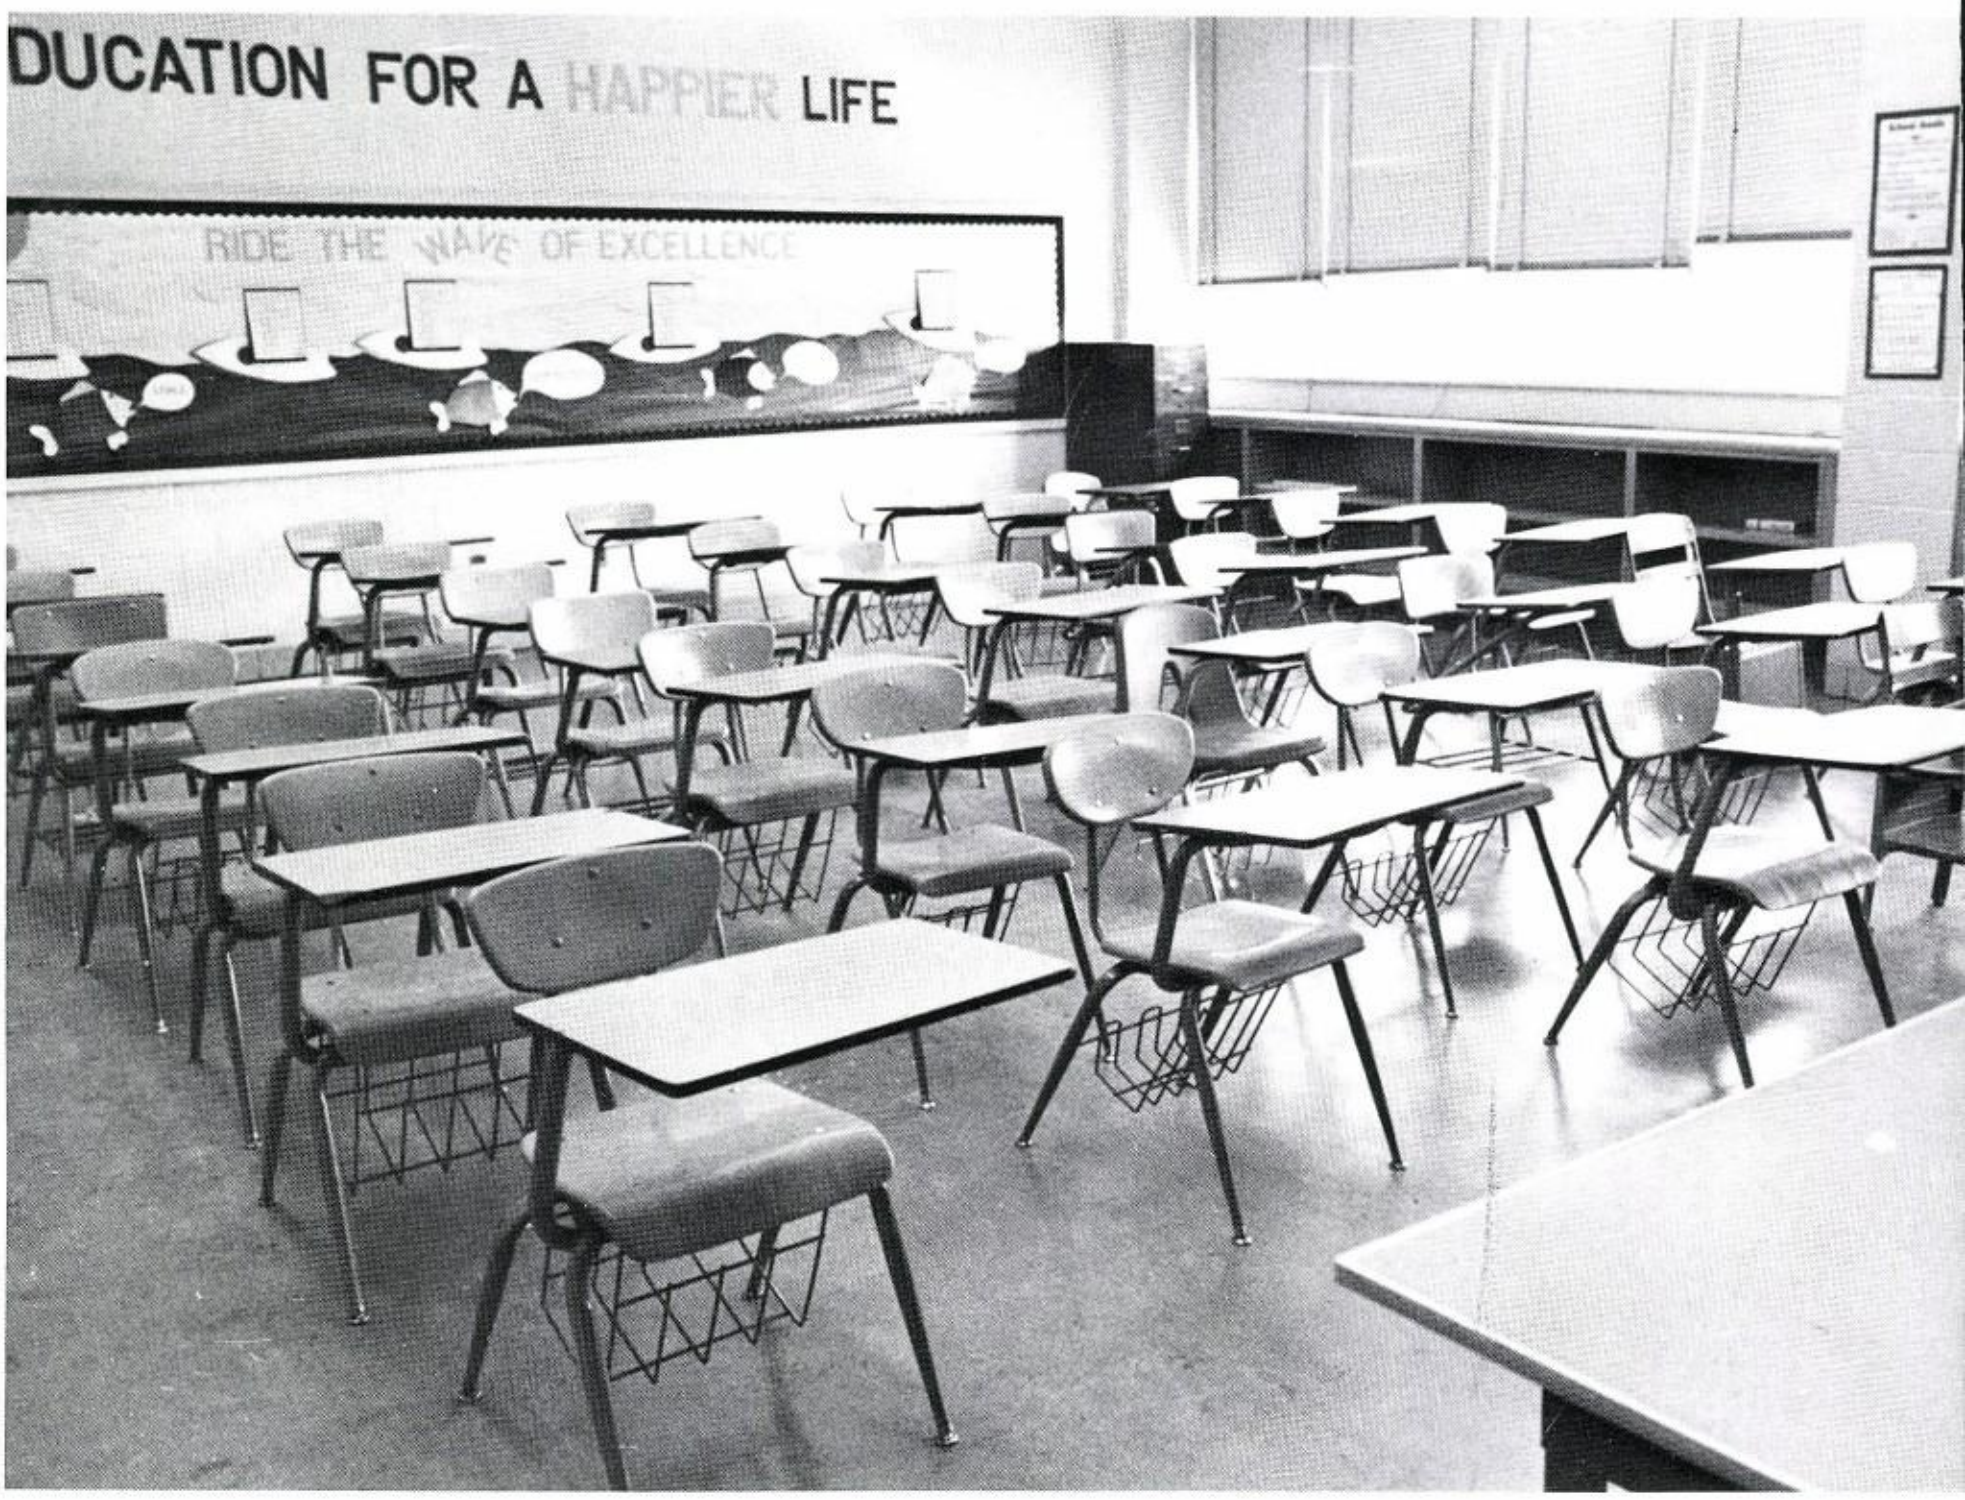
What's Your Worst Class?

Boring! Is that your favorite word? Well it was for most students in Northwestern High School. Venturing in the halls on a Monday morning, students dragged their feet and squinted at the bright lights as they remembered the paper due in first period.

And if that wasn't enough, there was the noise . . . Smack, smack, smack! as the person behind you chewed his gum. Later in the day while scurrying through the halls trying to get to class before the bell rang, the halls closed in on you and you felt like an ant at the bottom of the Grand Canyon.

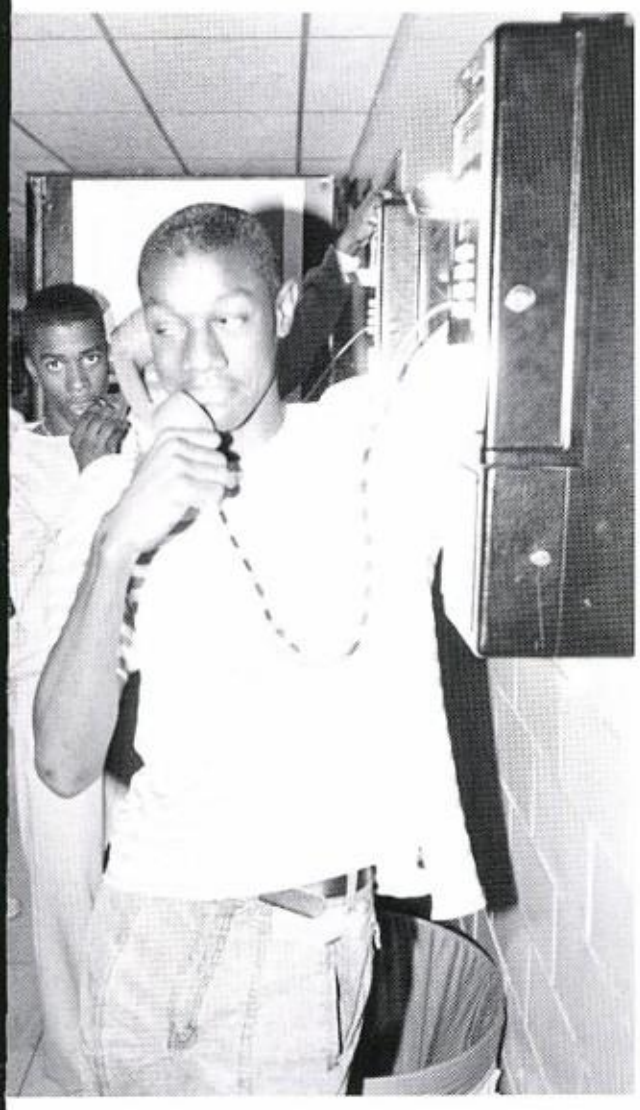
Fortunately, all Monday mornings weren't always that bad, but it became a hastle trying to concentrate when so much was going on all around you.

How did some students deal with the confusion? Well, they invented various excuses to try to get out of a class. Did you have a favorite excuse? Check the next page and see if we've included yours.



Mr. Mullen's fourth period English class just loves the way he teaches, but honestly he doesn't have a fourth period class. Mr. Mullen spends much of his planning period making these beautiful boards.

ley, Mom, can you get here on the double? . . .
ause I'm in trouble.



Getting down with a rap, Mrs. Ruley's seventh period AP class tries to laugh at her jokes.

Okay! Take it easy! Relax Dionne Tucker and count to ten. The bell will ring soon!

Excuses, Excuses

 Can I go to the bathroom?

 Can I go see the nurse?

 Can I go to the office?

 Can I go to the library?

 Do you have an errand to be done?

 I don't feel well.

 I left my purse in my last class.

 I have an early dimissal.

 I can only go during my study hall.

 I have to go to my locker.

Double The Learning

Advanced Placement

Get ready for something special at Northwestern High School.

What, you might ask, is special at Northwestern?

The Advanced Placement Program, that's what.

The Advanced Placement Program at Northwestern offers courses designed to challenge the student with higher learning capabilities.

These courses are designed to challenge the brighter student while offering him/her a chance for advancement. In the U.S. History class taught by Ms. Lyann Rudert, for example, the emphasis in the class is on an exam the students take at the end of the school year. Students passing the exam may forego the first semester of U.S. History in college.

Advanced Placement classes are offered in English, Physics, U.S. History and European History.

You may be eligible for the Advanced Placement Program. Your counselor can show you the way. Go for it!

Concurrent Enrollment

Double life! Double education! This sounds like a great way to go through your senior year and it was, according to Paige Tinney, who said, "It gave me a chance to widen my academic goals."

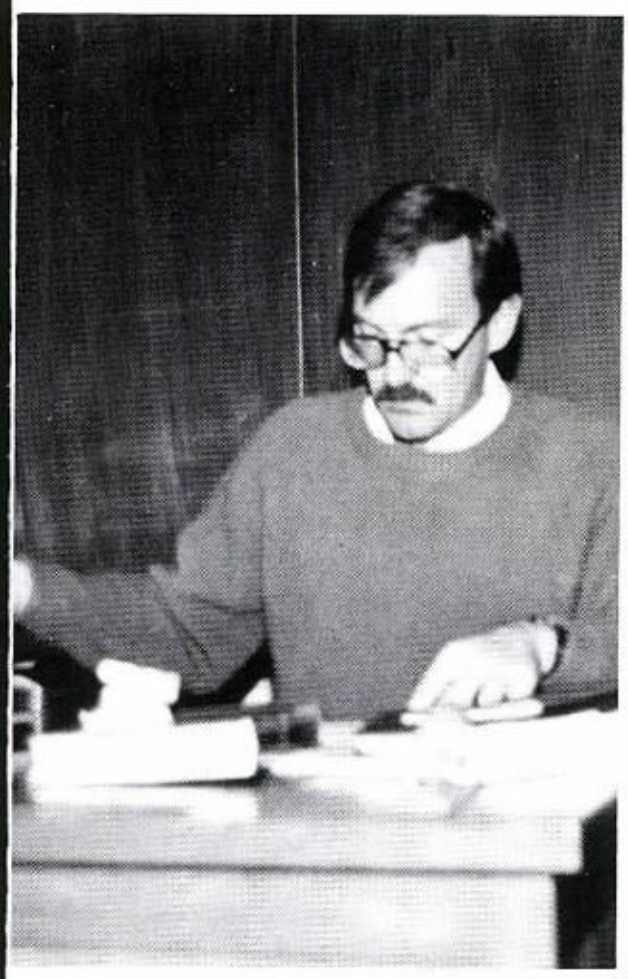
In C.E. (Concurrent Enrollment) classes students attend either the University of Maryland or Prince George's Community College on a daily basis—for up to four hours per day. According to Mr. Hall, guidance counselor and C.E. representative, these students can get a head start on college credits and/or sign up for courses not offered at Northwestern.

Five Northwestern seniors were involved in C.E. in the 1987-88 school year. Those in the program found it to be a good experience.

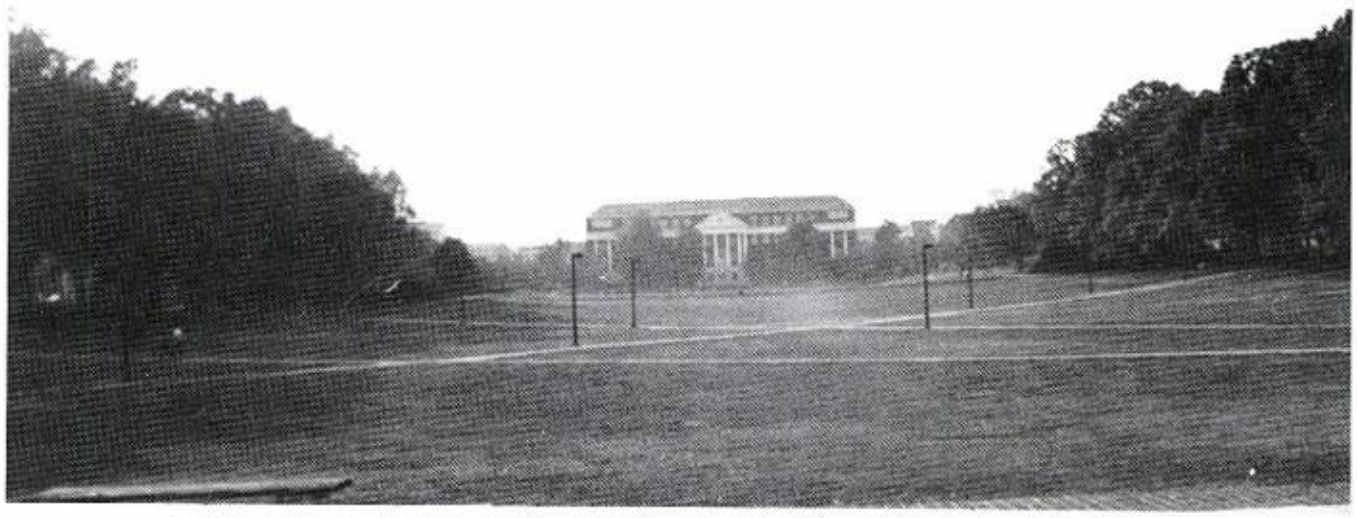
When senior Sharla Powell was asked about her feelings on C.E. she said, "I loved the independent feeling and the support and confidence I got from the classes at Maryland University."

Keeping a watch on the halls before class is the 12th grade A.P. Physics teacher Mr. Cleveland.

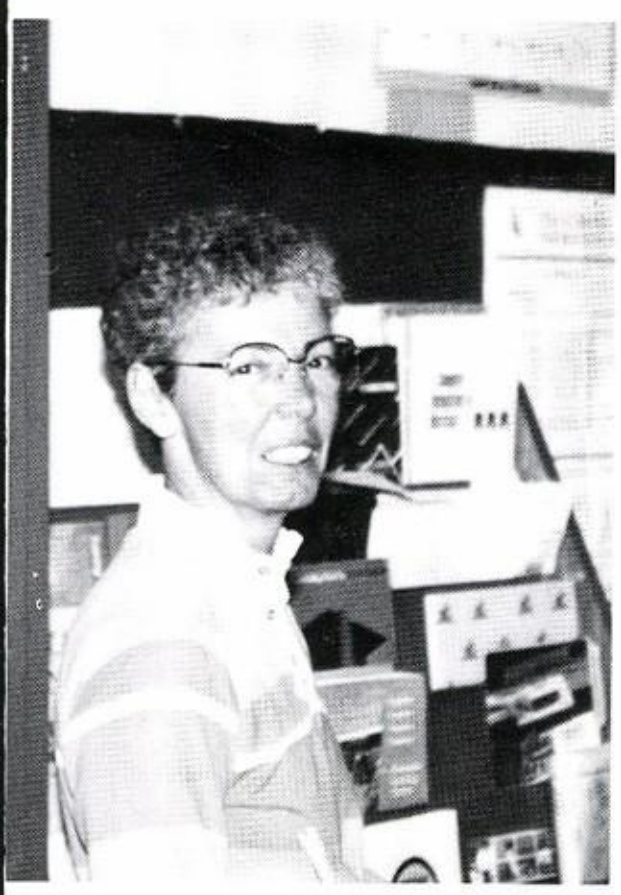
Making his plans for the day, Mr. Warchol the 12th grade European History teacher is busy studying. Mr. Warchol is also the sponsor of the It's academic club.



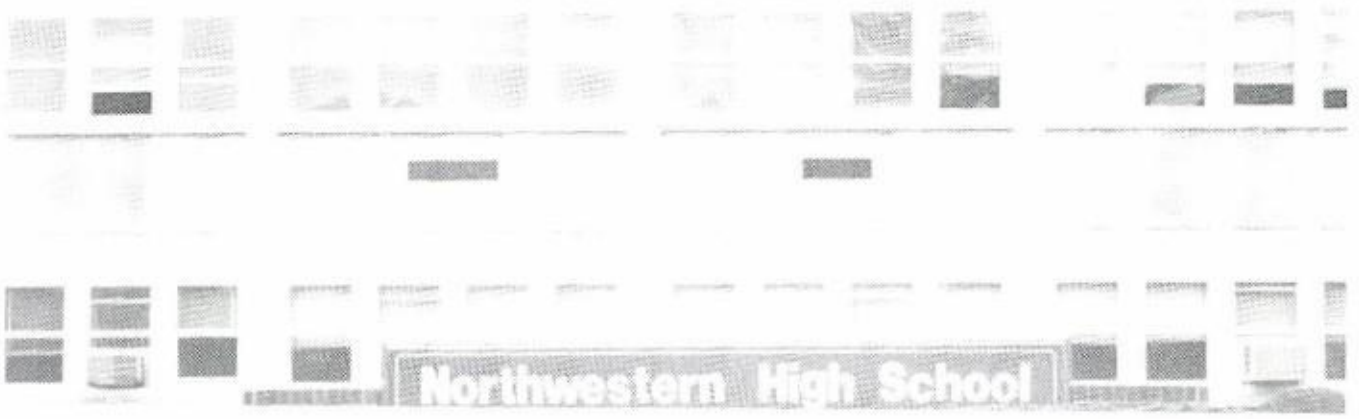
A familiar site of some of the long walks the C.E. students made daily between classes at the U. of M. The students either drove or walked to the nearby campus.



Leaving early from school to get to class on time at the University of Maryland are Paige Tinney, and James McDonald.



The U.S. History teacher Ms. Rudert steps into the Career Center to catch the latest news from Mr. Hall. Ms. Rudert has a unique act-teaching style as she draws the attention of her students.



Northwestern High School is less than one mile away from the neighboring campus of the University of Maryland, which makes' it a good place for our students to complete their high school, and college academic goals.

"What do you mean, I can't put my feet on the desk?", asked Minerve Castro, a student aide for Mrs. Clark in Guidence 5th period.

A Helping Hand

Super Aide!

Faster than Federal Express, more powerful than a zerox machine, able to run errands in a single bound.

Its a nerd . . . Its a brain . . . No, its a student aide.

All during the day you saw people roaming the halls. Little did you know that they were allowed to be there. Who exactly were these people? Well, these were people who are hard working and generous, students who were willing to give up a whole school period out of their day to help assist a teacher. These people were student aides.

Student aides had lots of little assignments to complete throughout the period, assignments such as straining their eyes to check home-work and test papers, rushing through the halls worrying about getting the errands done on time, or fighting the wild and crazy zerox machine hoping they could keep it under control.

Although this seems like a very hard and treacherous job, there was excitement in being a student aide. Said one who had little experience, "It's fun walking through the halls running errands instead of doing school work, or watching students scramble before a test."

Almost every teacher has a student helper one period or another. A student takes a great deal of pressure off the teacher and helps to double the teachers accomplishments. "Student aides are great, super", exlaimed Mr. Walsh, "Every teacher should have one."

Oh . . . my . . . Gosh . . ! says Dana Dickerson and Jackie Codi as they are trying to keep this bezerk zerox machine that always breaks down under control.

Now look here Thaddius Katz, I have students
ipping class all the time, I don't need a stunt aide roaming the halls", exclaims Mr.
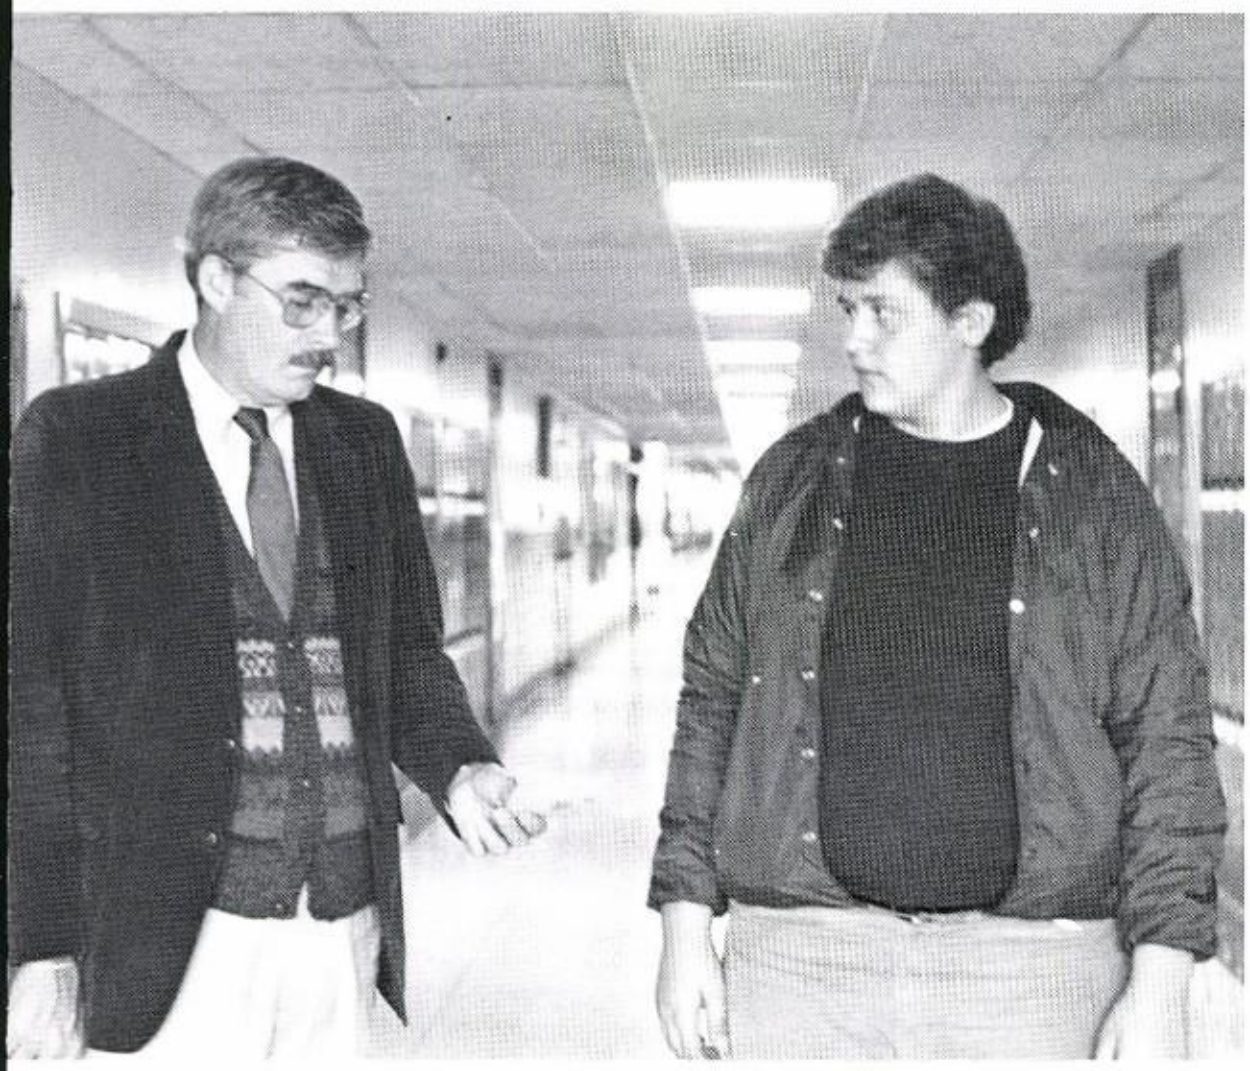
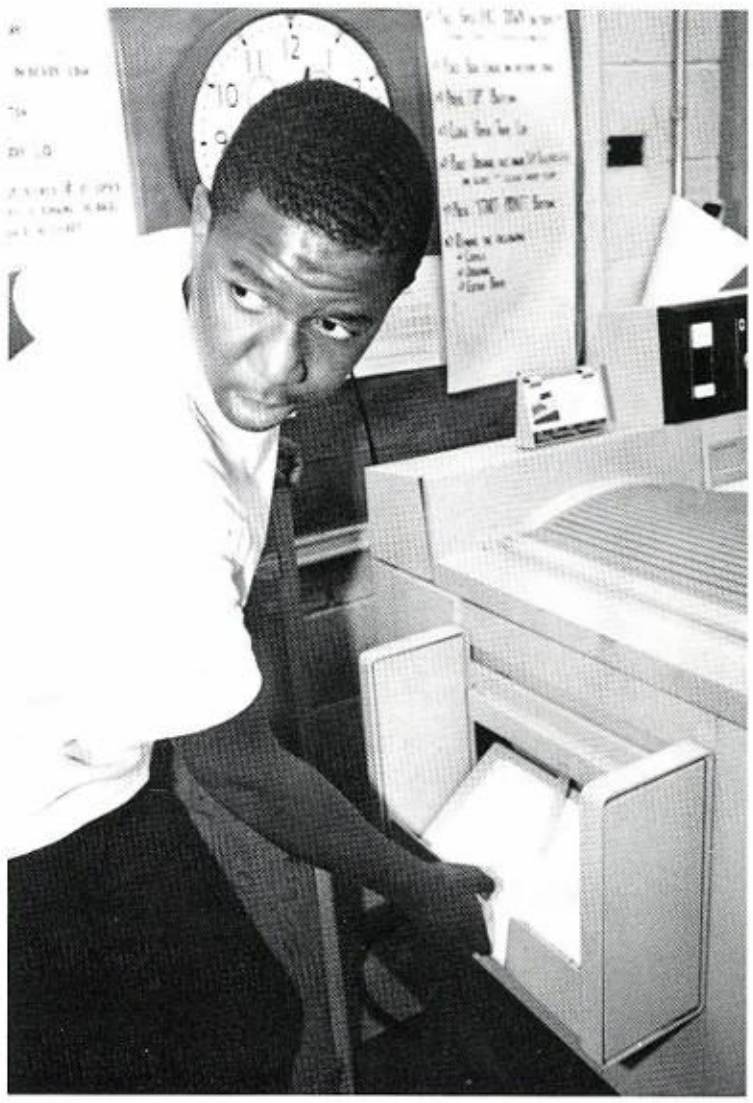
nderson.



"Oh, no, not again!", cries Troy Richmond, "Why do these papers always curl up on me?"



oncentrating very carefully, Valerie Moore,

As he finishes the last of 8,937,430,000 copies, Kenny Perry feels a strange twist of joy and relief.

Double The Money

Money, Money, Money!

Double the money, spend money, and save money. The world revolves around. money; every business needs money, and the only way students can make money is if they have marketable skills. The time for young people to learn these skills is when they're still in school. Several classes you can take in school to prepare you for the future include: Typing, Shorthand, Business Law, Business Math, Vo-Tech, and Work Study.

Work Study is one of the schools most popular-classes. And about half of our seniors join work study every year. The first step in registering, for this program is filling out an application, that lists has all of your interests and abilities. After this is done, one of these work study teachers (Mrs. Fridling, Mrs. Davis, or Mrs. Thomas.) looks over your application and helps you to find a job you like and qualify for. Depending on your abilities work study students work at places such as, the General Accounting Office, The I.R.S. Unit, the NASA Federal Credit Union, and McDonalds. Wages at these jobs range from $4.00 to $6.00 an hour and besides getting paid, you also receive high school credit.

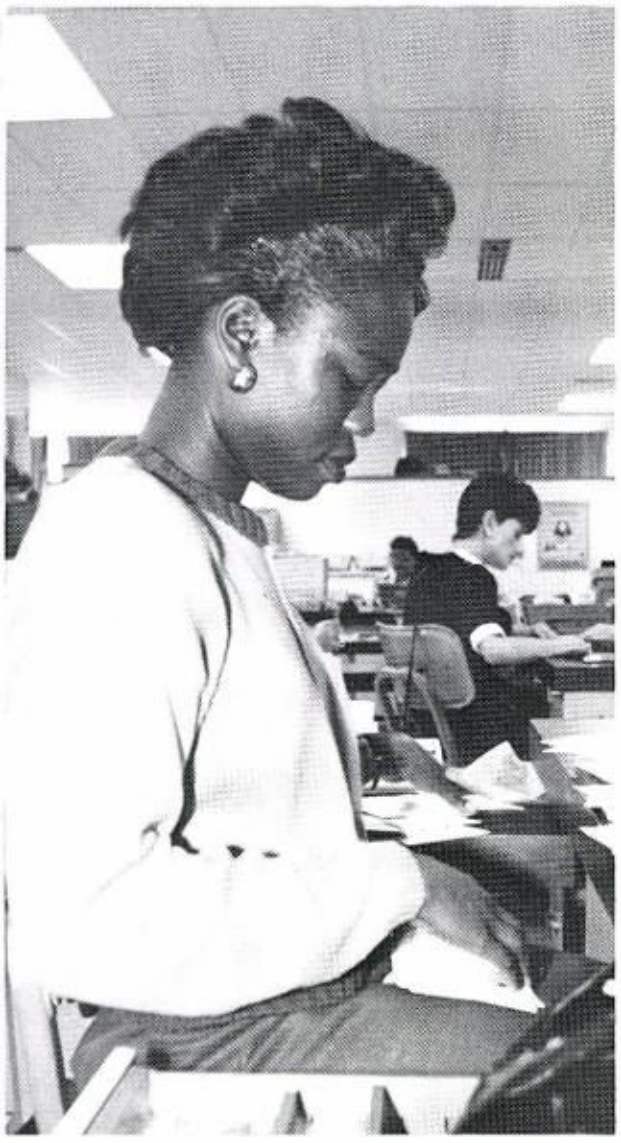
Vo-Tech, on the other hand, is for people who when they graduate want to join a company, to work as an assistant, or just to further their education before going to college. Vo-Tech students split their time between Northwestern and one of the two Vo-Tech centers at Laurel or Bladensburg. In Vo-Tech you can learn on of many skills ranging from Drafting, to Cosmetology, to Electronics, to Auto skills. By participating in this program you stand a chance of becoming successul and ultimately earning as much as $40,000 a year.

To all students who are thinking about college, or just love to earn money, Consider your future, and take all you can get while it's free!

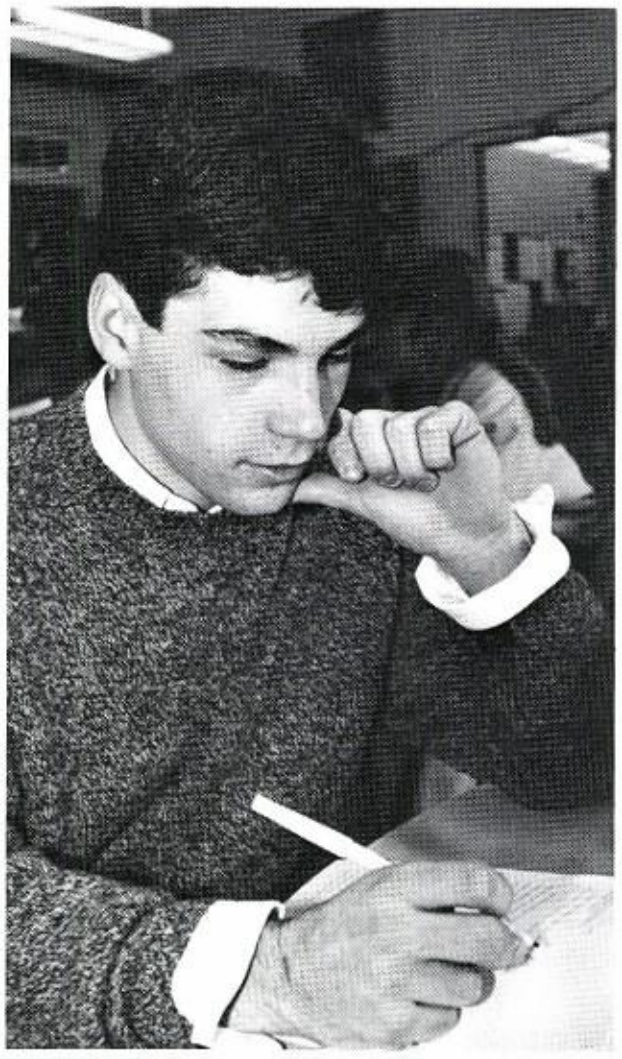
Drawing is what Brentford Davis hopes his future will include. Brentford is a Vo-tech student at Bladensburg where he spends half his day in a drafting program.

Working at Editor's Press in Hyattsville, Natalie Williams learns to operate a computer as part of her Work-Study experience.

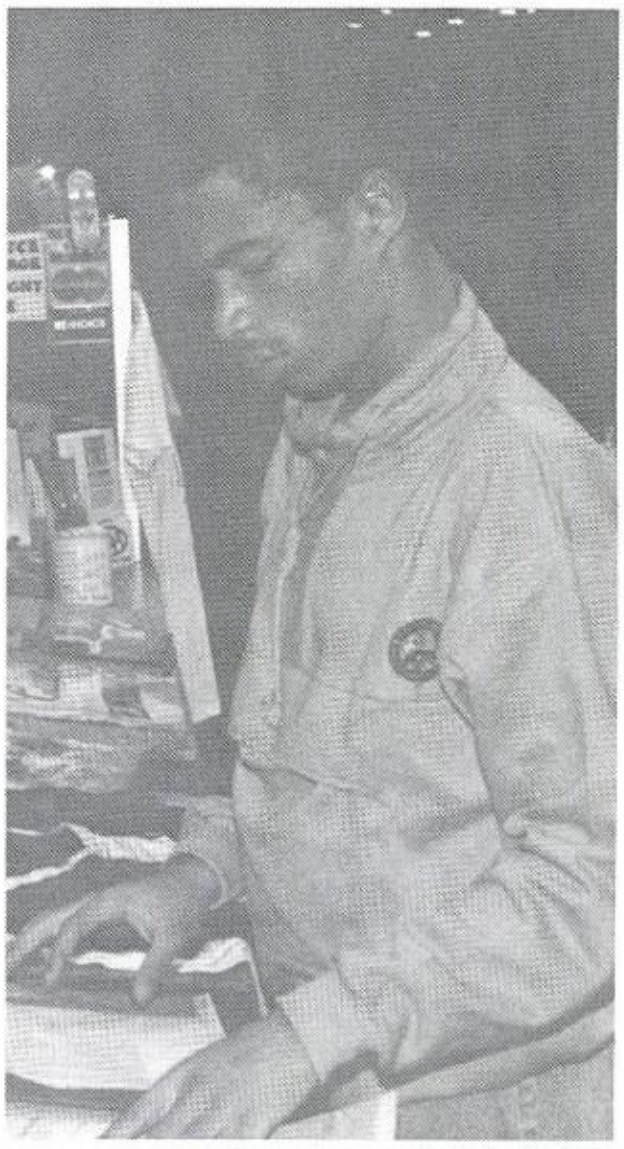
Typing for her first year, Shelree Degree says it's her last year. But even if she doesn't know it, having this skill could make the difference in her future.



Sorting through letters, we catch our senior Sheila Griffin hard at work at Editor's Press.



Daydreaming or just thinking? Greg Beach may be learning shorthand which will help him to take notes more quickly in the future.



Working at Wild Tops at P.G. Plaza, Errek N. Artis steadily takes inventory.

Double The Anticipation

Functional Tests

My heart sank. "It's all over." I said to myself as I watched the glorious smiles on all of my friends' faces. All I ever strove for everything I ever wanted is swept past me now. I stared at my golden class ring, which glistened in the stadium's light.

"If only . . . ", I paused to repel my tears and continued, "If only I had listened to my teachers and friends. If only I would have taken advantage of all the free imformation and help that my English, Math, and Civics teachers gave me. Unfortunately it's too late now. All my friends have graduated and are going to be getting on with their lives.

"I took all the tests; Citizenship, Mathmatics and Reading and Writing. I just gave up after I failed them. It didn't seem important at the time."

I looked further down on the floor of the stadium. There I saw Sally, who had taken Ms. Betcher's Functional Math class. Next to her I saw Rob, who always did Mrs. Kearns' English and writing samples. I glanced over to the middle and saw Joyce, who always was on top of things in her Civics class.

"Well, what do you know Pete made it." I exclaimed to myself. He failed all of his tests, but later he got his act together and received help from a tutor.

All of a sudden hats flew as all of the successful seniors celebrated.

Then, my view was blocked by a proud parent taking pictures. I then heard two girls talking.

"I bet Suzy's party is going to be a blast," said the one girl.

"Yeah I heard everyone from the graduating class is going," said the other.

"DING. DING."

"Hey, Julie wake up. You slept right through class!"

"Um a. Huh, what?" I answered.

"Come on! We have to go take the Maryland Functional Tests now." The voice replied.

"I'm ready! I'm ready! Lets go!" I screamed with a passion. "Let's go."

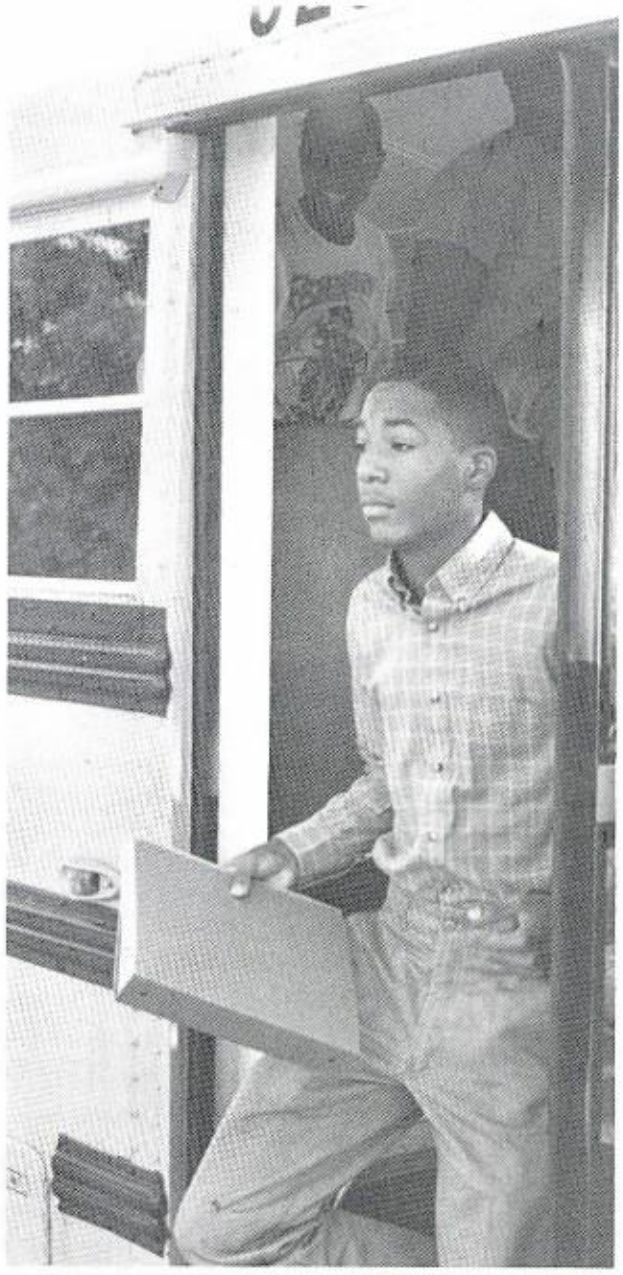
S.A.T.'S

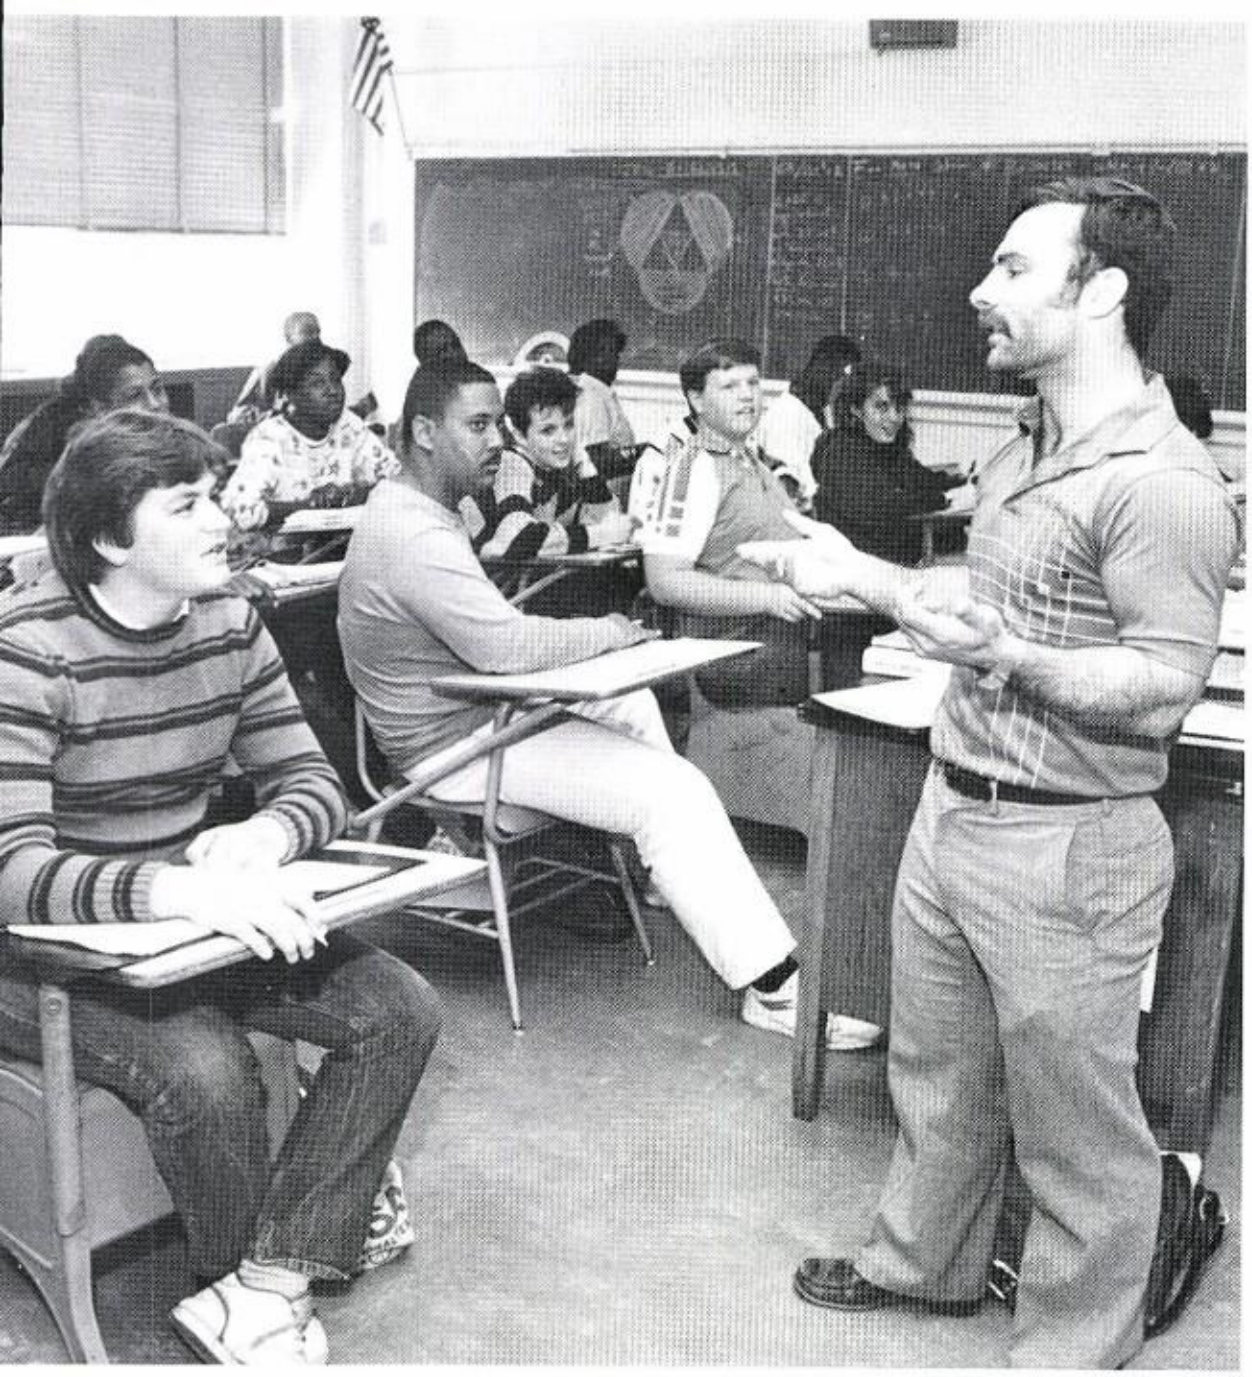
Have you been kicked around? aken advantage of? Called dumb or n idiot? Well here's a way to get ven. Put those insults to a halt, take ne SAT's (Scholastic Aptitude Test) r the PSAT (Preparation for the cholastic Aptitude Test). These tests re dreaded by a lot of students but ou can prove that you're no dummy y taking these tests and doing well n them.

Both the SAT and PSAT, test your ath skills in Geometry, and Algebra nd your verbal skills with sections n antonyms, analogies and reading mprehension. Teachers try to pre- are you for these tests, but there is only so much they can do. It's up to you to study and pass these tests, that's why they have prep classes to prepare you; these classes are usually during school in your English or Math classes or on weekends.

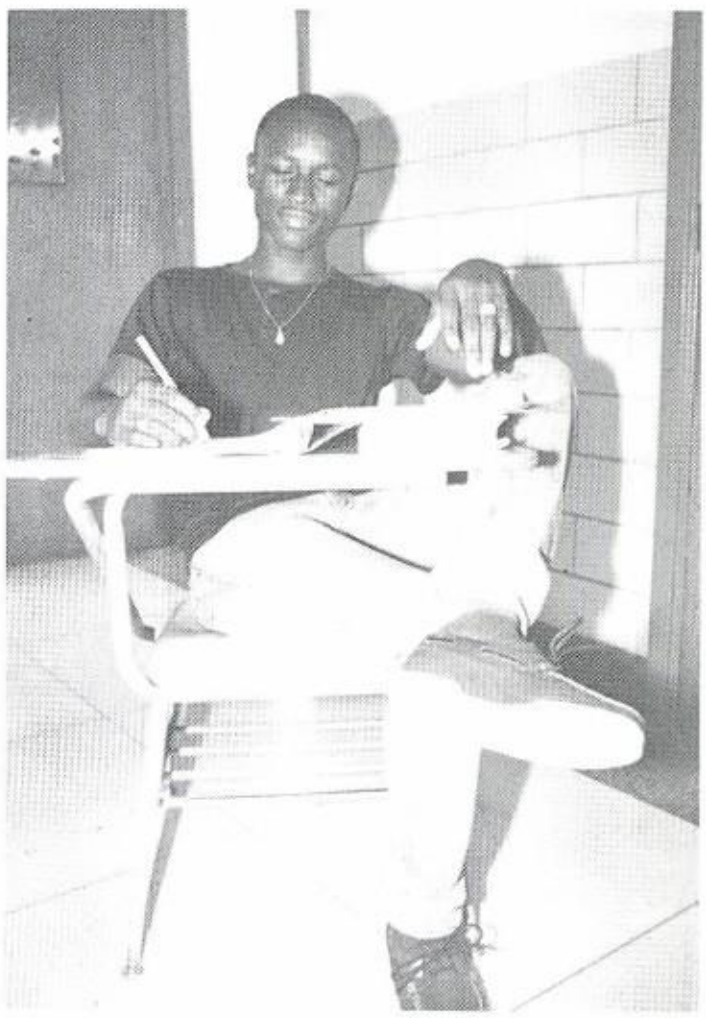
In order to register for the SAT you need to see your counselor, they will give you a booklet that contains a sample of the SAT and there's an information sheet that you fill out and mail to the College Board.

These tests can be taken many times. But remember to concentrate on getting a high score the first time so it will be the last time you have to take the test.





vidently everyone listens to Mr. Mcrae as he lks to his students about tips on the math ortion of the SAT.



Perfectly calm about his ability to pass the SAT's Antonio Hall steps off the bus.

Football, Double The Action

Sports Heroes

Our time has come! Ask anyone who attends Northwestern about their football team in the '87 season and they will all tell you, "They're tough!"

Starting the year with only 17 people they ended the year with a record of 6-4, and our first homecoming victory in 16 years! So let's give credit where credit is due; to just a few of our outstanding players, who with their combined efforts make this year possible.

Outstanding Running Back: Kevin Qualls and Irwin Forbes.

Outstanding Defensive Back: Julian Blair

Outstanding Defensive Lineman: Stephen Brantley.

Outstanding Offensive Lineman: Troy Williams.

Outstanding Receiver: Leroy Smith.

Outstanding Special Teams: Lee Cloud.

Outstanding Linebacker: Charles Burton.

Unsung Heroes: Jemal Averette and Greg Parrish.

*MVP's of the '87 year are Stephen Brantley and Leroy Smith.

Preparing For The Future . . . .

Only The Beginning!

The NHS soccer team started out the 1987 season by winning three out of their first four games.

The coachs' goals for this season were for players to work on individual skills; they did this by practicing with partners each day. When asking Dennis Trainum how did he feel about practices he smiled and said, "Practices are a lot of work and tiresome, but we need it in order to be the best we can." Coach Walsh and Stickles make sure everyone practiced in order to play.

When faced with the question of what was their most competitive game? Coach Walsh explained, "Parkdale, because we had already played them once; they knew our system and even had some of our former players; we had to develop new strategies." The game was a close one with a 3-2 score but this time unlike the first game of the season, Parkdale came out on top.

The soccer team ended the season with a 4 and 7 record which wasn't that bad according to Coach Stickles because of the new players who they had to teach routines to. So next year watch out because we will have the Wildcats on the loose.

Missing the ball, goalie, Marco Castrillo is angry as the other team scores a goal.

Who's got the ball? cries Meshack Aduwu as he sees the ball fly past Edddie Bustillo, who is trying to prevent the other team from retrieving the ball.

Working For Recognition

All psyched up and ready to win was the attitude of the NHS Volleyball team as they played Suitland during a game and did just that.

Achieving The Goal

What makes a good Volleyball team? A lot of dedication and hard work. "This was a mediocre and building season for the team", exclaimed coach Wrightson, "My goal for the team this year was to train the rookies for their playing years ahead."

To reach this goal, the team had two hour practices everyday. "Early in the season practices were tough, we had to run the track a couple of times to warm-up", explained Sharla Powell, "But towards the end of the season, practices got really easy; we weren't pushed as hard."

It was a long and hard struggle for the squad. Learning to work together as a team was difficult at first for the the returning players, it was frustrating waiting for the first year players to learn the techniques. After attending the World Volleyball Training Camp in New York, Rebekah and Sharla, the two captains came back with plenty of experience to teach.

It was a very trying season for the squad. They encountered many challenging squads. According to Rebekah Robinson, "Our most competitive game was against High Point, because we lost the first two games and came back at the end with a three game victory."

What a year! Finishing with a record of six wins and eight losses, the squad has surely reached their goal of training and preparing for future games.

"I got it, It's mine!", shouts Wendy Wimbrow as she bumps the ball.

Running Tough

Accelerating In Size

The Indoor Track Team has practically doubled in size since last year. There are between six and eight new runners who are all giving it their best. "It takes time for a new runner to do well," says Assistant Coach Mr. Richard Thomas, "and our new team members are trying hard." He also adds, "The returning team members are doing quite well. Twanna Shields and Shauna Clarke are excellent runners." The team's best overall event is the 55-meter dash in which Shauna Clarke competes.

The Indoor Track Team practices Monday thru Friday, right after school, until 5:30 or 6:00. They have warm-up exercises and then they go on runs that could take them all the way to the Univ. of MD golf course. In bad weather they may practice at Cole Field House, but when weather permits practice is held outside on our track. They usually run five to seven miles a day.

First year runner, Brian Costello, says Head Coach Mr. Mike Roberts is tough, "He makes us do the most we can, til we can't do any more." Senior, Kristen Noble says, "He takes no excuses which helps build our stamina." Junior, Mark Mooney says his goal is, "to make it to the states and hopefully be competitive."

With this hard work and success this year, maybe the Indoor Track Team will continue growing with more and more competitive runners.

Matmen Go For A Pin

Pin Or Be Pinned

"Thin and tough", is how Coach Boettinger describes his wrestling team. This year the coach's goal was to take his wrestlers and work as a team to be the best they could be.

This was done by much practice. "Practices were very intense," said junior co-captain, Eric Freeman. He pointed out that they practiced six days a week for nearly two and a half hours each day. Some things the wrestling team did in practices included: push-ups, sit ups, and 20 minute runs that were done inside the school, starting from the third floor to the basement. Practices were very demanding according to the matmen.

Over the years the wrestlers achieved many personal goals. Many have memories that they will never forget. Senior co-captain Dan Ronayne remembers well his first match—A game bell against Forestville, "I was a sophomore and was very intimidated by the crowd. It was a very tough bout, but fortunately he turned to his back and I pinned him."

So, if football and basketball don't interest you, check out the Northwestern Wrestling team, but remember if it wasn't so tough, everybody would do it. Northwestern always needs wrestlers!

High Hopes

Although it wasn't exactly their best season, the girls basketball team kept that Wildcat spirit. Practicing their hardest, the Wildcat team strived to achieve their major goals- to have a good season and to do the best they can.

Coach Smallwood, along with Assistant Coach Woodward, spent hours and hours practicing with the team. They learned new drills and new plays and worked hard to improve old techniques. They also watched college and professional games and discussed certain aspects of each game. "They were hard on us . . . " Says Sharon Humes, "but I enjoy practicing with the team. We have fun.

A good attitude and good sportsmanship make a good team. About mid-season, with a 2-12 record, the Northwestern Girls Basketball Team were still flying high with hopes for improvement.

Making sure that it's safe, Sharon Humes gets ready for another score.

Great Expectations

Working As A Team

Molding varsity players was the major goal of the Northwestern Junior Varsity Basketball Team this year. Coach Kessler definitely believes that practice builds a better player.

Asking Andre Cameron how practices are he replies, "They are fun but with a lot of hard work." Working with the varsity team every day after school from 3:45 to 5:45 and Saturdays from 1 to 3, "Can be a real workout" advises Eddie Langston. A normal practice consist of running drills, working on defensive and offensive skills, practicing with the medicine ball, they develop strong muscles, and much more.

During the season the team faced some tough teams, but their most competitive and memorable game was against Roosevelt. "It was a close game, but in the end we came out on top with a one point victory of 57 to 56," said Roland Penny.

With a lot of dedication and hard work it definitely looked at midseason as though the team may have reached their goal.

Striving For Success

After winning the State AA Championship title in 1987 the varsity basketball team had a lot of expectations to live up to. Seniors, Jay Bias and Derrick Curry were the only two returning starters along with five other returning players.

The major goal of the team was to have a winning season. Once that was accomplished the playoffs would come into sight and hopefully a chance to defend the title of state champions.

This season has been like a roller-coaster ride. The Wildcats started off the season with disappointing losses to Annapolis and Dematha. They then went on a six game winning streak which was ended with a disturbing loss to Crossland. The next six games found three wins and three losses.

At the end of the second quarter, changes had to be made because of the suspension and the ineligibility of two starters. The Wildcats then had to rely heavily upon Kenny Hill and Derrick Curry. At this point, the teams record was 9-7,. There were six games remaining and no one knew how the cats would do but with hard work and dedication the team would hopefully pull together and come out of the season with their heads held high.

With his amazing ability to dribble down the court, Terry Lancaster finds no trouble in getting past his opponent.

Fun Times For The Last Time

The time has come to say goodbye;
Our senior year has ended.
We leave our school, with heads held high
With friendship, luck, and memories.
We thank each other for the memories we created,
And never to forget the tears
we shed
and times we celebrated.
We made our vows,
and earned our caps and

and passed the gate to our future.
The time has finally arrived,
and we stand with great pride
with our families to share our great joy of success.
Feeling proud to be part of the Senior Countdown

Drinking from the "fountain of youth", Angie Castro shows she'll be young at heart forever.

Sands Of Time

August- We enter school a little nauseated but we come back because our parents make us. Also we end all of our summer fun for a grueling year of schoolwork.

September - You begin to count down the weeks which add up to 167 days including days off but excluding weekends. Senior class council was formed and plans were made for the year.

October - Spirit week rolled around and of course the seniors traditionally became victorious in spirit activities. Not to mention the fact that we own the school.

November - Senioritis creeped through the blood of the seniors and we had a deadline to pay class dues.

December- Christmas break is here and seniors spread holiday cheer. SAT's are taken and plans are in the making.

January - Return to class with a new attitude. Making resolutions for the new year to come. Senior skip day was March 8, 1988.

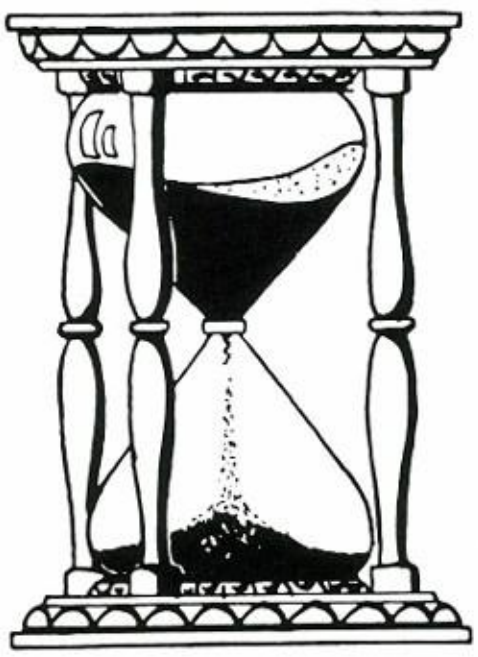
February- Month for lovers Some 18 year olds seniors vote for the first time.

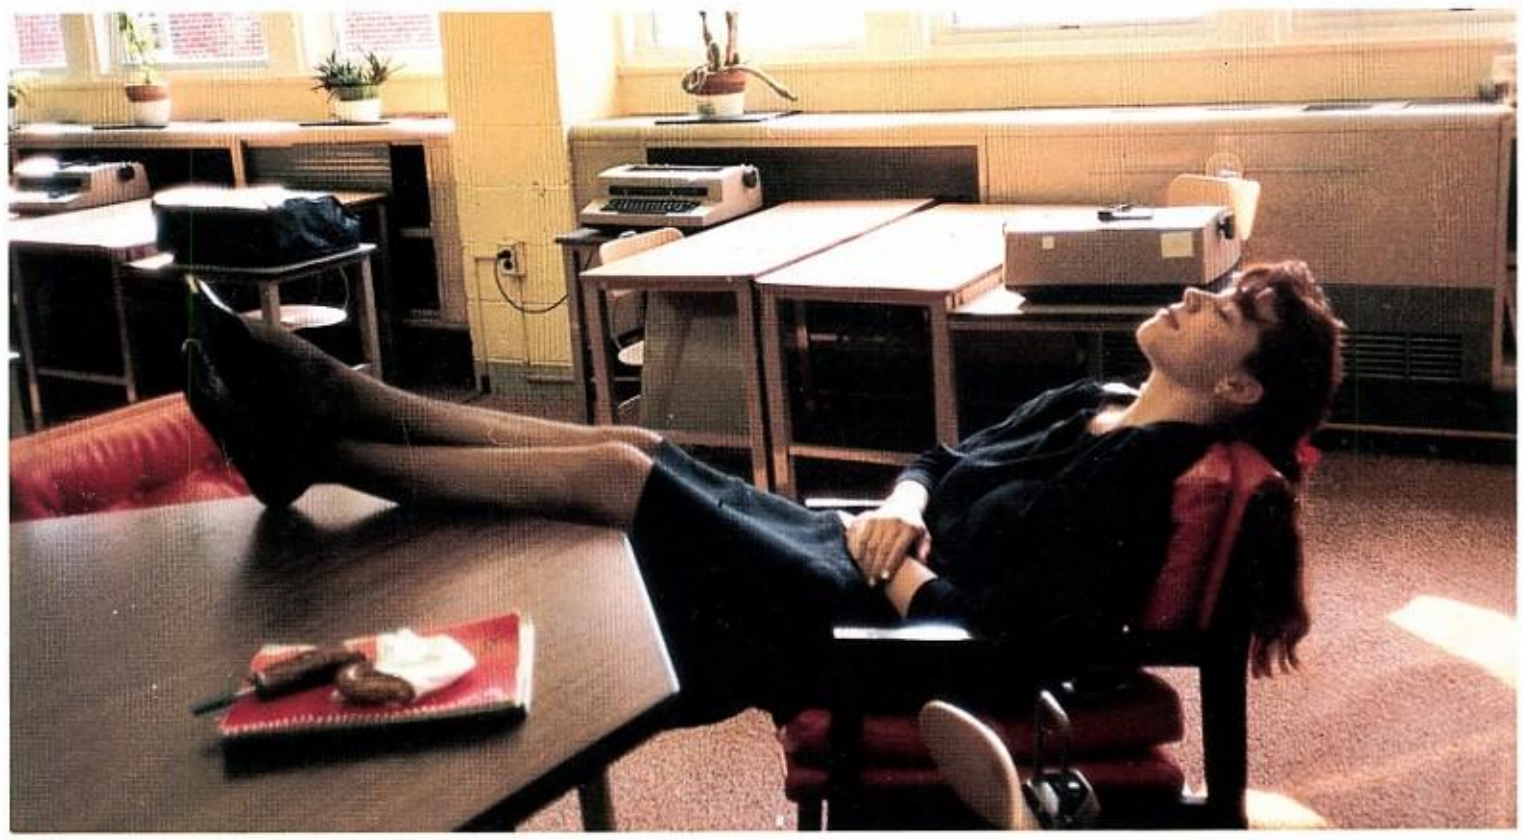
March - 32 days until Daytona Beach. Attention girls—start dieting and start looking for those prom dates.

April - Daytona- Here We Come!!!

May - Our senior Prom is here and the end of our year has finally arrived. Girls hope you have those dresses ready.

June- The second of June. We are free at last . . . . We wear our caps and gowns for the senior blast. We made It.





Taking her daily snooze, Tamatha Artigliere dreams of all the beauties of Mrs. Ruley's AP Literature class.

Sponsors Are People Too!!

Fun In The Sun!!

Who runs the show? Is it the director or the producer or the ringmaster? No, it's the Senior class sponsors, Miss Duff and Mrs. Hernandez. Although they have many other obligations to the school, this year they've helped complete tedious and mandatory tasks for the Senior class. Among these were: arranging all the plans for Prom and Graduation, meeting with the Senior Class Council and class officers every other Tuesday afternoon to organize and prepare for upcoming events, and helping the Seniors do their best to win the Fall Class Night.

Comparing her sponsorship to three previous classes ("78", "83", "86"), Miss Duff says that the Class of "88" is more dedicated and hard-working. She enjoys working with students outside of the classroom, especially Seniors. Mrs. Hernandez has never sponsored a class in the the past, but if she had the chance to do it again, she would. Both agree that being a class sponsor is very time-consuming, but they enjoy the experience of working together.

Another sponsor who deserves recognition is Ms. Howland, the class president's mother. With all her hard work and dedication, the Class of "88" was able to take their class trip over Easter Break. Where did they go? Not to the zoo, or the mall, and definitely not to those famous museums in the big city of . . . Washington D.C. They went to the sun-filled, fun-filled . . . . Daytona Beach, Florida, where they stayed six days and five nights at an oceanfront hotel. Their itinerary went as follows:

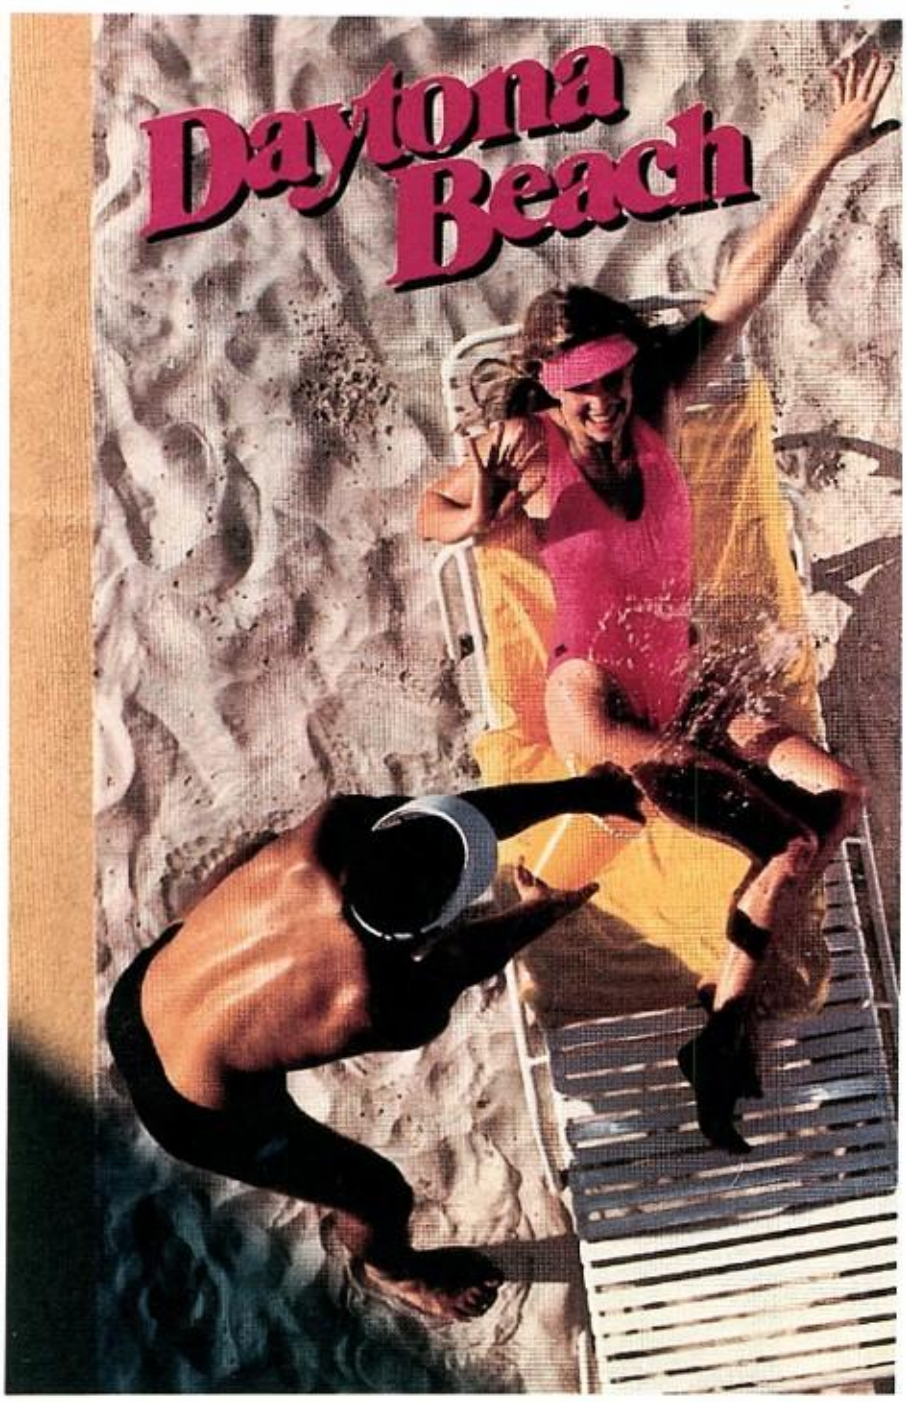
Apr. 3-depart at 7 pm.
Apr. 4-arrive at 11 am.
Apr. 5-class pictures
Apr. 6-Wet 'n Wild dance and BBQ
Apr. 7-bellyflop and tug-o-war
Apr. 8-Disney World/Epcot Center
Apr. 9-depart at 5 pm.
Apr. 10-arrive at 10 am

With the cooperation of Miss Duff, Mrs. Hernandez and the class council and officers, Deneta Howland, Wendy Wimbrow, Paige Tinney, Angela Brownlee, Sharla Powell and Ngoc Chu, the Senior class of "88" completed their final year of high school successfully.

Finalizing the hotel arrangements for the Senior Class trip, Deneta Howland makes a phone call from the main office.

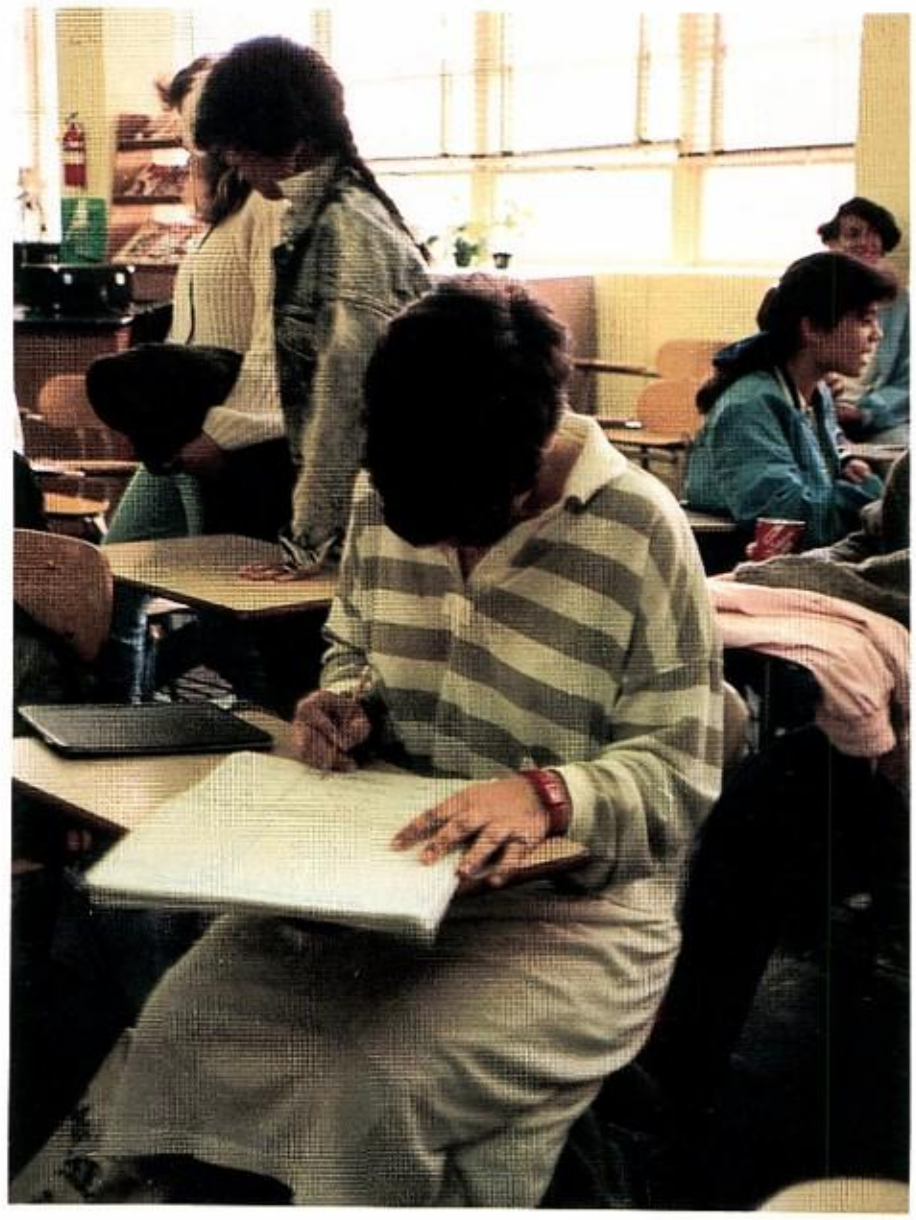
Representing the Senior Class of "88", are the class officers: Treas.- Sharla Powell, Vice-Pres.- Wendy Wimbrow, Corr. Sec.- Paige Tinney, Sec.- Angela Brownlee, Hist.- Ngoc Chu, and Pres.- Deneta Howland.

Having responsibilities as a Science teacher, Miss Duff still enjoys being a Senior class sponsor.



The front cover of the Daytona Beach brochure is a familiar sight to many Seniors.

During a class council meeting, Senior Simone Thompson checks over the Senior calendar of events.



Even though she is busy being the Maryland University Collaborative Project Coordinator, Mrs. Hernandez still takes time to help with the Senior class.

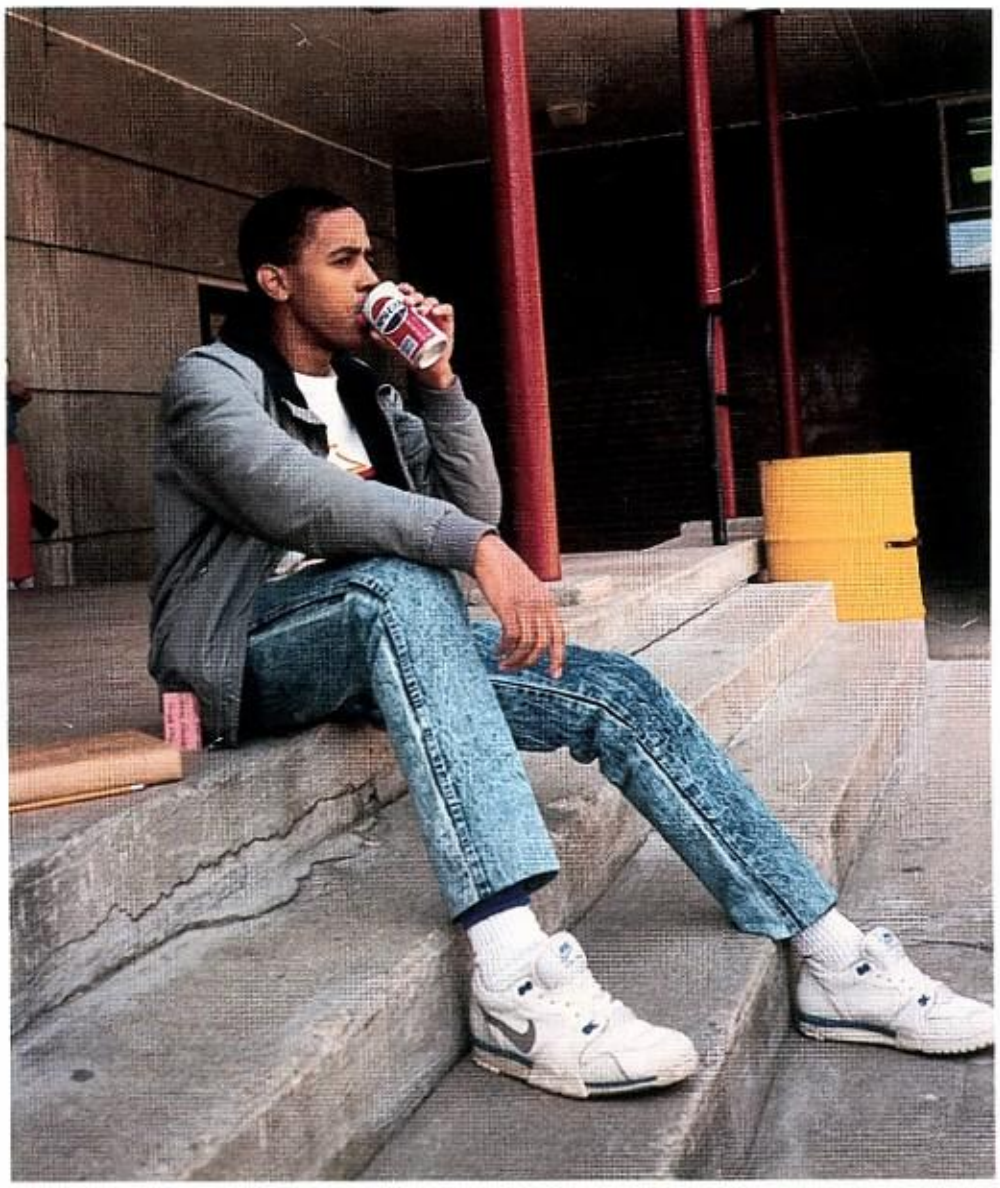
Beware You're A Senior

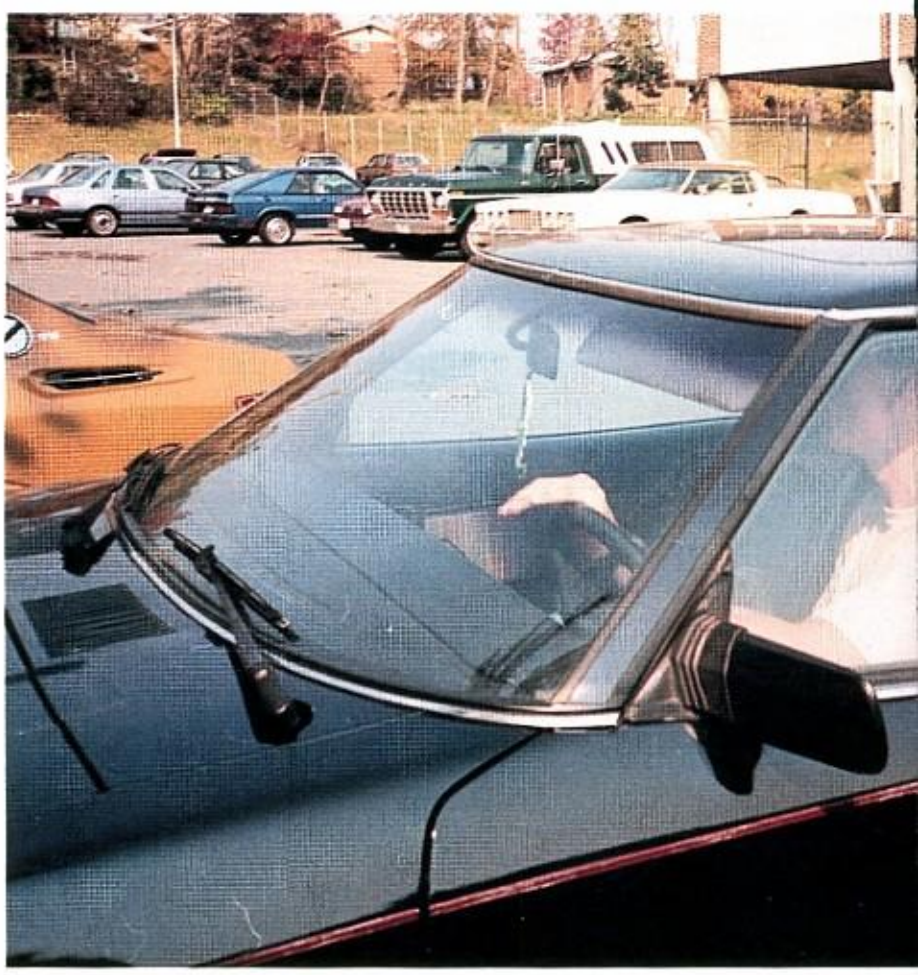
The Wildcat Plague

Watch out! There's no cure! And it comes only once in your life for one full year. Another personality possesses your body and you find yourself having competitions about who can tease the most Freshmen. It all begins on your first day of school. You feel your stomach begin to churn, and your palms begin to sweat and you realize you just don't feel like going to school.

But you reluctantly wake up that dreadful morning just to check out who's attending NHS and who left. But most of all, you woke up to tease our incoming freshmen in the school. Day 2 arrives and you know all of your teachers; you teased every freshman you could find in school, so you ask yourself, "Why should I go to school?" You make up your mind and you add two (or more) WEEKS to summer vacation. This is the beginning of SENIORITIS!!!!!!!! Other symptoms of this disease include; finding yourself passing the school, going to McDonalds for breakfast and heading home again for some extra shut eye; siting in class and asking yourself, "Why am I listening to this teacher? This class doesn't even count, it's just an elective and I don't have to pass it so why don't I just take a nap."

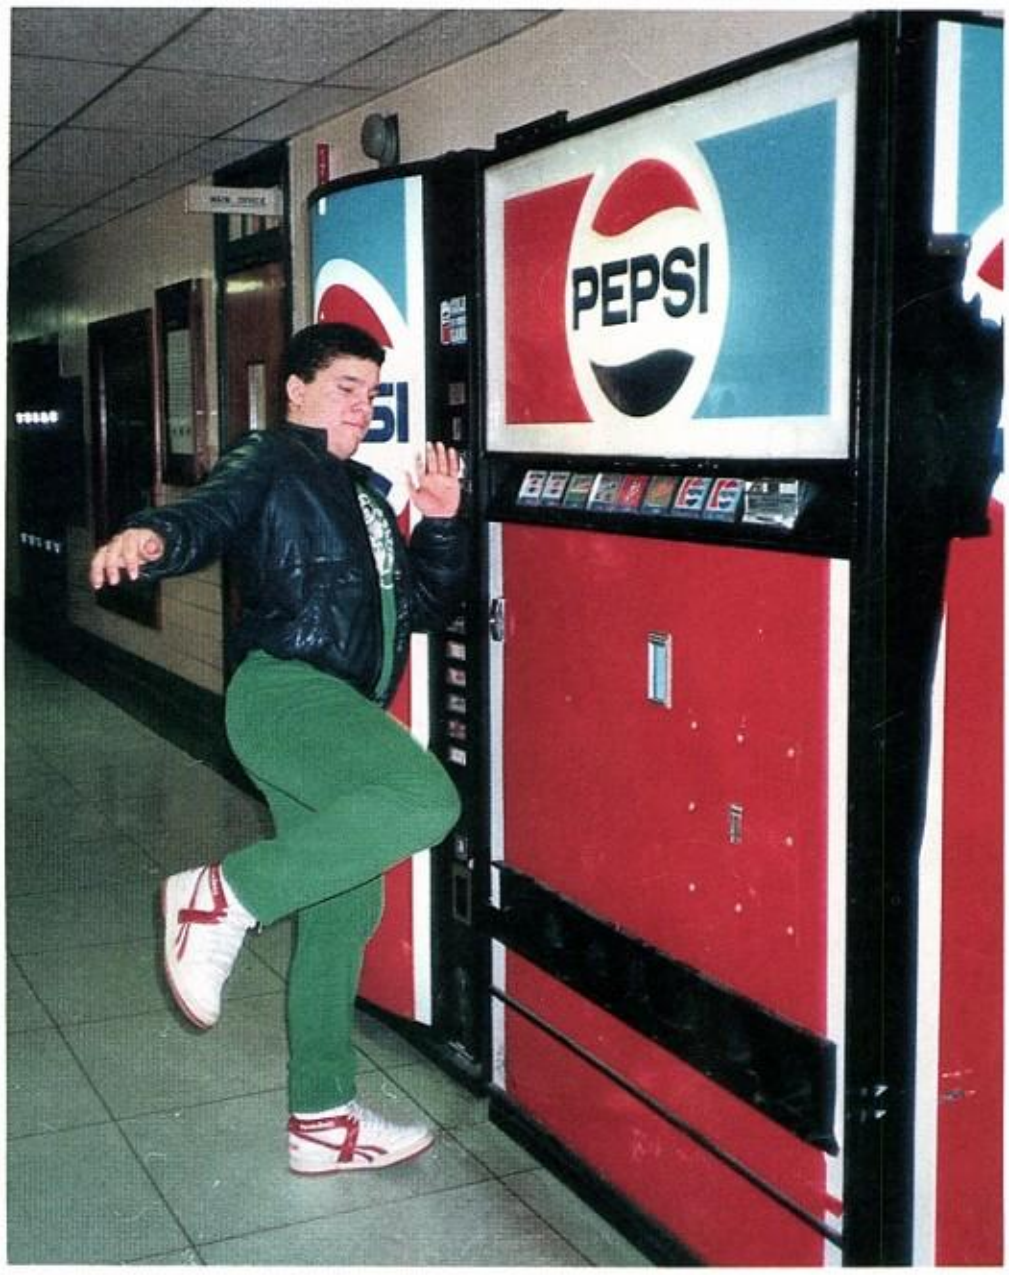
But why!? You caught the contagious bug of "Seniori-tis". How did you get it? You passed your junior year. You now demand an exorcism, but the only exorcism is the graduation ceremony and you have to wait one whole year until you're cured. And then the real trouble begins, you begin to enjoy this incurable disease and you begin to take advantage of the situation. You're only a SENIOR 167 days of your life so you enjoy it while you can.



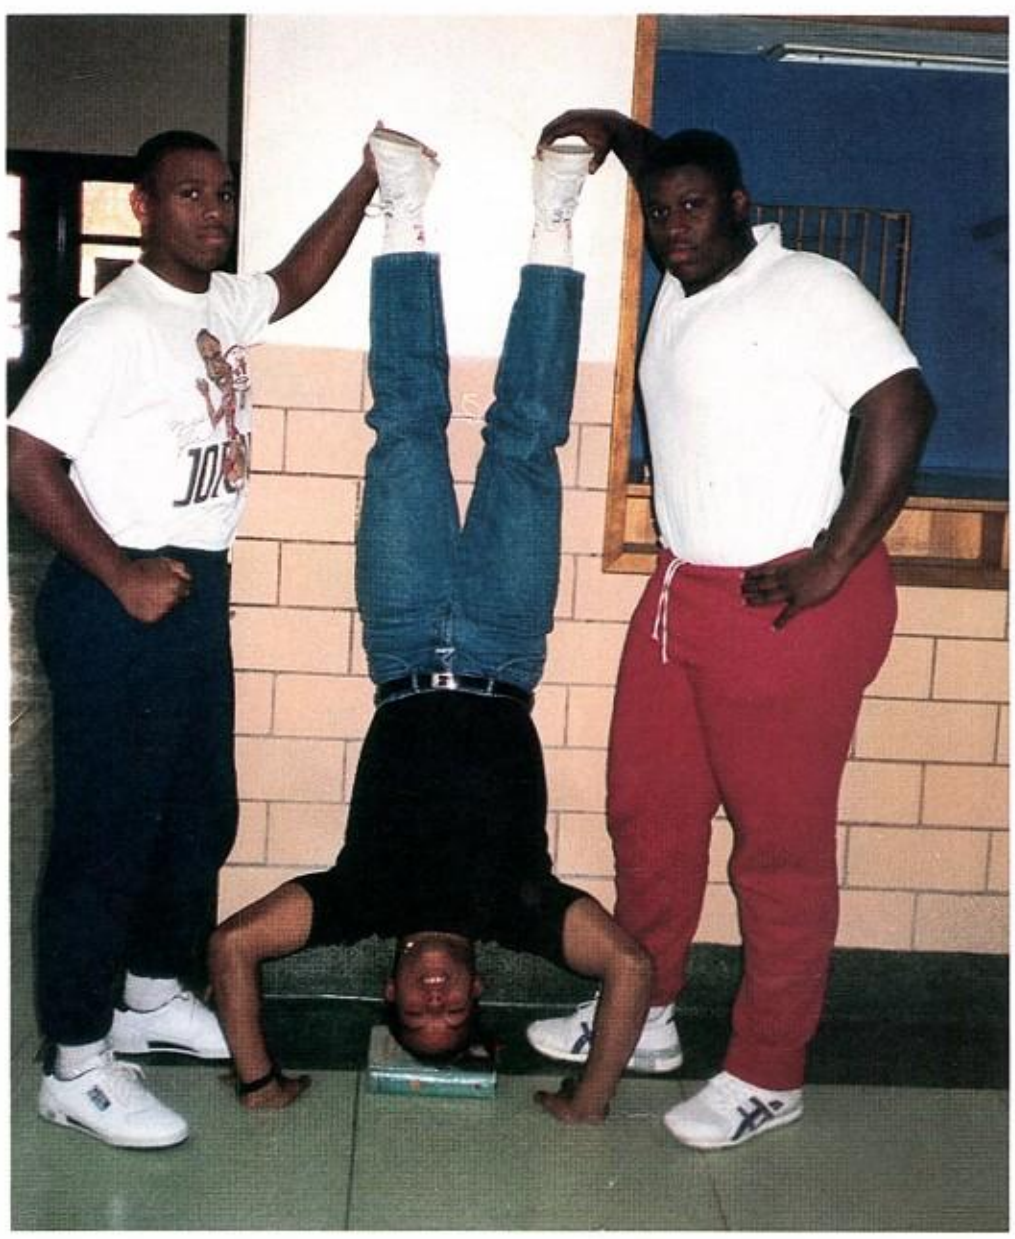


"I'm a Senior and I can do whatever I want, " So out he goes to sit and drink where it's forbidden. But don't blame him; he's possessed by SENIORITIS.

"I just can't stand it anymore," says Danny Walker as he tries to escape from our school.



"Gimme back my money you stupid machine" yells Peter Cruz as he hopelessly fights our Pepsi machine.



Trying to find a new cure for Senioritis, seniors Stephen Brantley and Troy Williams try their new experiment on Randy Godette.

"Let's throw her in the river." Trying to drown this incurable disease out of Kelly Steele and friends get set for the new cure.

Graduation And Future Plans

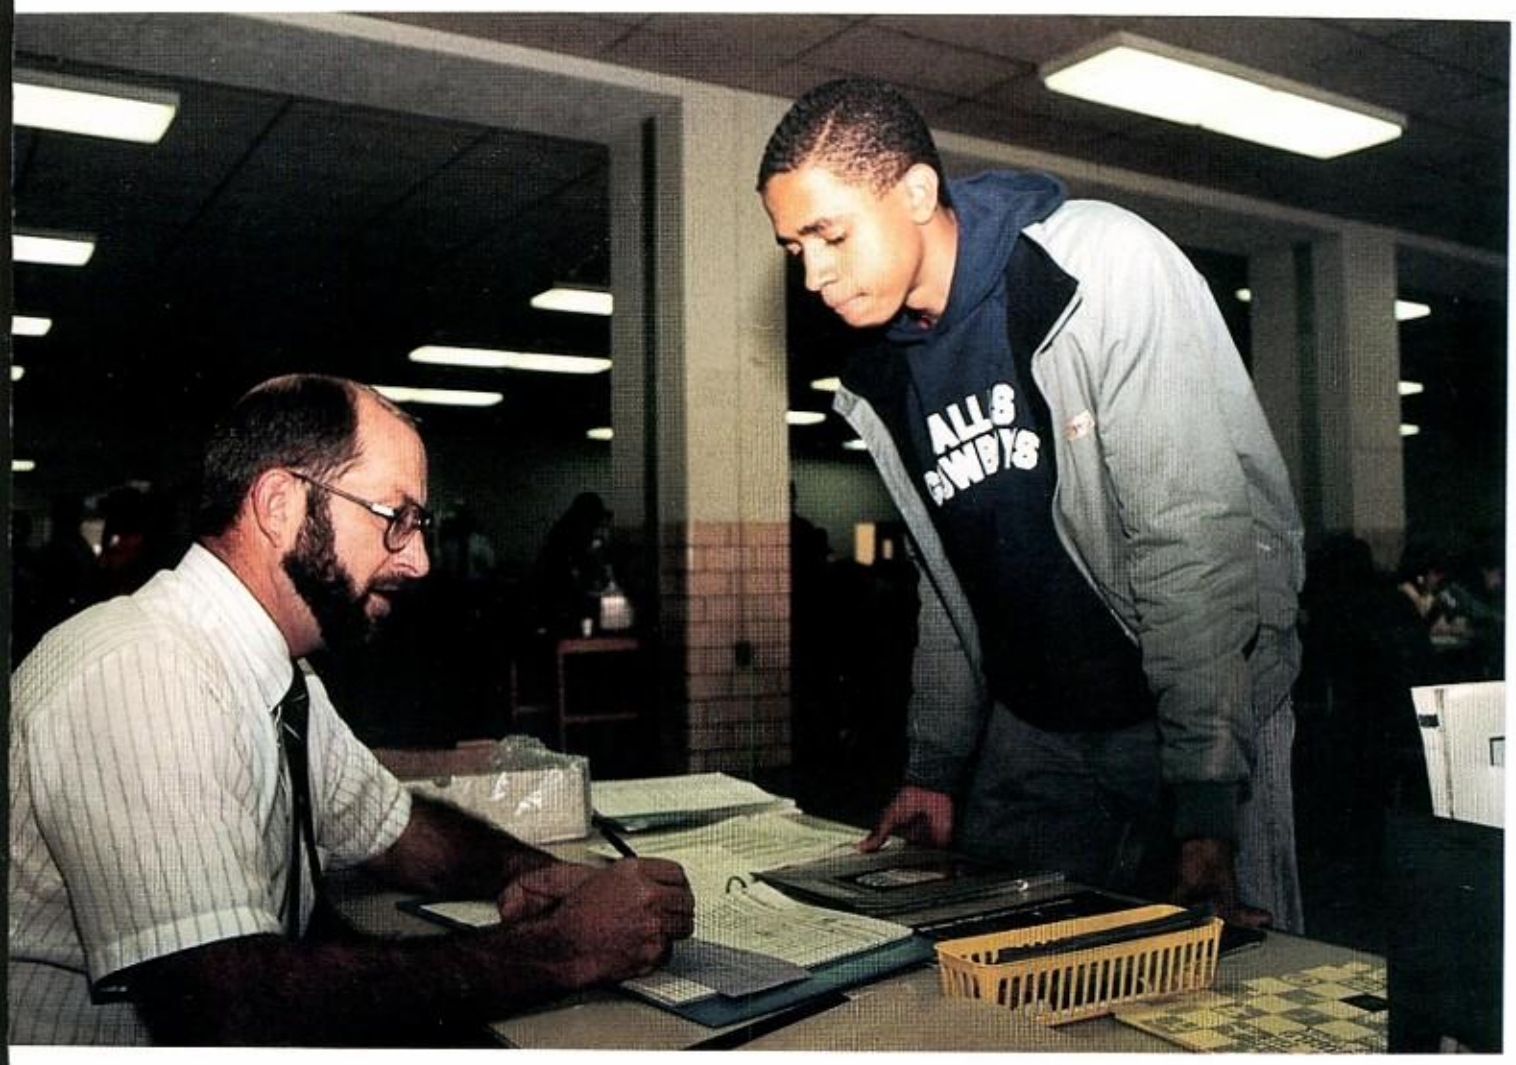
After Graduation . . .

College 4 yr.	35%
2 yr.	25%
Trade School	10%
Military	10%
Work	17%
Unknown	3%

Considering Maryland as a college she would like to attend Diahanna McLaughlin does some further research on the school.

Smiling was a sign of relief shown on the faces of these five young ladies as another graduation requirement was completed.

Waiting in the hall, outside of the cafeteria Mimi Akel, Jill Wendel, Patty Boone and Cindy Holtzman try to pass some time before sitting down for cap and gown measurements.



owing interest in going to college, Jhamal Hanner recieves a pass from Mr. Richter in order to attend a meeting about ostburg University.

group of seniors patiently wait for instructions on how to measure for cap while filling out their forms for the gowns.

Preparations

Finally, our senior year is here. Graduation is just around the corner but even with the parties and summer vacations we all look forward to, there is still a lot of preparation that must be done for graduation and our future after high school.

On October 27, 1987 we sat in class while some of us dozed off and others talked. An announcement was made "All seniors report to the cafeteria." We all rushed to get there and once we quieted down a slip of paper was given to us to fill out our height, weight, and correct size of gown. Then we measured our heads with tape to size our caps.

That takes care of one of the many preparations required for graduation but wait, what about college? Here are a few facts that might satisfy your curiosity.

1. The average SAT score for a Northwestern student is 371 in verbal skills and 408 on math skills. The average nation-wide score in verbal skills is 440-450 and 450-465 in math skills.

2. The average college requires a grade point average of 2.5 or better.

3. The average number of colleges applied to by seniors is three.

4. Most seniors apply to the state of Maryland for state scholarships.

Mad mess of Seniors? The senior class displays their talents in various way for their float.

Public Education . . . Free?

Of course, you thought that when you entered a public school that it would be free. Well you thought wrong.

Some small expenses for most seniors include:

. . . yearbook	$25.00
. . . class dues	$35.00
. . . class T-shirt	$11.00
. . . class ring	$185.00
. . . senior pictures	$200.00
. . . class trip	$299.00 (not including personal expenses)
. . . games	$20.00 (10 game minimum)
. . . Prom	$60.00 (including dress/tuxedo, dinner and flowers)
. . . school lunch	$194.25 (for 185 days)
. . . SAT's	$12.00
TOTAL	$1041.25

Make You Or Break You?

What lies ahead in your future? Many students answer this question with "four more years of school," in other words 'college.'

Some are willing to live at home to save on expenses and for security, while others go away or live on campus and have a large bill.

Most community colleges are very inexpensive costing an average of $2,000 a year, and the same is true for state colleges. But campus fees can be another $3,000!

Weeks of hard practice, that's what it took for these three girls to finish this stunt with perfection—Crystal Debold, Jennifer Caldwell, and Kim Washington. Already Out In The World

You dread getting up at 7:00 every weekday morning. At 8:55 you have to attend a long and tiresome day at school for six and a half hours. After that you make your way over to that big, crowded mall where you punch in at 5:00. Great, another day at work. You put up with argumentative customers and the boss always being on your back. Finally, its 10:00 and your ready to punch out and go home. Even though you're half dead, as soon as you get home you hit the books. You study and do homework for about two and a half hours until you just can't do anymore. You go to bed and wake up the next morning at 7:00 ready to do it all over again!

Where do people get the energy? Why do they work, and how do they have the time?

"Working is hard with my schedule," exclaims Daniel Ingrahm and Natalie Paulwell, "but without the money I make at work, I would not be able to pay for all the necessary needs of all teenagers!"

Here Comes The Class Of 1990

Double Our Knowledge

Finally, we're Sophomores. No more jokes about being Freshmen. On the first day of school, we knew exactly where to go.

The class meetings started early this year to prepare for homecoming. The Sophomores wanted to beat the spirited Juniors and Seniors during class night and homecoming activities.

Being a Sophomore brings you one step closer to graduation and leaves you with three more years to create lasting memories of your high school years.

Double The Embarrassment

Have you ever had an embarrassing moment? Well these sophisticated sophomores told us some of their most embarrassing situations.

Tom Lazo- During the making of the Sophomore float, they pulled my pants down.

Laurenne Weaver- running to my bus I fell in front of everyone in the snow and ice.

Joan Wilson- I went to Roy Rogers and slipped on the wet floor and spilled juice all over my white outfit.

Sherry Allen- I came outside in the dark and got in someone elses car instead of my mom's car.

Yhamal Catacora- Getting kicked out of art class for bad language.

Orsson Vargas-I set up the lab wrong and everyone in the class copied it and everyone failed.

Kit Sithithavorn-In 3rd grade my girlfriend walked in when I was going to the bathroom.

Andre Cameron- I was coming from the soda machines on the main hall last year when I walked into the girls bathroom, when someone yelled, "Hey man, what are you doing in there?"

Working Toward The Big Year

Did You Know?-
-In 1959, there was a game that was played called donkey basketball.
- Jim Henson, creator of the Muppets graduated from Northwestern.
- Mr. Coats has been teaching at Northwestern since 1959
- Some clubs that existed back in 1959 that are now gone are: Bowlers' league, Thespians, Quill and Scroll, Lettermen, majorettes, Dance Club, and Dance Band.
Ms. Northwestern Pageants were held and some titles held were: Ms. Sweetheart, Beauty queen, Ms. Congeniality, and PTA Jamboree Beauty Queen. Those were the Days!

The Cubs Of Northwestern

A Deadly Disease

Unfortunately every September of a new year it will strike over 75% of every freshmen class, but rarely hits the upperclassmen. What can this deadly disease be? Freshmanitis! Some of the side effects include freshmen:

- roaming the halls, overwhelmed by the size of the walls.
- studying in the library, buried by books.
- Racing down the hall trying to be first in line at lunch.

Of course not all freshman catch the disease but if you're the one that people laugh at . . . . Watch out, because you are sure to be a carrier of Freshmanitis.

Top Secret

"In!" Is that what you wanted to be? Part of the "IN" crowd became a pretty hard task to accomplish. For most incoming freshman, making friends was their top priority. Being able to wave to the captain of the football team or actually talking to the Homecoming queen made most underclassmen feel privileged.

Don't worry freshmen, your bestest friends are the ones that listened to you babble.

Hi You Know You're A Freshmen When . . .

1. On the first day, the upperclassmen sent you everywhere else but to the right class.

2. You find yourself in a hallway you've never been in before.

3. You don't know what clubs and/or activities to join or know what they are.

4. The only major thing for you to do in school is to take your MFT's.

5. You told you're too young to work.

6. You don't know who the "right" and "wrong" teachers are.

7. The upperclassmen pat you on the head and tell you that everything you say is "cute".

8. The upperclassmen never invited you to the right parties,

9. You find you're the first class to take Fine and Practical arts as a graduation requirement.

10. The upperclassmen constantly rub it in about you graduating in THREE LONG YEARS as the class of 1991!!

Cub Comfort

At this moment as a freshman you may feel abandoned by the upperclassmen. They may go as far as putting you down or taunting you because you're a Freshman.

But maybe you should be reminded that all of those upperclassmen have gone through the same thing and maybe even worse. They're just doing that because they want to get that same feeling our former upperclassmen got when the joke was on them.

You should also be reminded that back then, the pranks were much worse. It's been in our NHS history that some upperclassmen would lock a freshman into the teachers lounge and let them find an excuse for themselves about why they were there. Or they would do much worse and throw them in a boys or girls bathroom and wouldn't let them out. That's not so bad, but you have to take into consideration that someone was using it at the time.

Some of you were a little luckier and had an upperclassman take you under their wing and give you advice on who to avoid and warned you what pranks were to be pulled.

As a Freshman you must remember your feelings when you first stepped into this great school of ours. You felt excited but nervous and maybe a little scared. Your hopes were high because you planned to make a difference in our school. You have made a difference in our school by being the class of 1991!!! And like the upperclasses did to you, you will also get your turn to tease the incoming class and maybe if you're lucky, you can send them down a dark unknown hallway they don't know.

What a Staff!

Pell's Pet Shop

"Love me tender; Love me true; Keep me warm and cuddly"- this is the expression Gerry gives as he stares into the camera. Gerry is one of the four proud cats of Mr. Pell. Gerry has big white feet and loves to play hide and seek. His other companions are George, Don and Monte.

"Monte is very affectionate and eats more than the entire NW football team" says Mr. Pell. Monte differs from Gerry and George. Mr. Pell says that George talks as much as his ninth graders and last but certainly not least, of the cats of Mr. Pell, is Don. He is very playful and has many girlfriends.

Mr. Pell and his four cats have a loving relationship and they mean a lot to him.

You know how in your class there was always a student who the teacher liked especially? You called them"the teacher's pet". Well, here's one teacher's pet.

When did Marbles Hansen graduate from Northwestern? The answer is in the fall of 86. Marbles is Mrs. Hansen's pet cat who was found at Northwestern. Named after his eyes which resembled marbles, Mrs. Hansen gave refuge to Marbles in her home. Encouraged to be an indoor cat at first he suffered repeatedly from ear wounds, said Mrs. Hansen. As he matured and grew in stature and feline handsomeness, he learned to defend his turf. Now Marbles is nobody's fool, he is as smart as cats should be.

A companion and teacher's pet Jessica is a 8 year-old black labmutt. "She has lots of energy and is very happy and affectionate" said Ms. Rothgeb, her energy is shown by tail wagging and greetings with kisses. Jessica, like Ms. Rothgeb, loves the beach. Ms. Rothgeb spends pleasant times with Jessica, and she does not have any other teacher's pet but Jessica.

I'm cute and cuddly" The real reason Mrs. Duncan wears "Nike's is I "snack" on her dress shoes.

Lucky Dogs

Lucky Dogs Lucky Dogs Aren't these some lucky dogs? These puppies belong to Mrs. Piersol and they are loving, and kind and they fill you with joy. These Alaskan Huskies are certainly adjusting to the Washington heat and humidity. The puppies' names are Roguer (larger) and Ruppion (smaller). "They are always glad to see you an anxious to please," said Mrs. Piersol and they would certainly be fun to meet.

Nor'Wester

The 1987-88 school newspaper the Nor'wester had a difficult beginning because of students lack of interest, but Mr. Klein never gave up even though no paper had been published until half way through the school year. According to Dan Ronayne, they had a hard time finding the money to start with only a few members selling advertisements that would pay for the newspaper to be published.

Over the past years the class (Nor-'Wester) has both shrunk and grown, but because a large majority of the 1986-87 year's staff were seniors there was a rather small group this past year. Mr. Klein intends to get a good turn-out in the 1988-89 year by drawing the attention of the students to journalism. All he needs are a few good reporters, an editor, and news!

Compass

Where were you on June 22, 1987, the Monday after school let out for summer break? Many of us were probably sleeping in or already headed for the beach but for members of this year's yearbook staff things started off a little differently.

The first three days of the staff's summer were spent at the University of Maryland Yearbook camp in classes. During these three days many new ideas for theme and body copy were thought of for this book. We were also shown new ways to use our color more effectively and many rules on what should and should not be done. The camp also provided ideas to make the most of our budget, however big or small that may be. After camp was finally over and preparations for our book were made the staff was finally able to begin their summer vacation.

The Northwestern Newspaper sponsor looks optimistic, and won't give up on Nor'wester even though there have been troubles in getting it started this year.

Leadership Counts For All

Head Of The Class

Have you ever thought of what kind of responsibility you would have being part of The Student Government Association (S.G.A.). The S.G.A. doesn't just talk about the happenings of our school, they plan our social events such as Homecoming Week, and other Holiday dances. They also work to help charities such as UNICEF and the House of Ruth.

This year, there has been a new association added to our school called The Student Advisory Council (S.A.C.). This association is made up of leaders of each group, club, and activity. The S.A.C. was formed to allow more student input into S.G.A. sponsored activities. The S.A.C. got together one Thursday of each month during the first half of first period to discuss school and student improvement. In its first year the S.A.C. and S.G.A. had a successful fund raiser for UNICEF and another success with their canned food drive among our homerooms.

Serving Northwestern

We Shall Overcome

The Martin Luther King Society is made up of a group of students who are willing to continue the teachings and good work of Dr. Martin Luther King. The Martin Luther King Society is responsible each year for planning and sponsoring certain activities for the month of February which is Black History month.

What A Honor

The Dreadnaught Chapter of the National Honor Society was established in 1982. This society is a service organization and members are obligated to use their talents and skills for the improvements of the school and community. The society recognizes students who reflect outstanding accomplishments in the areas of academics, character, leadership and service. Members must maintain a 3.3 grade point average in order to graduate with honors.

Cooperative Studies

C.O.E./C.V.E. are programs designed to give students a chance to learn and to work at the same time. C.O.E., sponsored by Mrs. Fridling is a Cooperative Occupational Education project. C.V.E. is a Cooperative Vocational Education project. It is sponsored by Ms. Davis and Ms. Thomas. In each program there are approximately 45 students. These programs allow students to attend school half-day and then work. These cooperative projects also give students a chance to see how it is in the business world.

La Pandilla Hispana

Hey, have you noticed Spanish signs around your school about the MWT? Well, the Spanish speaking students have been working on getting the word around about how important it is for the students to do well on them. Another thing that these students have begun is a club that has Mr. Sube as the sponsor. It was decided that this year would be a good start for it. They want to let you know that they usually meet Thursdays after school. So maybe if on a Thursday you have nothing to do and are roaming the halls after school drop in and check out the La Pandilla Hispana (The Hispanic Club).

The Asian Club

From their afternoon picnics to the international dinner, the Asian Club continues to help keep the Asian community unified. With joint efforts from Mr. Hansen, Mrs. McCann, Mr. Bodkin, Mrs. Green, Mr. Pell and other teachers that are from Nicholas Orem, the Asian Club was able to be organized for the first time in Northwestern's history.

To make the Asian Club's Christmas bright Officer Tran, from the P.G.C. police force, dropped by for their holiday party (which included 20 large pizzas and lots of videos). Not only has Officer Tran helped support the Asian Club but he also contributes to the Asian community by helping out anyone who's having trouble translating English. So there is a lot to be said about this club, which contains persons from Vietnam, China, Laos, Cambodia, Philippines, Korea, and other Asian countries.

Club Francais

The French Club started on the right track this year. Their first accomplishment was a Culture Day where they examined the French Culture; their other accomplishments were a field trip to Georgetown and a Christmas Party.

There are also activities in the club; they play volleyball, soccer, and sometimes basketball with the German Club and other clubs. The year is also turning out pretty good for the club because there's a new president Sophia Edmundson.

Most people think that you need to take French in order to become a member, but you don't, you just need to have an interest and a 2.0 average. This year the president wants to make the members of the club really open up and explore the French Culture and it's people "because the students need more interest as well as activities that require physical involvement," said Sophia. In order to build interest each year the club participates in the Belgium Exchange where students from Belgium are hosted by American students. The American student host the Belgium students for at least 2 weeks, and this usually takes place during Spring Break.

A.F.S.

What does AFS stand for? Well, it stands for American Field Service and it has for the past 40 years. It was started as a promotion of worldwide intercultutal learning, in which participants learned about other cultures by living with an AFS family in a foreign country.

As you might know or heard of Lia Piedade, an exchange student from Brazil, is a part of AFS and a student at NHS this year. Lia feels being here and experiencing the life of americans "is very different." She explains that she had already finished high school according to her school system in Brazil but in ours she'd just be a senior because they don't have grades the same way we do.

The AFS is a program that can be done year round or in a three month summer or winter program. So, if you're the kind of person who likes to experience a challenge and would like to learn more about another culture maybe you should investigate further.

Lights, camera, action . . . Six excited students this year have decided they want a piece of the action. The rigorous studying and dedication has brought the team a long way. Mr. Warchol has been sponsoring the team since at least 1978.

Math Team

Math Team?!! That's what most people say when you talk about NHS's Math team. With great concentration and enjoyment of learning these students work together and take math to a new level. Our Math team is sponsored by Mrs. Lynch and the team captain is Deanyne Johnson. Way to go math team!!

Forensics

Forensics, people have heard the name but still don't know what it's all about. The basis of it is the judicial courts. Each student becomes a lawyer and has to research information about the coming case.

A lot of work goes into each case, but you learn too. For some, it's a head start on their future in politics.

Double Choruses

Twice The Music

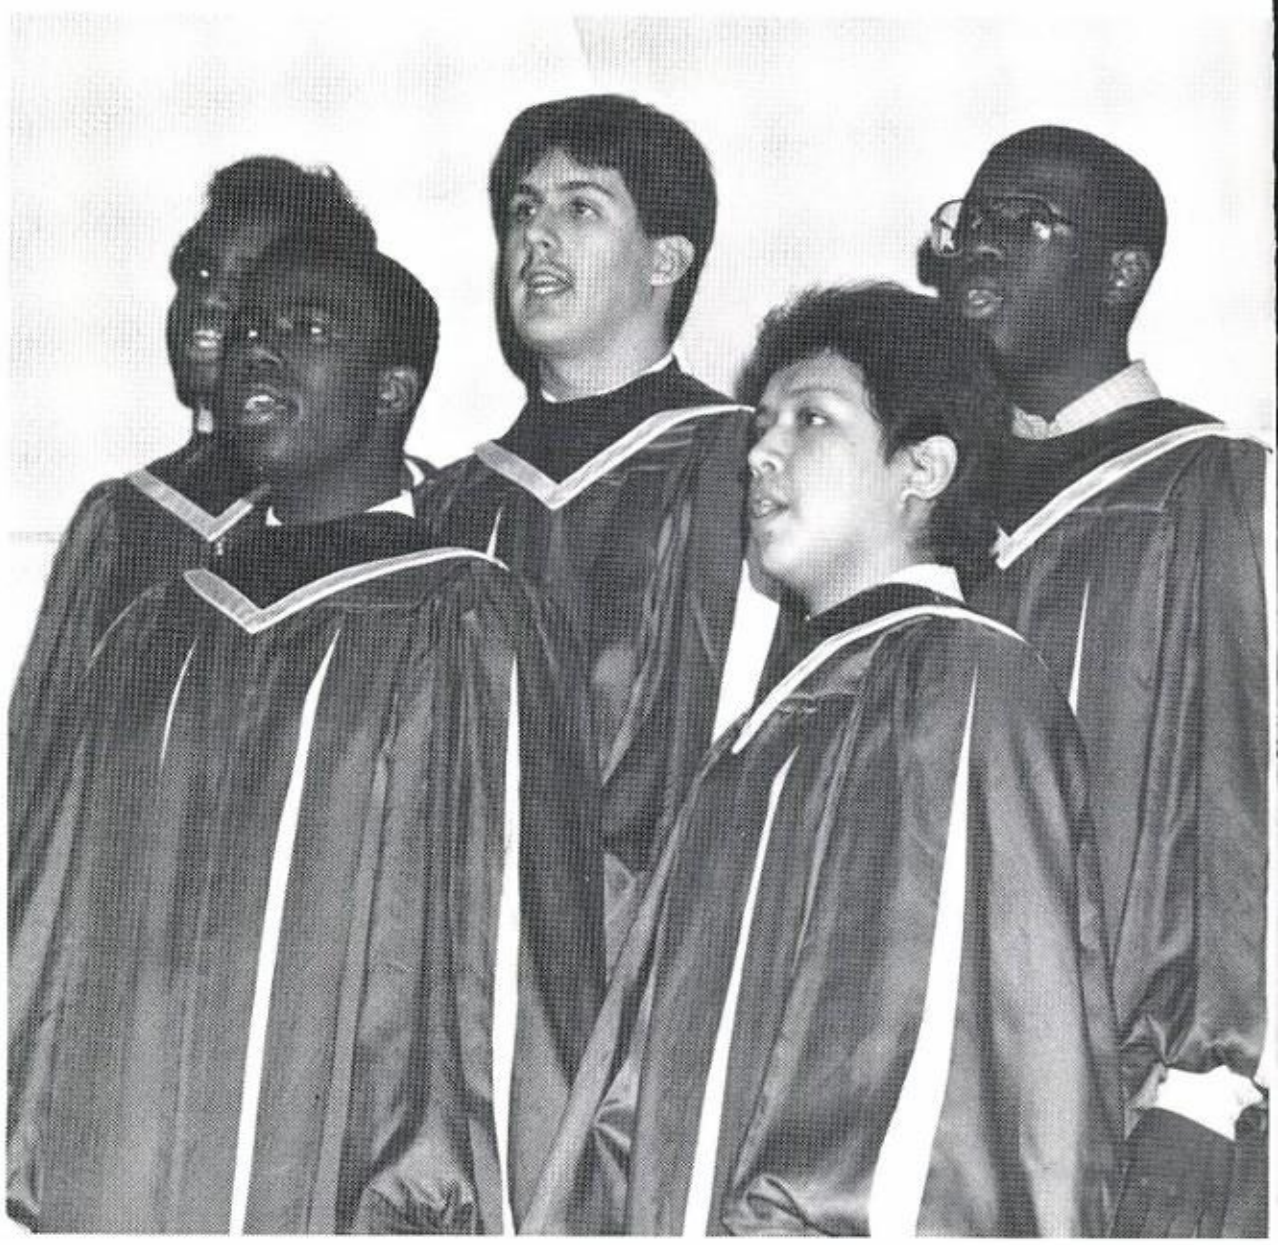
The Concert and Mixed Choruses has many activities during the year. Both choruses performed at Back to School night on October 17, 1987. During the month of December, they performed at Hyattsville and Nicholas Orem Middle Schools. At the Holiday concert, the Concert Chorus along with their other music sang a spanish song called "La Virgen Lava Panales". It was their most difficult piece.

The first concert of the new year was on January 15, 1988. The Concert Chorus and the Prince George's County Civic Opera performed "Amahl and the Night Visitors".

As spring began, the Concert and Mixed Choruses performed at the PG. County Chorus Festival which was held from March 28-30, 1988. They were rated on sight singing and the performance of their music.

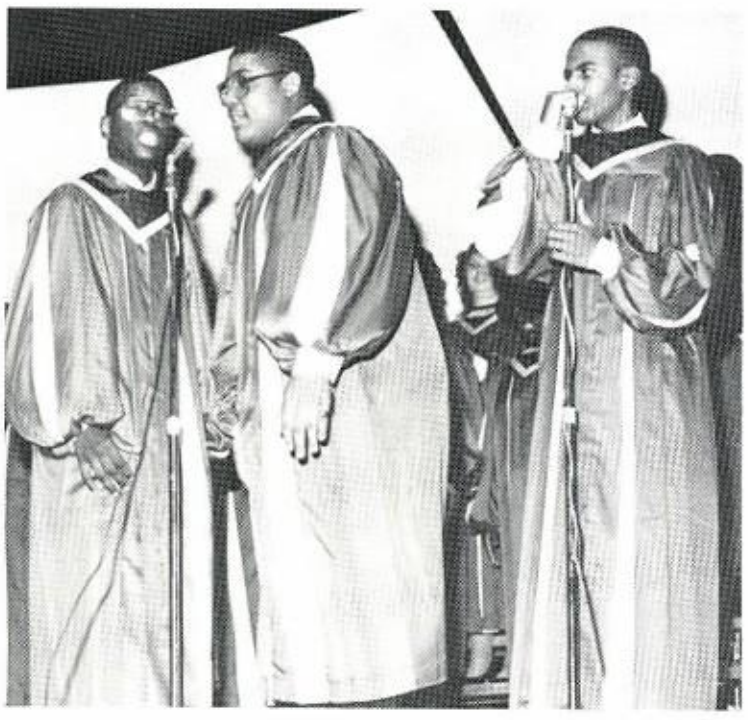
At the spring concert, four year chorus awards were presented to Jenni Lattin, John Perry, and Chris Philyaw. Second and third year awards were also presented.

There is much work put into concerts through many hours of practice both in and out of school. Four members of Concert Chorus have extra practice every Wednesday night at Largo High School because they are members of the PG. County Honors Chorus. Those members are Christy Davila, Aaron Cushinberry, Chris Philyaw, and Orsson Vargas. This completes the year for the Northwestern Choruses.



The Concert Chorus performs the spanish song called "La Virgen Lava Panales" at the Holiday concert on December 11, 1987. It took many hours of practice to prepare.

The tenor and bass sections blend together to sing their part in "We Three Kings."



Northwestern's Three Kings John Hubbard, Aaron Cushinberry, and Brooks Smith do a Holiday rap to get everyone into the Christmas spirit.

With much spirit, Kim Clark and Aggie Marks sing their part of the music.

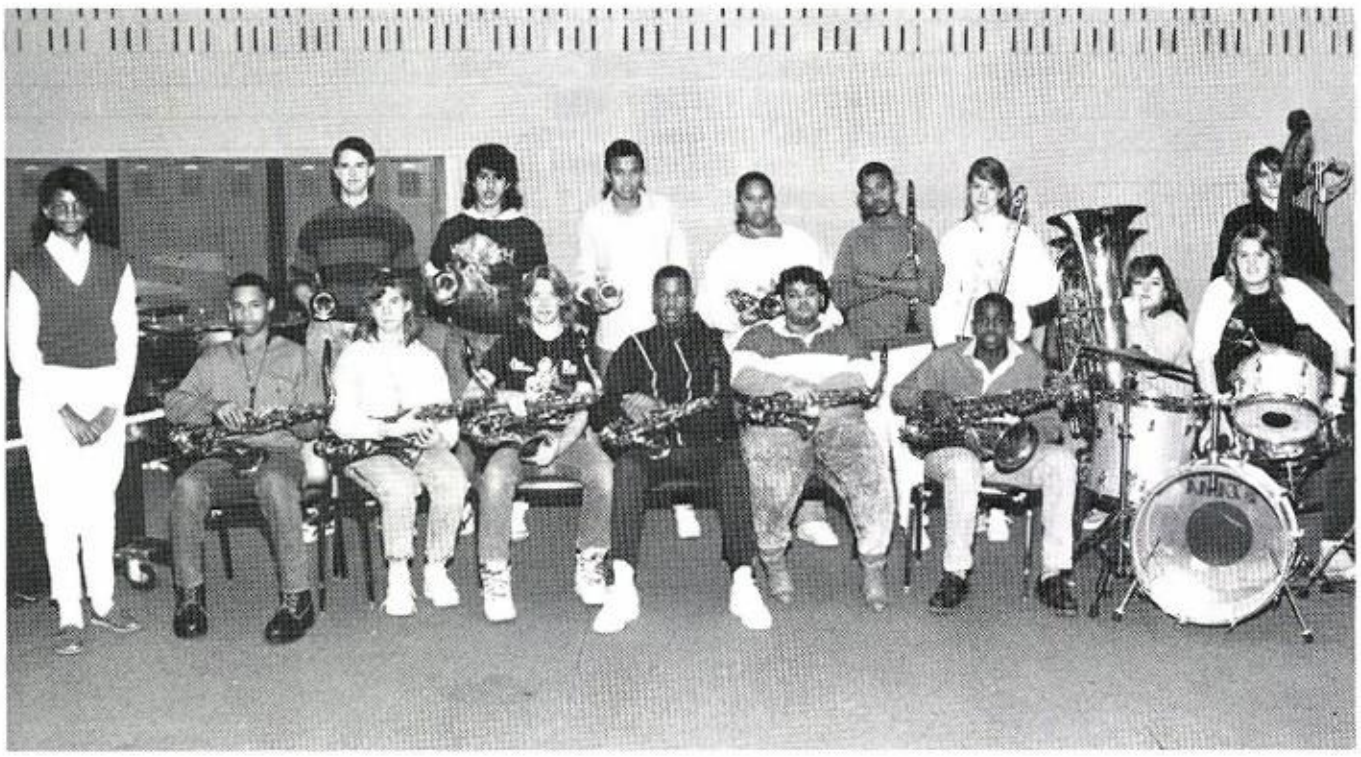
Double The Beat In '88

A Positive Note

This year the band program has grown enormously, not only in size from incoming freshmen, but also in maturity and performance level. Through fundraisers and personal contributions the Marching Band was able to purchase new uniforms. The Marching Band also held a successful band camp two weeks before school started, to orientate the freshmen and refresh the other band members as to how much work goes into a marching band. After football season or marching band season as the band members call it, the time had come to prepare for the winter concert and festival. Festival is a competition within the county in which bands are judged for their playing ability and performance level.

The 87'-88' school year was a very active one for all performing groups in the band program. The Marching Band marched at all home games, and performed in various parades throughout the area. The Concert Band finished the year with five concerts and excellent scores at festival. The Jazz Band, always an enthusiastic group that performs at the peak of their ability, played at all the concerts and made a special appearence at the talent show.

The Orchestra, which used to be an underated group, gave many great performances with the accompaniment of some horn and percussion players. Thanks to lots of effort and participation, by band and orchestra members alike, the NW Orchestra has been given new life. Both the Orchestra and Jazz Band are extracurricular activities making their large sizes pretty surprising. These two groups only practiced one day a week, leaving a lot of work up to the individual to learn on his/her own. The school year ended with a final performance at graduation; thus, finishing a long year and leaving a new one only three months away.



The Jazz Band:

Flag Their Attention

During a half-time show at a regular home football game you might have seen girls waving big red, white, and blue flags to the beat of the music. Marching and dancing with the band can be a lot of hard work, but with practices every Tuesday and Thursday from 3:30 to 4:30, the girls made it possible.

"Our squad worked great together," said Tricia Mentro, "although we got off to a late start." The flags performed at almost every home game.

The squad was made up of eleven girls who worked together with Mrs. Jeanes to make up routines. A lot of the time they practiced with the band.

With a lot more members and more practices the Flag squad hopes to be one of the best squads around.

Double The Spirit

Spirit Makers

The Sprit Maker's job is to make signs. These game signs have to be prepared ahead. Football signs are prepared in the summer and basketball signs during school. For each game three different signs are made. One is a crash sign, second are signs with, "Go Team, Beat, Fight" and Spirit Makers are also responsible for making signs for the cheerleaders, banquets, and anything else taking place in the school.

Ms. Burr is the sponsor of the Spirit Makers. She personally picks out the members. She knows who can get the job done because the job of a Spirit Maker takes a lot of responsibility.

Spirit Makers
First row: Heidi Jarman Second row: Raven Mathews, Cherri Timko

High Steppers

In this year more than others we have noticed the performances done by the Northwestern High School High Steppers. Under the guidance of Ms. Pinkney, their sponsor, the High Steppers danced their way into Basketball Games, a show at Prince Georges Plaza, and even the ' 87 Homecoming Game. The High Steppers practiced on the 3rd floor B-wing every Mon - Wed, kept a 3.0 grade point average all year, and set a great example for upcoming "High Steppers".

J.V. Cheerleaders

When were the J. V. Cheerleading try-outs? . . Where did the J. V. Cheerleaders perform?.

The J. V. Cheerleading try-outs were in October and their first performance was the first J. V.'s basketball game. The J. V. Cheerleaders cheered at all J.V. basketball games and wrestling matches. With Tara Weaver, former cheerleader, coaching the squad and Ms. Burr sponsoring the J. V. cheerleaders, the girls worked on perfecting their skills all year long.

Pep Squad

Look out, here they come, it's the Pep Squad. You'll see them at every home game cheering on the Wildcats, wearing either their navy blue or white sweat shirts or T-shirts with PEP SQUAD printed boldly on them.

The Pep Squad, like the Spirit Makers, is sponsored by Ms. Burr. A president, vice president, and treasurer are appointed. The president and vice president take roll at meetings which are held every other Tuesday and at games, to make sure each member is prompt. The treasurer takes care of the squads money from fundraisers. The Pep Squad is like a group of in-the-stand cheerleaders doing all the cheers with cheerleaders.

Tradition Continues . . . . Spirit.

Devotion . . . . Summer Activities

Rah! Rah! Rah! Those are the words that most people believe come out of the mouths of all cheerleaders. Well that's not necessarily true. Beginning with tryouts in April, the squad began to take shape.

Learning and teaching cheerleading techniques, the 1988 cheerleading squad attended a one day NCA camp in Atholton. The squad learned cheers, sideline chants, stunts and gymnastics, which started them off.

Two organizations, Park and Planning and the Prince Georges County Boys and Girls Club, recognized the squads techniques and invited them to Teaching and Safety clinics. The squad taught some of their favorite cheers and also safety spotting rules which accompany the many difficult stunts in cheerleading. The squad received a trophy for their time and their outstanding performances.

Ending a summer full of hard work and activities, the squad attended a four day NCA camp called Pine Forest in Pocono, PA. Evaluations were a major part of the camp. Every night the squad had to perform a home cheer and an NCA cheer, adding stunts and pyramids as the days progressed. For their performances, the squad received one excellent and three superior ribbons. Also with their performances a spirit stick was given out to the most spirited squads. The Northwestern cheerleaders received one every night and they were able to take one home. On the last day of camp, the squad was nominated as one of the six top squads receiving a Certificate of Nomination for the Award of Excellence.

During these many activities over the summer, the squad began to feel a certain closeness. A special friendship that remained throughout the entire year.

Truly rah, rah, rah are not the only words that came out of this squads mouth.

Poms . . . Creativity At Its Best

The Never-Ending Season

The Northwestern Pom Pon squad started their long season during the hot summer months. In the beginning of the summer, they successfully began to put together a home routine to take to the NCAA Drill Team/Pom Camp in Richmond, Va. With this hard practice they received a trophy for Best Home Routine. During camp each girl learned four different routines and some drill team commands to be performed and evaluated in front of a judge. The girls were rated on the ones they had learned. The NHS Poms received a majority of blue, Superior ribbons. Getting up at 6 a.m. in 90 degree weather and sometimes not getting to sleep until after 1 a.m., just proves that practicing does help make perfection.

Next came football season where the girls had a chance to show-off their new skills from camp. They did this in a variety of ways: new sparkly pom-pons for showy routines, and even props like three-foot beach balls and towels for a routine performed to "Wipe Out." Then for the last home football game, the squad joined with the band and flags to attempt the start of a new tradition.

Finally came the season of basketball and competition. Although the girls did not perform at many home basketball games, they still came to cheer on the team. Instead of performing, they practiced numerous long and hard hours for a successful competition season. After Christmas Break, they began practicing for two to three hours, six days a week, to get together their patriotic routine for their three competitions.

Not long after competition, try-outs were held again for the next year. All of this hard work and dedication shows that poms is a never-ending season.

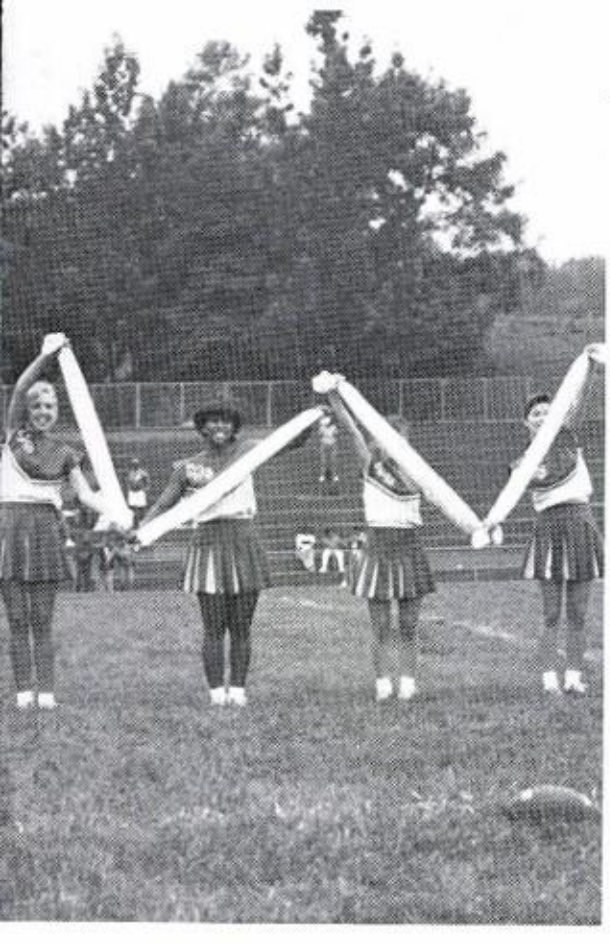
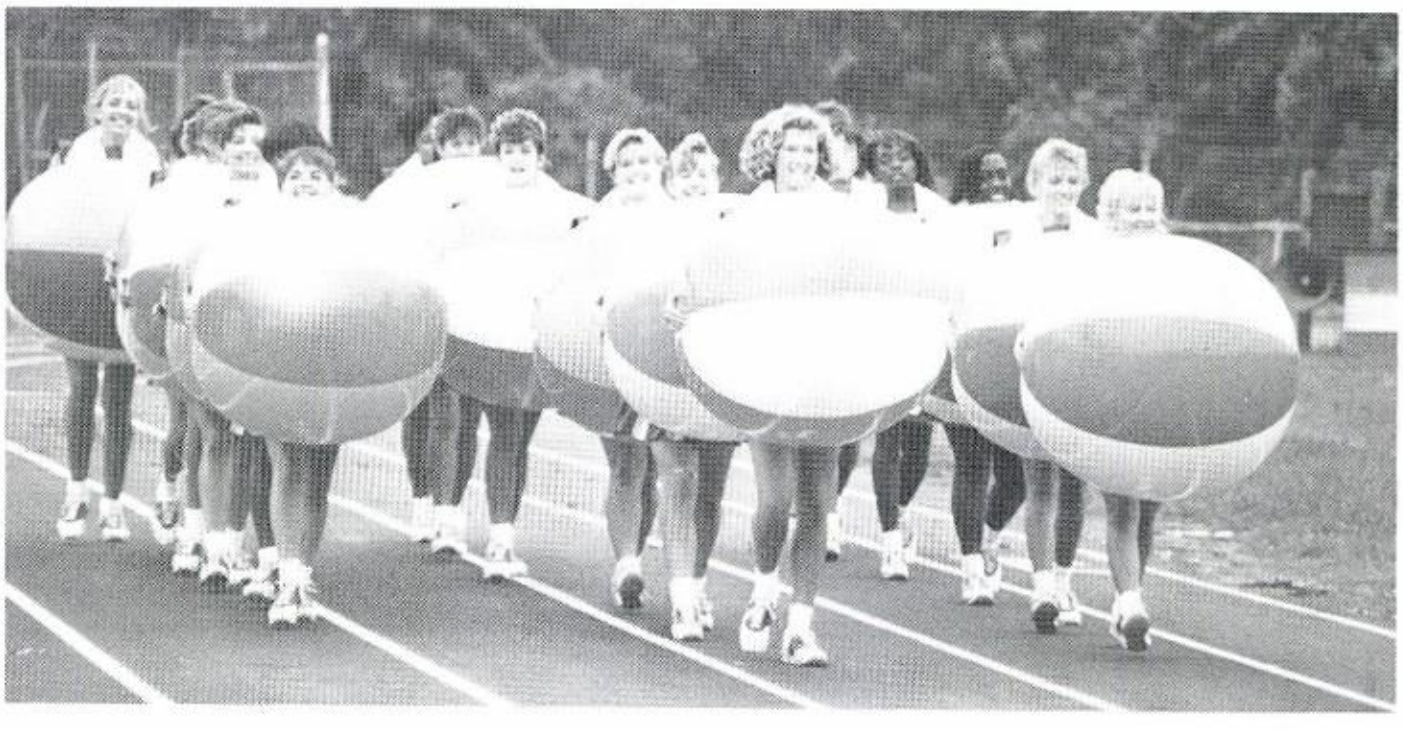
uring an original routine to "Wipe Out," the use of towels helps Jennifer Caldwell, Kim Vashington, Crystal Debold, and Lois Provenza create a "W" for the Wildcats.

With hard effort and long practices, the Homecoming routine proved to be worth the time.





Holding three-foot beach balls isn't very easy for the shorter girls, but despite the strong winds the poms look ready to try out a fun routine.

Life In NJROTC

Cadets Earn Ribbons

The Naval Junior Reserve Officers Training Corps Cadets (NJROTC) learn self-discipline, self-confidence, and leadership skills that can help them meet lifes' challenges. They enjoy many field trips that include cruises in the Potomac River, Chesapeake Bay and Atlantic Ocean.

Dressing every Thursday in their uniforms and practicing after school every Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday shows sheer dedication to our school. Having 13 ranks altogether, each student works hard to earn their rank. But not only do they work hard to earn their rank, they also work very hard for their meets against other schools. As you can see here, all of their hard work has come through but they'll work harder to make themselves the best.

The Man In The Glass

When you get what you want
In your struggle for self
And the world makes you
King for a day,
Just go to a mirror
And look at yourself
And see what that man
Has to say.
For it isn't your father
Or mother or wife
Whose judgement
Upon you must pass,
The fellow whose verdict
Counts most in your life
Is the one
Staring back from the glass.
Some people might think
You're a straight-shootin' chum
And call you
A wonderful guy.
But the man in the glass
Says you're only a bum
If you can't look him
Straight in the eye.
He's the fellow to please,
Never mind all the rest
For he's with you
Clear to the end
And if you've passed
Your most dangerous test
If the guy in the glass
Is your friend.
You may fool the whole world
Down the pathway of years
And get pats on the back
As you pass
But your final reward
Will be heartache and tears
If you've cheated
The man in the glass.

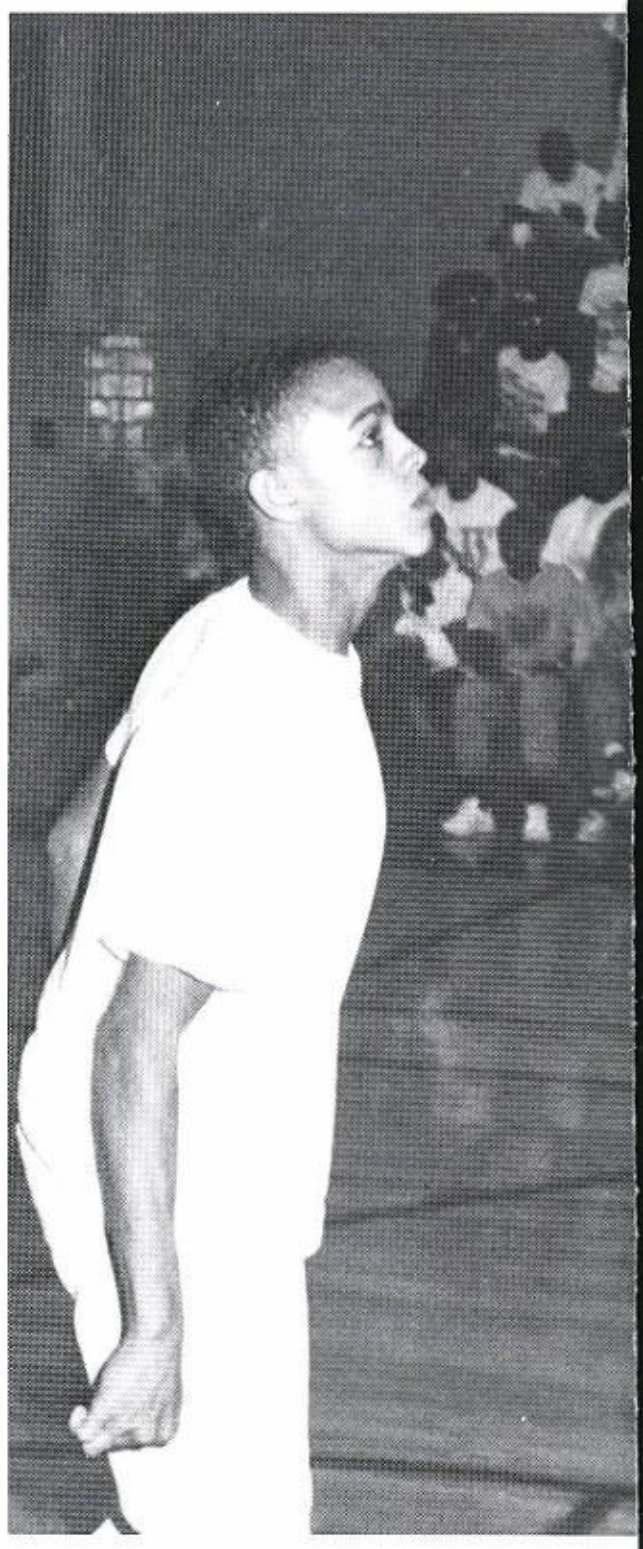
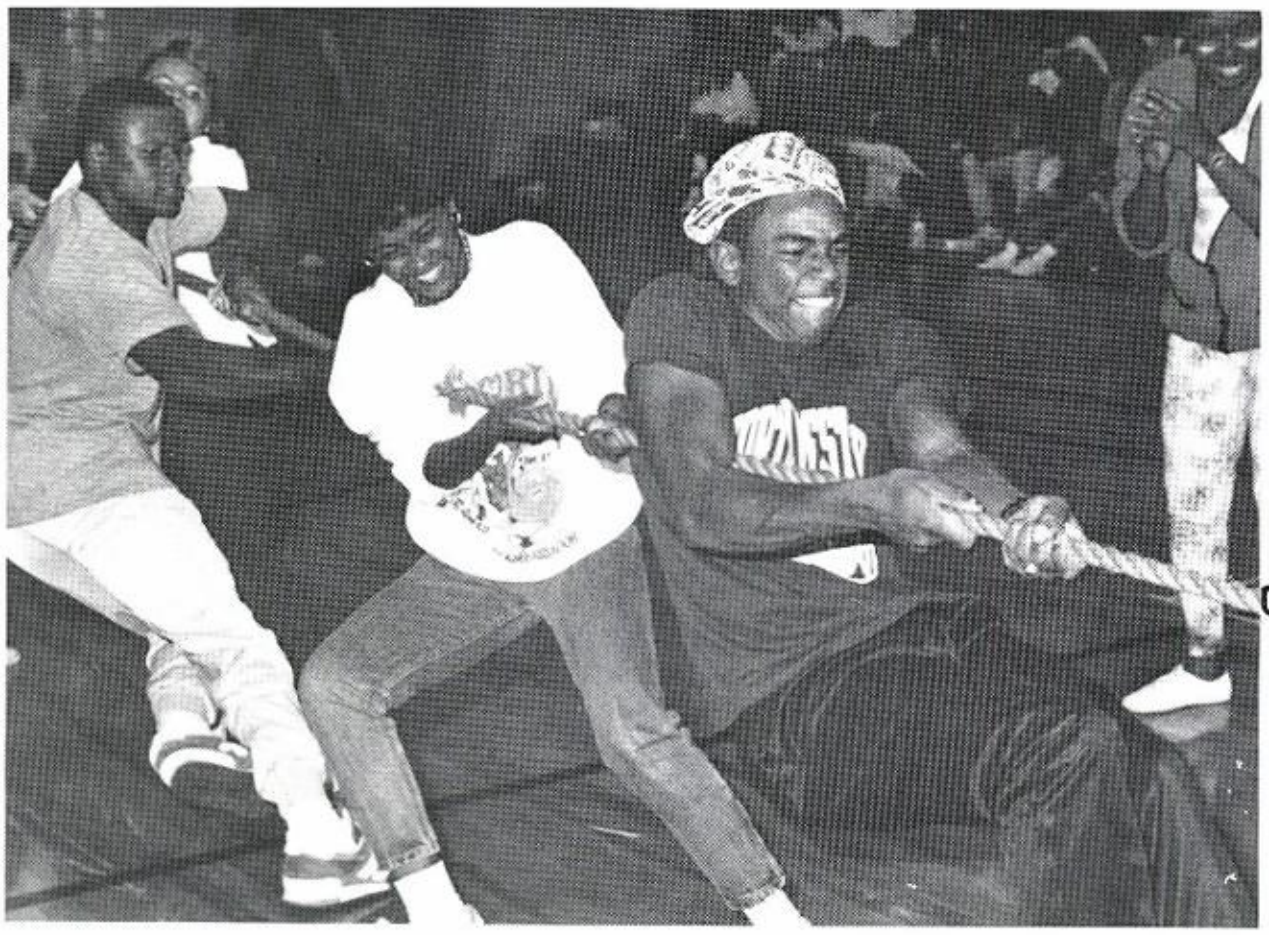
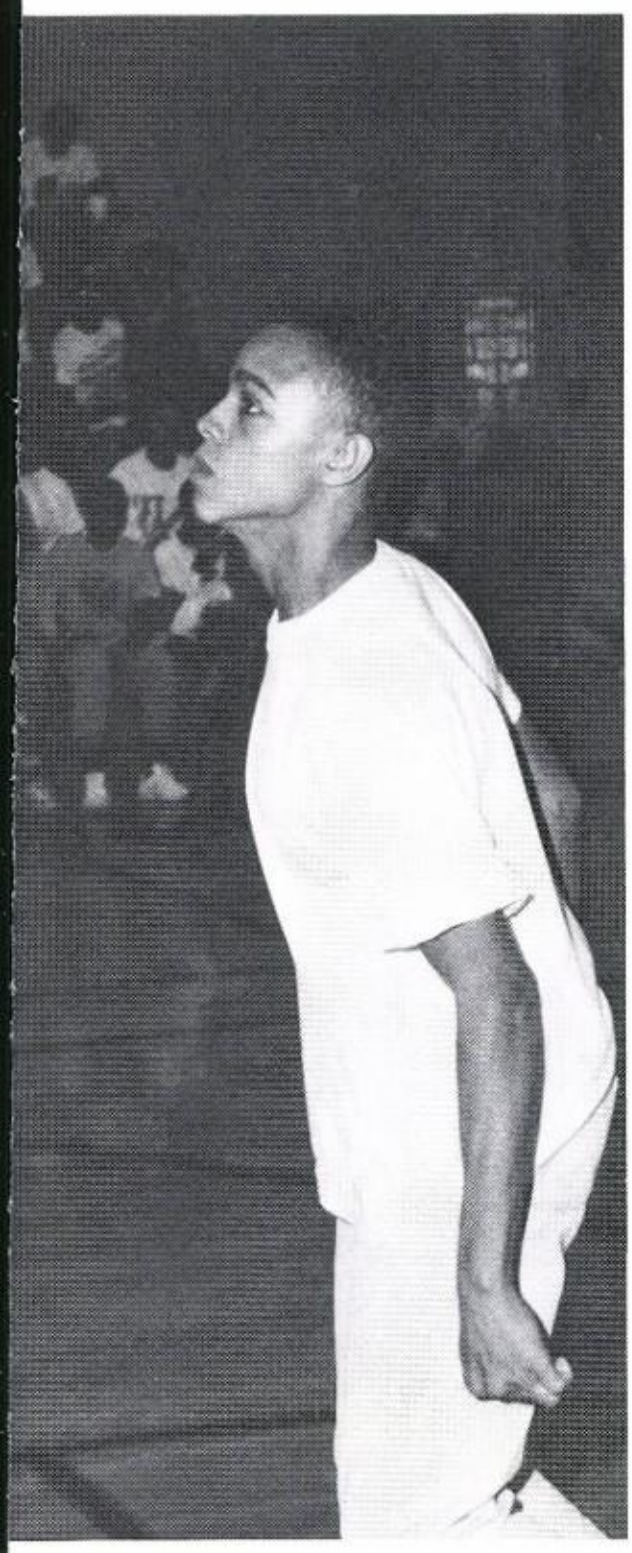
The Fun In Double Wildcats

88





Hey you. Give me her . . . . no way boy, this is my show yells Sharon Humes and Charles Burton as they try their hardest to separate this couple.



Hey man . . . who are you talking to?

Ending The Year With More Wildcat Power

Doubled action, doubled beat doubled talks, doubled feet. How did you double your fun in '88.

It seemed as if the year would never end, but the fun slowed down and the excitement drew to a halt as June 14th rolled around. The large blue and white letters of Northwestern that flowed through everyone's mind gradually dispersed in the air.

As the Seniors left and the underclassmen turned their backs to the doubled '88, the only thing left was memories. The thoughts of the good times lasted forever and the thoughts of the bad times were quickly forgotten.

As 1988 doubled the fun and excitement, it also increased Northwestern's daily attendance. In 1986-87 the average daily attendance was 87.78%. In December 1988, the average daily attendance rose to 88.15% giving Northwestern the third highest increase in Prince Georges County. This increased attendance boosted Northwestern's rank up five positions placing us at 12th place in the county.

Not only did the Seniors enjoy their year, but they would never forget the memories of their high school years. The underclassmen had more to go, and definintly more to look forward to as the 1987-88 school year closed its doors.
